J. S. Lee,* T. D. Gotwalt, Charles Henry Kitchen—3.

1. Rev. Thomas D. Gotwalt died in Williamsport, Pa., on Thursday morning, Dec. 3, 1863, in the eleventh year of his ministry, aged thirty-three years and nine days. Brother Gotwalt was born in Bloomfield, Perry County, Pa. Near the same place, at a camp-meeting, through the instrumentality of Rev. F. Dyson, in the fourteenth year of his age, he was born of the Holy Ghost. He immediately united with the Methodist Episcopal Church. The Church took note of his grace, faithfulness, zeal, and gifts, and was impressed with the belief that God had committed to him a dispensation of the Gospel. Through the agency of Rev. J. W. Haughawout he was inducted into the work, and in the year 1852, under the presiding elder, traveled his first circuit. In all his appointments his memory still lives; he made his mark; his labors were attended with great success. As a man he was pleasing in his address, and in his social intercourse with the people he irresistibly won his way into their hearts. As a Christian his piety, marked by constancy, as a heavenly fire, lived and glowed and burned. As a ruler over the Church, he had the gentleness of a child and the boldness of a fearless man. As a preacher, feeling the burden of souls, and proclaiming the word of life as one who must give an account to God, he aimed to do good in the pulpit. As a pastor he excelled. As a workman he was abundant in labors in every department of the Church of God. No wonder success crowned his "labor of love."

He lived not long, but well; faithfully he fought the battle of life, and gained the victory, and gained it forever. Such a life would have been the sure pledge of "the death of the righteous," even if the dying testimony had been wanting; but God allowed the dying testimony to be given, making the death-chamber seem "quite on the verge of heaven." Said his mother, called unexpectedly to see her dutiful and affectionate son dressed for his burial: "Tell me how Thomas died; did he leave any testimony?" A lady replied, "O! he died peacefully!" Said another lady, "Peacefully! That is not exactly the word; he died GLORIOUSLY!"

About a week before his death the deceased and the writer had a long conversation on Christian experience, and one point particularly was dwelt upon—self-consecration to God. It was remarked how much it embraced the laying upon the altar of God, time talents, property, everything, without any misgivings or mental reservation whatsoever. Our departed brother listened, for some moments reflected, and then with emphasis said: "Brother S., I believe I have made such a consecration to God." And when called, at his own request, to his dying bed, he said: "You remember what I told you the other day?" I answered, "Yes, you said that you had consecrated yourself entirely to God." This passage was then quoted: "Unto you, therefore, which believe, he is precious," and the writer asked the dying Christian, "Do you feel that Jesus is precious?" He answered distinctly and emphatically, "Yes, very precious." A few hours before his death his devoted friend, Rev. T. Mitchell, D.D., said to him: "You are a very sick man; we fear for the issue." He heard the announcement without the least agitation, with perfect calmness. "Am I!" said he, and added, "Then I want to get up." He desired to get up, as he said himself, because he wanted to talk. We cannot rehearse in this notice how well he talked, with what appropriateness, with what affection, with what pathos, with what power, to all, and especially to her whom he loved the most—his wife; trying then, and as long as he could speak, to comfort her, saying that God would take care of her and his children. He desired that his infant son should be baptized, and it was done. He left a message for the Church. He spoke of a church subscription book in his possession, saying he expected it would be found all right. He spoke of his burial, selecting Lock Haven as the place of his last sleep. He summoned all his strength, and shouted "Glory." Conscious of a living Christ in his soul, "Christ in him the hope of glory," and looking upon the scene before him, his wife and children near him, (as he desired them to be to the last,) and Christian brethren and friends around him, he said: "O how sweet it is thus to die!" He requested that when it was thought he was going, the hymn commencing "On Jordan's stormy banks I stand" should be sung. A short time before his exit, thinking no doubt that the hour had come, he said: "Brethren, sing." The hymn he had selected was sung. The power of utterance failed, though consciousness continued, at least nearly to the end. The end came, and without a sigh or a groan the spirit of our brother ascended to God.

2. Rev. Charles Henry Kitchen entered into rest May 26, 1863, aged 26 years. In his sixteenth year he was brought to a saving knowledge of God in the pardon of his sins and a change of heart. In 1860 he was admitted on trial in the East Baltimore Conference, and was appointed to New Washington Circuit. His subsequent appointments were: In 1861, New Grenada; 1862, Glen Hope; 1863, Newbury, where he ended his itinerant labors, after an illness of about two weeks. In reply to the interrogatory of a Christian minister who visited him during his illness, he said: "Jesus has been precious to me all through my sickness." Nor did Jesus forsake him in a dying hour. From the consistent life he lived, and the testimony he bore as his end drew near, we feel assured he now lives "where the wicked cease to trouble, and the weary are at rest."

Brother Kitchen was modest and unassuming in conduct. As a Christian, he was uniformly pious and exemplary. As a Christian minister, he was zealous, faithful, and laborious. His natural abilities were good. He was original in his compositions and improved rapidly. In his habits he was studious, punctual, and industrious. He was prudent and agreeable in his intercourse with the people, and was beloved by those to whom he ministered. His itinerant career was brief; he fell at his post the third month of the fourth year of his ministry. When the youthful and useful are taken away we remember the words of Jesus: "What I do thou knowest not now, but thou shalt know hereafter." We bow in submission to the Divine will.

The following obituary, not furnished last year, is now inserted by request.

Rev. William Wickes, D. D., was born in Chestertown, Md., May 26, 1789, and died in Bel Air, Md., April 7, 1862. From boyhood he was remarkable for filial obedience, morality, and general propriety of demeanor. In very early manhood he was converted to God, and received into the Methodist Episcopal Church. Shortly after he was impressed that "a dispensation of the Gospel" had been committed to him, and was making his arrangements to enter the itinerancy, when, under peculiar circumstances, he was induced to change the direction of his proposed ministerial labors by taking orders in the Protestant Episcopal Church. In regard to the precise locality of all the congregations of which he had the pastoral oversight during the fifteen years of his service as an Episcopal minister we are not fully informed. He had various parishes on the eastern shore of Maryland, in Delaware, and for several years had charge of the principal Episcopal congregation in Norfolk, Va.

* Memoir not received.

Circumstances in due time brought him back to the Church and ministry of his early choice, and for several years he was engaged in teaching; part of the time in Baltimore City, and part of the time in Leesburgh, Va., officiating meanwhile most acceptably as a local preacher. While teaching in the latter place, in response to the wishes of his numerous friends, clerical and lay, and to his own convictions of duty, he was prevailed upon to allow himself to be proposed for admission into the Baltimore Conference. He was admitted, March, 1833, and appointed to Hillsborough Circuit, Va. His admission under the circumstances gave evidence of the high esteem in which he was held, the conference at that time, owing to its crowded condition, seldom receiving married men. His appointments while in the itinerancy ran as follows: 1833–34, Hillsborough Circuit; 1835, Rockingham; 1836–37, Lewisburgh, Va.; 1838–39, Hillsborough; 1840, Jefferson Circuit; 1841–42, Leesburgh; 1843, Frederick City; 1844–45, Georgetown, D. C.; 1846, Stafford; 1847, Winchester Circuit; 1848–49, West Harford; 1850–51, York; 1852–53, Carlisle; 1854–55, supernumerary; 1856, Lewistown; 1857–59, supernumerary; 1860–62, superannuated.

While stationed at Georgetown, D. C., in 1844, he received from Dickinson College, Carlisle, Pa., the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity, which, under the circumstances, gave ample evidence of the high estimate which was placed upon his scholarship, theological attainments, and general worth as a man and Christian minister, he being the first member of the Baltimore Conference thus honored by the college.

On the division of the Baltimore Conference, in 1856, Dr. Wickes, then a supernumerary, fell into the East Baltimore Conference, of which he remained a member till the close of his earthly career.

He was a man of studious habits, general information, clear conceptions of divine truth, and of directness and force in his pulpit ministrations. In style his sermons were strong rather than ornate, abounding with instruction, and frequently with unction, and were prepared with a view to edification under all circumstances, rather than to startling effects on special occasions. Hence the variety of his pulpit efforts never flagged, and the longer he served a congregation the more highly he was appreciated, especially by the thinking portion of it.

Though at times given to great mental depression, he was a man of genial disposition, winning the kindest regards of his acquaintances, while, at the same time, he commanded their highest respect. His Methodism was of the old Wesleyan stamp; and though alienated for a time from the Church of his early choice, his love for it seemed to have intensified with the years of his absence from it. Under the disease of which he ultimately died, paralysis, he lingered for a considerable length of time, with his reason beclouded, if not utterly dethroned, preventing those gratifying testimonials at the close of his career which are so frequently given by veteran Christians. But we have his life as the unanswerable commentary upon his death. He was a good man, and has gone, we doubt not, to that land "where the wicked cease from troubling and the weary are at rest." He was for fifty-five years a minister of the Gospel, nearly forty of that time a Methodist minister.

T. B. Chew, Solomon M'Mullen—2.

1. Rev. Thomas B. Chew was born January 2, 1823, in Anne Arundel County, Maryland. He was converted to God at a camp-meeting on West River Circuit when quite a youth, and connected himself with the Methodist Episcopal Church. His brethren soon conceived that a dispensation of the Gospel was committed unto him, and gave him license to preach; and after laboring for some time as a local preacher, he felt it to be his duty to devote himself fully to the work of calling sinners to repentance, and in 1854 he was received on trial in the Baltimore Conference.

During his brief ministry he traveled Calvert, Wardensville, Sweet Spring, and West Falls Circuits, and in these fields of labor his ministrations were owned and blessed of God in the conversion of souls. His health, always delicate, now failing him, he was constrained to take a supernumerary relation. But though thus checked in his career of usefulness, his zeal for the conversion of sinners was unabated, and when greatly debilitated, he still went forth preaching the Gospel, and imitating the Divine Master in his efforts to do good.

He met death with true Christian heroism. When informed by his physician that he was near his end, he joyfully responded, "Then I am almost home." He died in the month of February, 1864, leaving a family to mourn their loss. But his friends have the consolation of confidently believing that their loss is his infinite gain.

2. Rev. SOLOMON M'MULLEN was born in Center County, Pa., 1808, and died in Shepherdstown, Va., November 20, 1863. In the seventeenth year of his age he was brought to a saving knowledge of Christ. In the spring of 1832 he was admitted on trial in the Baltimore Conference, and with the exception of two years, during which he sustained a supernumerary relation, he continued in the active itinerancy until he ceased "at once to work and live." The appointments with which he was entrusted, and which he faithfully served, are as follows: 1832, Great Falls; 1833, Liberty; 1834, Alexandria; 1835, Ebenezer; 1836, Baltimore City Mission; 1837, North Baltimore; 1838, Lewisburgh Station; 1839, Carlisle Circuit; 1840, Baltimore Circuit; 1841, Licking Creek; 1842–43, Waynesburgh; 1844–45, Gettysburgh; 1846–47, West Harford; 1848–49, Patapsco Station; 1850, superannuated; 1851–52, Columbia-street, Balt.; 1853, Baltimore City Station; 1854, supernumerary; 1855–56, East Loudon; 1857–58, Winchester Circuit; 1859–60, Martinsburgh; 1861 and until his death, Shepherdstown.

In the year 1839 he was joined in marriage to Miss Maria S. Gittings, of Baltimore, who, with three children, survives him. The disease which terminated his life was typhoid fever. During his whole sickness he was possessed with a calm and peaceful mind. Said he one morning to a ministerial brother, "I have never felt more joy than I experienced through last night, which I expected would be my last." When not allowed to talk, he sent this message to all his friends, "Tell them it is well with me." Again he said, "It is only my family and my Church which I am sorry to leave; but tell them to let me go; death has no terrors for me; this bed is to me a Paradise."

He has fallen from our midst in the strength of his days, but his character, more durable than pillars of brass, still remains to bless the Church, and to inspire her ministers with increased diligence and zeal in the work of the Great Master.

Brother M'Mullen was a friend of unwavering integrity, and a Christian of unimpeachable character. His deep experience in the things of God threw a bright light along the progress of a consistent and upright life, that enabled him to meet death in the sure and certain hope of everlasting blessedness. He was a pastor of untiring labors, and a preacher of commanding and popular talents. In his pulpit services he never aimed at greatness or display, but always proved himself "a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth." His appeals to sinners were pointed and irresistible. Many souls were added unto the Lord through his ministry.

And this ministry he delighted to exercise under the direction of the Church of his early choice, for Brother M'Mullen lived and died an earnest and devoted Methodist.

G. W. Batchelder.

REV. GEORGE WASHINGTON BATCHELDER, A. M., was born in the city of Philadelphia, June 15, 1836. His childhood was spent in Medford, N. J. His deeply-pious parents early impressed upon his youthful mind the value and beauty of the Christian religion. At fifteen years of age, under the ministry of the Rev. C. H. Whitecar, of this conference, he became an humble penitent, presenting himself at the altar for prayers, and was received on probation in the Methodist Episcopal Church at Burlington, N. J. Subsequently, having obtained the evidence of his acceptance with God, he was admitted to full membership by Rev. D. W. Bartine. His mind being fixed upon the acquisition of literary attainments, he entered Pennington Seminary, where he prepared for the work of teaching. From Pennington he went to a seminary in Cassville, Pa., where he sustained the twofold relation of teacher and pupil. After spending one year there he returned to this state, and opened a classical school at New Egypt. His success as a teacher was far beyond his expectation, but at the call of the Church he cheerfully gave up his school to enter upon the work of the Christian ministry. He received license to preach from the quarterly conference of the Liberty-street Church, New Brunswick, and entered upon the pastoral work at Millstone, N. J., in the twenty-first year of his age. He spent but a few months in that place, but his brief ministry is remembered by the people of Millstone with grateful and pleasing emotions.

In 1857 he was received by this conference and appointed to Princeton. The impression made by his ministry in that place was of the most extraordinary character for one so youthful, affecting the minds of the most intelligent and literary men of that far-famed seat of learning. That venerable institution, Princeton College, conferred upon him the honorary degree of A. M.* After spending two years in Princeton, Brother Batchelder was appointed to the State-street Church, Trenton. The brilliant history of his two years' ministry in that city is the crowning glory of his life; it is the period to which he himself referred with most satisfaction and pleasure. When he entered upon that field of labor the Church had just been organized; no edifice had yet been erected. It was during his ministry that the present beautiful and substantial church was built, which is the best specimen of church architecture within the bounds of our conference, and worthy to commemorate the character of its first pastor. Before Brother Batchelder retired from its pastoral care it was regularly filled with attentive hearers, and many precious souls were gathered into the fold of Christ, who, we trust, will shine as stars in the crown of his rejoicing. The name of George W. Batchelder is, in that congregation, "like ointment poured forth." No people ever loved him more, and none were more beloved by him.

* These facts prove that denominational walls do not hide, from the eyes of good and great men, intellectual and moral worth.

In the spring of 1861 he was appointed to Bayard-street, New Brunswick, which proved to be his last field of labor.

In the month of September he contracted a severe cold, which resulted in pulmonary consumption. His last sermon was delivered on the first Sunday in 1862, from these words: "I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice," etc. Rom. xii, 1. Soon after this effort he had a severe hemorrhage, from which he recovered sufficiently to mingle again in social life, but was compelled to desist from all public labors. In the spring of 1862 the conference granted him a superannuated relation. He had been united in marriage the previous year to Miss Helen, daughter of Rev. D. W. Bartine, D.D., of the Philadelphia Conference, a young lady eminently fitted to become his companion for life. She proved to be his ministering angel in affliction. Accompanied by his wife, Brother Batchelder visited Minnesota, in the hope that a residence in that climate would arrest the progress of disease; but this hope was not realized. In the fall of the same year he returned to Philadelphia. After spending some time there and in the city of Trenton, he finally fixed his residence at Princeton, where the climate seemed to agree with his declining health. Although every effort was put forth that human skill and kindness could devise, no remedy was found for the fatal disorder, and it became painfully evident that his end was near.

On the 21st of March information of his condition was conveyed to this conference, then in session at Burlington, New Jersey. The conference appointed one of their number to visit their sick brother, and convey to him the assurance of their sympathy and fervent prayers. The writer of this memoir had the melancholy pleasure of performing that duty. He found the patient sufferer at the door of death, calmly waiting for the final summons. The light of divine grace shone in his eye as he said, "Last night I thought I was dying, but all was bright and clear before me." "O, I have such peace, I ought to be willing to suffer in body, for God so greatly blesses me in mind." He then repeated the words of our Lord Jesus: "My peace I leave with you. My peace I give unto you." He received the message of sympathy and condolence from the conference, and remarked, "No language can express how much I love the members of the New Jersey Conference." Said he, "The appointments will soon be made. Brother Hanlon will go to Lambertville, Brother Stokes to Bordentown, Brother King will come here, you will go to Trenton, and I will go home to heaven." Then with a sweet smile upon his wasted cheek he said, "Do you not think I have the best appointment?" The interview was protracted, and remarks of a similar character continued to fall from his lips.

The writer will ever remember with holy joy the precious moments spent in conversation with that dying saint of God.

On Friday night, the 27th, his sufferings were severe. He remarked to Rev. T. Hanlon, who was with him at the time, "Patience! patience! He is teaching me to say, 'Thy will be done.'" The next morning he had a season of peculiar brilliancy of mind. "What a calm and beautiful morning this is," was his oft-repeated expression, and his soul seemed as calm and peaceful as did nature around him. In the midst of his pious rapture his beloved wife inquired, "Are you asleep, my dear?" "Yes, asleep in Jesus," was his calm reply. His uncle said, "Is Jesus precious?" "Yes, precious Jesus, he is precious," was his answer. To the friends who now gathered around his dying bed he remarked, "I did not expect to die so calmly; I expected to suffer in death; but I die so quietly and so triumphantly!"

He said to his mother-in-law, (Mrs. Bartine,) "Mother, do you think this is death?" She replied, "Yes, George, I think it is." "Then it is sweet to die," was his response. She said, "George, we have gone with you as far as we can go; you must leave us. What do you see before you?" "Pleasures for evermore," he triumphantly exclaimed. He sent a message to his brother and brother-in-law, who were both in the army of the Union, "Tell them to meet me in heaven, and tell them I send this message with heaven in my view." He then said, "Jesus is a friend that sticketh closer than a brother; my brother is far away, but Jesus is here with me." "Tell my dear father that the Father of fathers is with me." Of his father-in-law (Dr. Bartine) he said, "I have loved him; O, how I have loved him!" To his uncle he said, "I love you, uncle, and I am glad I came to your house to die." To his wife he said, "I love you next to Jesus." He sent messages of love like these to his various friends and relatives, not forgetting his brethren in the ministry, for whom his affection in death was very strong. Finally he became exhausted, and sank into a quiet, calm repose, in which condition he remained during all the following day, which was the Sabbath. Its sacred hours were spent by him in deep and silent communion with God. The only utterances that are remembered as falling from his lips on that day are, "Jesus shed his precious blood for me; to him be power and dominion. Amen! Amen! Amen!" and he concluded with the angel anthem, "Glory to God in the highest. Peace on earth, good will to men."

On Monday morning, the 30th, just a few moments before his death, as if he saw the Saviour coming, he exclaimed, "Jesus, my hope! my all! take me! take me now!" He then added, "Glory! glory to—" and with these words dying upon his lips, his pure spirit passed away from the earth, leaving a heavenly smile upon the face of the lifeless clay, which was all that remained of the once eloquent, lovely, and beloved George Washington Batchelder.

"Thus star by star declines,
Till all are passed away,
As morning high and higher shines,
To pure and perfect day;
Nor sink those stars in empty night,—
They hide themselves in heaven's own light."

QUEST. 11. Who have Died this year?

J. W. Mecaskey, J. R. Anderson, J. N. Magee, John Lednum—4.

1. Rev. John W. Mecaskey, A. M., pastor of Asbury Methodist Episcopal Church, Phil., died October 16, 1863, aged 42. He was the son of pious parents, and inherited an honored name, a fine physical form, a vigorous intellect, and an amiable disposition. These were cared for with commendable zeal, on the death of his devoted mother in his twelfth year, in the academy of the Rev. Mr. Andrews, of Doylestown, Pa., where he was placed by his remaining parent, and where he completed his academical course. On leaving school he entered the law-office of the late Samuel Chew, Esq., and in October, 1842, was admitted to the Philadelphia bar. He commenced the practice of his profession with more than ordinary promise, having a fine analytical mind, a lively imagination, and great fluency of language, with the grace and bearing of an honest, earnest man. Indeed, few young men of the legal profession had fairer prospects of worldly success; but what things were gain to him he "counted loss for Christ." A dispensation of the Gospel was committed unto him, and he conferred not with flesh and blood, but at once cheerfully abandoned all prospects of wealth and fame in the practice of law, and commenced a course of reading preparatory to the ministry.

While engaged in his law studies he sought and found a Saviour, and soon after connected himself with the Union Methodist Episcopal Church. His piety and ability soon commended him to the favorable notice of his brethren; and after rendering good service in the Sunday-school, and as a class-leader and exhorter, he was licensed to preach; and being further proved by one year's travel on the Newtown Circuit, he was recommended to the Philadelphia Conference, by whom he was received in 1844, and sent to Radnor Circuit. Here he formed the acquaintance of the excellent lady whom some years later he married, and who now mourns her irreparable loss. His subsequent fields of labor were Grove Circuit, Mauch Chunk, Stroudsburgh, Bustleton, St. John's, the Tract Agency, and Western, Philadelphia. After this he was stationed in Columbia, Reading, Norristown, and Pottsville. In 1862 he was again brought to the city and stationed in Asbury, West Philadelphia, and here he ceased to work and live. In each field of labor favored with his valuable services he was instant in season and out of season, an able minister of the New Testament, and a faithful steward of the mysteries of God. Purity, dignity, and earnestness, culminating in deep, constant devotion to God and his work, marked and illuminated his whole course. Christ and his cause were always paramount, and consecrated his whole inner and outer life. In the freedom of social intercourse and in the warmth of debate he never forgot that he was a minister of Jesus Christ, or what his brethren had a right to expect from him, and he never disappointed them. The seals to his ministry were many; and, though dead, he lives in the grateful remembrance of the Churches he served. His health began to decline when stationed in Norristown, but for years he battled bravely on amid increasing infirmities, doing the work of an evangelist, and giving full proof of his ministry. In the summer of 1862 he visited Europe, with the hope that a sea voyage and foreign travel might improve his health and prolong his life, more than ever precious and necessary to his family and friends; but his disease, ossification of the valves of the heart, resulting in general dropsical effusion, baffled the skill of the ablest physicians, and blasted the hope of his friends. He came home, with health but slightly improved, to labor a little while and then die as only a good man can die. When the hope of life was abandoned the last great struggle began. To leave wife and children, and the work in which his soul delighted, in the meridian of his years, was a sore conflict, but he came out of it more than conqueror. With entire submission he resigned himself, his family, and his work to God. His sufferings were great and long continued, but in patience he possessed his soul; not a murmur escaped his lips, and the Scriptures, the unfailing source of his comfort, ceased to be studied only when his strength failed him to hold and read the Book of books. The sweet hymns "Rock of Ages," and "Jesus, lover of my soul," often repeated, expressed the experience of the dying minister of Jesus Christ. His last pastoral work was a letter addressed to his people, in which he says, after thanking them for their constant kindness: "O, my dear flock, cleave under all circumstances closely to Christ! for when in immediate prospect of death every season of lukewarmness, every neglect of duty, every lapse into known sin, will rise up with terrible distinctness to distress you. Feel it to be a duty to be more than ever attentive to the means of grace, the attendance upon the preached Word, the class-meetings, and all other means calculated to benefit your own souls, and lead others to Christ."

Thus has passed away another in the van of the sacramental host of God's elect. His life was beautiful in holiness, his sickness and death were full of lessons of moral heroism, and of calm Christian triumph. "To die is gain!"

2. Rev. J. Rush Anderson, the son of a physician of distinction in Montgomery Co., Pa., was born in 1824. From childhood he was thoughtful, and when about thirteen years of age was led, through the instrumentality of Rev. William Cooper, D.D., to give his heart to Christ. One who knew him well at this time says his piety was deep and uniform.

From the time of his conversion he was intent on commending the Saviour to others, and felt, as he believed, the moving of the Holy Spirit to devote himself to the work of the ministry, which call was soon recognized by the Church, and he was admitted to minister at her altars. He was conscious of a call to serve God and the Church in the itinerant ministry, and sought, after much prayer and reflection, his father's approval; but he, having designed his son for the medical profession, was reluctant to consent, and did not until he had studied medicine and graduated at the Jefferson Medical College in Philadelphia. Then, finding his son's convictions of duty unchanged, the father yielded, and J. R. Anderson's name appeared in the Minutes of the Philadelphia Conference in 1844 as a probationer.

From that time until August, 1863, he labored with diligence and success in the several charges to which he was assigned. In March, 1863, he was appointed the second time to Ebenezer Station, Manayunk. He commenced his work with earnestness and hope; but the disease of which he died (phthisis pulmonalis) rapidly developed itself, and in the early part of the following October both himself and his friends were convinced that his work on earth was done. He lingered in much pain and weariness until the 8th of November, when his spirit ascended to the "palace of angels and God." During his last sickness he was exceedingly joyful. His faith rested in Christ with the most perfect assurance. He said, "God can put Satan under the feet of a dying man, and through Christ he has given me the victory." He has left a beloved and affectionate wife and four children in sadness and tears, who will, we trust, rejoin him in that land where sadness and tears are unknown.

Dr. Anderson possessed a warm heart and genial spirit. He was free from disguise, equivocation, or dissimulation. He was decided in his convictions, frank and fearless in their avowal, and tenacious in maintaining what he believed to be right. His ability as a preacher was above the ordinary grade; he was faithful and earnest as a laborer in the Lord's vineyard, and often exerted himself beyond his physical strength. His piety was fervent, and his success was cause of great thankfulness. But his work is done, and in glorious triumph he rests from his labors.

> "Servant of God, well done;
> Rest from thy loved employ;
> The battle's fought, the victory won,
> Enter thy Master's joy."

3. Rev. Joseph N. Magee was born in Bridgeville, Del., in 1824, and died in Newport, Del., August 27, 1863, aged 39. He was converted in his youth at a camp-meeting held near Snow Hill, Md. Having an ardent desire to do good, he was employed by the Bible agent of the state to circulate the Holy Scriptures in Dorchester County. He did great good in placing the word of God in families where it had never been seen. He was licensed to preach by the quarterly conference of Church Creek Circuit, in 1851. He was employed by the presiding elder, and sent to Worcester Mission in 1853. He was received on trial in the Philadelphia Conference, and appointed to Smyrna Circuit in 1854. His subsequent fields of labor were Wye Mission, Felton, Mount Nebo, Enterprise, and Newport, where he closed his useful life in the triumphs of faith.

Brother Magee was a zealous and successful minister of Christ, and plain and practical in his preaching. Being attentive to his pastoral duties, his name will be remembered with pleasure by the most of those with whom he labored, and many will rise in the judgment and call him blessed. In the last sermon he preached he said: "I asked myself this question on my way to the church, Am I prepared to die? and after a close examination of my heart before God I could answer, I am now ready to be offered, and the time of my departure is at hand." He was taken ill that night, and lingered for about two weeks. His sufferings were intense, but he endured them without a murmur. Resting his hope upon the atonement, he said, "My will is lost in the will of Christ." Much might be said of this worthy minister, but his record is on high.

> "To him the righteous Judge will say, Well done;
> The strife is o'er, the prize by thee is won;
> Come take a seat close by thy Saviour's side,
> And in my glory evermore abide."

4. Rev. John Lednum, the subject of this brief sketch, was born in Sussex Co., Del., November 15, 1797, and died in the city of Philadelphia, November 18, 1863, aged 66. The circumstances of our brother in early life, in a religious view, were comparatively auspicious; but it was not until he had reached his nineteenth year that he gave his heart to God. Some four or five years thereafter he consecrated himself wholly to Jesus, and under a deep and abiding conviction that a dispensation of the Gospel was committed to him, was formally inducted into the Christian ministry. He entered the itinerant ranks in the spring of 1823. From the beginning he was a diligent student, and his proficiency in study was commensurate with his patient and persevering application. His mind was thoroughly disciplined, and richly stored with varied information, so that there were but few subjects with which he was not familiar, and about which he could not freely and intelligently converse.

Though his manner in the pulpit was less attractive than that of some, he was nevertheless an interesting, instructive, and profitable preacher, bringing out of the Gospel treasury things new and old. As a theologian he stood in the first class, and was regarded by competent judges as an able minister of the New Testament. Wherever he labored during his ministerial life he was more or less successful, and in several instances was honored with remarkable revivals of religion. For several years past he sustained first a supernumerary, and then a superannuated relation to the conference, but all the while labored to the extent of his ability, and his labor was not in vain in the Lord. He was the author of a valuable work entitled "Rise and Progress of Methodism in America from 1766 to 1785."

During the early part of last October he was seized with what was then regarded as a slight sickness, and from the effects of which it was expected he would soon recover; but Providence saw fit to order it otherwise. His illness lasted some seven or eight weeks, but his mind was preserved in perfect peace. His death was singularly triumphant. When his physician informed him that his affection was disease of the heart, and that nothing more could be done for him, he replied, "I am ready." To the writer he said, "The God of my boyhood sustains me now. I am liable to die at any moment, but I am calm. I expect to be numbered with the blessed in heaven. I am at peace with all my brethren." To his wife he said, "Mother, all is bright and calm." He bade his children trust in the Lord, and they would meet him in heaven.

At one period during his sickness he exclaimed, "O, such sweet music! Do you not hear it? Such strains I never heard on earth." His mental faculties remained undisturbed to the last, and he contemplated his death with all the deliberation and moral heroism of the Christian philosopher. Being well read in medical science, he watched the slow but certain progress of his disease, and informed his friends as to its successive results, and when all would be over. One of his daughters wished him to tell what he saw of heaven. He replied, "All that you read in the Bible." He then cried out, "The swellings of Jordan! The valley and shadow of death is cold and dark, but all is bright beyond!"

> "Jesus can make a dying bed,
> Feel soft as downy pillows are."
> "In my hand no price I bring,
> Simply to the Cross I cling."

At another time, experiencing great difficulty in breathing, he said, "The chariot tarries! I am weary to go." "How sweet," he continued, "to die with loved ones around us." On the morning of November 18 he bade his wife and children a last farewell, and made them promise to meet him in heaven. About half past five o'clock, without a struggle or groan, he breathed his last.

> "As one that wraps the drapery of his couch
> About him, and lies down to pleasant dreams," he fell asleep in Jesus.

Appropriate services were held in the Green-street Methodist Episcopal Church, Philadelphia, and also in the First Methodist Episcopal Church, Lancaster, Pa., whither his mortal remains had been conveyed for interment. His surviving companion and children mourn his departure, but are sustained and solaced by the sweet assurances of the Gospel.

Quest. 11. Who have Died this year?

G. Widmann.

Gottlieb Widmann was born Oct. 5, 1823, in Algirsbach, a town in the kingdom of Wurtemburg, and died in the city of St. Joseph, Mo., on the 26th of April, 1863, of congestive chills.

In 1852 he emigrated to America, and landed at New Orleans. After a short stay in that city he came to Mount Vernon, Ind., where he was converted to God by the instrumentality of Rev. F. Baker, then stationed in that place. Having joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, he soon became an officer of the Sunday-school and a class-leader. In 1856 he was licensed to exhort, and shortly afterward moved to Missouri, in the vicinity of Booneville, where he obtained license as a local preacher. In the fall of 1857 he was sent to Oregon, Mo., where he labored with great ability and success. In the fall of 1858 he joined the Illinois Conference, and was sent to Wyandot Mission, Kansas, where he spent one year in the service of the Church. In 1859 he was appointed to Brunswick Circuit, Mo., then a mission; here his labor was blessed with great success in building up the Church for two years, endearing himself to many friends in and out of the Church. His next field of labor was Lexington, Mo., where he arrived at the outbreak of the present rebellion. Regardless of the surrounding dangers, he stood on his field till after the battle of Lexington. His last charge was St. Joseph Station. Feeling that his field was a very important one, he commenced his work with prayer and tears, and the Lord blessed his efforts. He was returned a second year to St. Joseph at the last conference, and shortly afterward the Lord was pleased to call his servant from his trials and toils to enjoy everlasting rest and the reward of faith in heaven.

Brother Widmann was married in 1853 to Miss C. Ebner, in Mount Vernon, Ind.; but his wife died in 1856. He was again married in 1857 to Miss Margaret Gatchet, of Moniteau County, Mo.

Brother W. was a sincere and faithful Christian, an affectionate husband, a kind father, a reliable friend, and a man of cheerful disposition. As an embassador of Christ, he had talents and grace well calculated to render him a workman that needed not to be ashamed. Brother W. was one of the best German preachers of the Kansas Conference, and his death is a serious loss to the German missionary work. He leaves a wife and three children to lament their painful loss.

1. Rev. NATHAN PAINE was born in Burrillville, R. I., Sept. 30, 1791, and died in New Bedford, Mass., Sept. 9, 1863. Brother Paine was converted to God in his seventeenth year, and very soon after connected himself with the Methodist Episcopal Church. He was licensed to exhort in 1813 by Rev. Daniel Wentworth, and in April, 1814, he received a local preacher's license, signed by Rev. Joel Winch, presiding elder. He was admitted on trial in the New England Conference in 1815, and was appointed to the New London Circuit. In 1816 he was stationed at Tolland, Conn. In 1817 he was admitted into full membership, ordained deacon by Bishop George at Concord, N. H., and was appointed to Somerset, Mass. In 1818 he labored on the island of Rhode Island. In 1819 he was ordained elder by Bishop Roberts, at Lynn, and stationed at Sandwich, N. H. He subsequently received from the Church authorities the following appointments, in all of which there were more or less conversions, and in some the work was very powerful and extensive. In 1820, Needham, then one of the best circuits in the conference; 1821-22, Falmouth; 1823-24, Eastham; 1825, Chatham; 1826, Ipswich and Gloucester; 1827, Ipswich; 1828, Saugus; 1829, Marblehead; 1830-31, Warren, R. I.; 1832-33, Fair Haven; 1834-35, Walpole; 1836-37, East Greenwich; 1838, Mystic, Conn.; 1839-40, Easton, Mass.; 1841-42, Monument; 1843, Fair Haven; 1844, Holmes's Hole; 1845-46, South Dartmouth; 1847-48, Somerset; 1849-50, Portsmouth, R. I.; 1851, North Fair Haven; 1852, Centerville, R. I. In 1853, on account of increasing infirmities, he asked and received a superannuated relation to the conference, and removed to the city of New Bedford, where, surrounded by his affectionate children, he spent the remainder of his days. Here, although laid aside from the active duties of the ministry, he was known as a safe counselor, a man of God, of sweet spirit, of modest pretensions, and unswerving integrity, his whole demeanor, conversation, and spirit inspiring confidence in the genuineness of his piety. It may be said of Brother Paine with great propriety, as it was of Barnabas, "he was a good man, full of the Holy Ghost and of faith."

He lived in constant preparation for eternity. Being unable to attend the last session of the Providence Conference, he sent to his brethren the following communication: "I seem to myself as a shattered hulk on time's rough sea; with its precious cargo all safe, the headlands of immortality all in sight, and the harbor of eternal bliss and safety just before me. I have fought the good fight, nearly finished my course, and kept the faith. The doctrines I have preached are my comfort and solace now, and I rest upon them without the shadow of a doubt between my soul and my Creator."

As a preacher, he was plain, evangelical, and faithful. His greatest ambition was to bring sinners to Christ, and in this blessed work he was eminently successful.

He was an earnest man. Never robust in physical strength, yet he performed a large amount of labor in preaching, holding prayer-meetings, leading classes, and conducting protracted meetings. It is a remarkable fact that he preached his first and last sermon in the same school-house in Centerville, R. I.

The death of Brother Paine corresponded to his life; it was peaceful and happy. While his beloved companion, who for forty-two years had shared with him the deprivations and joys of the itinerant life, sat watching by his bedside, his spirit went home to God. So calm was his departure that she scarcely noted its time.

> "Night dews fall not more gently to the ground, > Nor weary, worn-out winds expire so soft."

Our fathers in the ministry, where are they? Alas! but few are left to remind us of the glory, the power, the simplicity of the past.

2. Rev. Abel Gardner was born in Bozrah, Conn., March 3, 1815. In his twenty-first year he yielded to the calls of the divine Spirit and was born again, receiving the clear witness of a great change. Immediately subsequent to his conversion the Holy Spirit impressed him with the conviction that the great Master had chosen him for the work of the Christian ministry. Those only who have experienced it can realize the conflict of soul through which his retiring, sensitive nature passed, while for six years he endured the struggle. Grace conquered; and at the conference of 1842, held at Nantucket, he entered the public ministry of our Church. His stations were successively, Hingham, Mansfield, Mass., Scituate, North Dighton, Norwich North, South Coventry, Scitico, Hebron, Uncasville, Warehouse Point, Stoughton, Cumberland, Centerville, and North Rehoboth, where he laid down his life at his Master's call. At our last conference he was appointed to Middletown, R. I., while the sickness that proved to be unto death was upon him. He entered the glorious rest of Christian immortality May 21, 1863.

Brother Gardner was a modest, unassuming, sweet-spirited man. He was a close student, a fine scholar, a good pastor, and an instructive preacher. He enjoyed his religion, and disseminated its influence through all the channels of his life.

Death did not find him unprepared. Through the long weary days of his patient waiting for the final discharge from life and labor grace was abundant; as he himself expressed it, "Jesus was with him always a mighty comfort." He left the most convincing testimony of the victory of grace over the fear of death and the pains of dissolution. As the sun was setting in a cloudless sky, his spirit gently left the shores of earth, and the itinerant laborer for Jesus and the Church passed over the river to receive the fulfillment of the divine promise and of his own hope. Of him we can say,

> "Servant of God, well done;
> Thy glorious warfare's past;
> The battle's fought, the race is won,
> And thou art crown'd at last."

3. Rev. Asa U. Swinerton was born in Danvers, Mass., in 1802, and died in Monument, Mass., Oct. 12, 1863, of typhoid fever, aged sixty-one. He was educated among the Congregationalists, received a good physical, mental, and moral training, and was very exemplary in his youth, though not pious. He became acquainted with the Methodists while teaching school at Lynn, Mass., was converted to God under the ministry of Rev. A. D. Merrill, and soon afterward joined the Methodist Episcopal Church. He was licensed to exhort Oct. 3, 1830. He joined the New England Conference on trial at its session at Springfield, Mass., in 1831, and was admitted into full connection in due time. He was stationed at the following places: in 1831 at Hingham and Scituate; 1832, Malden; 1833–34, Fourth-street, New Bedford; 1835–36, Providence East; 1837, Norwich Landing; 1838–41, presiding elder of New London District. When the Providence Conference was formed in 1841 he was continued on that district. He was stationed at the following places in the Providence Conference: in 1842–43, Fourth-street, New Bedford; 1844–45, Power-street, Providence; 1846–47, West Bridgewater; 1848, Agent for the Providence Conference Seminary at East Greenwich; 1849, Monument; 1850–51, Newport; 1852–53, Chatham; 1854–55, Duxbury; 1856, Millville; 1857–58, Globe Village; 1859–60, supernumerary; 1861, Newport; 1862–63, Monument, where he died in great peace.

Brother Swinerton was a good man, full of faith and the Holy Ghost. He enjoyed the blessing of perfect love for over twenty years, and exemplified it in his spirit and life. He delighted to converse on this subject with select friends, but seldom told his experience of it in public. He was emphatically a man of prayer; rose daily at five o'clock, and spent much time in religious exercises. Few men loved the Bible more, or studied it in a more attentive and devout manner. During the later years of his life he was almost a man of one book. "The testimonies of the Lord were wonderful" to him, and his knowledge of them was accurate, thorough, and comprehensive. Never was a more upright and conscientious man; "he was a faithful man, and feared God above many;" he lived with an eye single to his glory. Modest, retiring, and reserved in his habits, he was never morose or gloomy in spirit. He was a man of few words, (taciturnity was perhaps his natural fault;) he never made lengthy speeches in public, but when he did open his mouth it was always in wisdom and grace. With his intimate friends he was more open, communicative, and free, but was scarcely ever known by them to speak a vain word. He was a great lover of Sunday-schools and of children; they always enjoyed the sunshine of his smile, and he was loved much by them in return. As a husband, he was kind and devoted; as a friend, warm and steadfast; as a pastor, prudent and faithful; and as a preacher, he excelled in the exposition and application of divine truth. In several of his fields of labor he was eminently successful in winning souls to Christ, and in building up believers in their most holy faith. As a presiding elder, he was true to the great principles and interests of the Church, and conversed familiarly with the young preachers on his district concerning their religious experience, studies, and duties.

For several years before his death his health was feeble, and he was not able to do the work of a pastor as in the days of his prime. He was, therefore, appointed to smaller stations than formerly; but he was enabled to go down the hill of ministerial life without murmuring against Providence, or envying the lot of others. Like John the Baptist, his joy was fulfilled in seeing the Saviour's kingdom increased, though he himself decreased. After the death of his excellent wife, Providence was preparing him, unconsciously to himself, for a better world. Never was his religious experience richer than during the last few months of his life, and never did he utter more striking remarks concerning the preciousness of Christ and of his salvation. His last sickness was brief and prostrating, but the approach of death gave him no alarm, and he was perfectly resigned to the will of God. He spoke of death as a departure to the home of the blessed. A few days before his decease he sent a message to his brethren assembled at a preachers' meeting, "Tell my brethren that I am utterly prostrated in body and mind, 'nevertheless, the foundation of God standeth sure, having this seal, The Lord knoweth them that are his.'" He continued in this happy frame of mind until he breathed his last without a struggle, and his pure spirit took its flight to the bosom of God. "And devout men carried him to his burial, and made great lamentation over him."

4. Rev. HENRY MAYO died in Eastham, Mass., at the residence of his brother, Abijah Mayo, Esq., January 21, 1864. He was born in Eastham, October 3, 1799. In 1821 he made a public profession of his faith in Christ, and connected himself with the Methodist Episcopal Church. He soon felt it his duty to preach the Gospel, and in a few months yielded to his convictions, which resulted in his connection with the New England Conference in 1823. From this time he appears upon the list of effective men for thirty-nine successive years, with a single exception of one year being supernumerary. At the last conference he was returned superannuated. From this time his health gradually declined, yet he entertained strong hopes of recovery, and often spoke of again entering the field. But in this he was destined to disappointment. About the commencement of the present year he became satisfied that his disease was pulmonary, and that the time of his departure was at hand. Greatly enfeebled in body and nervously debilitated as the truth became evident, he seemed to be taken by surprise, and reluctantly to yield to the mandate; but rallying himself and examining the ground of his hope, he was enabled to say, "In God have I put my trust, and in him I am not afraid." From that hour he triumphed in the God of his salvation. During the last few weeks of his life his view of himself was such as is common to those upon whom the light of truth shines with brightness, inducing humility, penitence, and meekness of spirit. His view of Christ as the Saviour of sinners was clear and scriptural; his confidence in the atonement perfect and supporting; his shouts expressive of triumph. His last words were, "All ready."

Funeral services were held in Eastham, in which his brethren from the adjacent towns participated, after which his remains were conveyed to East Weymouth, where further appropriate service was held, when he was committed to rest beside his recently deceased companion, in a spot of his own selecting and arrangement, until the resurrection morning. Peace to his memory.

QUEST. 11. Who have Died this year?

J. Whitham.

REV. JOSEPH WHITHAM, eldest son of Rev. John and Hannah Whitham, was born in Leeds, England, Dec. 13, 1808. At the age of twelve his family immigrated to this country and settled in the town of Union, Broome County, N. Y. Two years later the family removed to Osborne Hollow, in the same county, where most of its members have remained to the present time. In the autumn of 1826 Joseph was brought to a saving knowledge of the truth, and at once became a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He now no longer lived unto himself, but unto Him who died for him and rose again. So exemplary was his conduct, and so promising were his gifts, that in 1830 the Rev. Benjamin Shipman, preacher in charge of the circuit, appointed him class-leader. Having discharged the duties of that responsible office with marked fidelity for several years, the Rev. A. Caldar, then pastor, gave him license to exhort. In 1842 he received license as a local preacher, and was at once recommended to the Oneida Conference as a suitable person for the traveling ministry. Being received by that body, he devoted himself wholly to the service of the Church to the day of his death, with the exception of two years, (1853-54,) when he located to settle the estate of a deceased brother. In 1854 he was readmitted to the Wyoming Conference, of which he remained a faithful member till called to minister before the throne. It may not be necessary to specify his successive fields of labor further than simply to say that they were mostly in southern New York and northern Pennsylvania, where his name will long be remembered. It can be safely affirmed that few men ever discharged the duties of a Christian pastor more carefully or more conscientiously. He regarded himself as solemnly bound to "keep our rules, and not to mend them." It is not impossible but that he sometimes carried his notions of disciplinary fidelity to an extreme, thus giving unnecessary offense. But then even his faults leaned to virtue's side. Like the seraph Abdiel, "he was faithful among the faithless." In the pulpit he was highly respectable, though very possibly, in consequence of his stringency as an administrator, he was not so highly appreciated as many men of less talent. But those who knew him best respected and loved him most. With all his rigidity, he was eminently the Christian gentleman. Whoever knew Joseph Whitham to be guilty of anything like rudeness, coarseness, censoriousness, or other ministerial indecorum? Few men, indeed, ever carried with them to the grave a more spotless character.

He finished his course on the Oregon Circuit, Honesdale District, on the 24th of June, 1863. A happier death could hardly be imagined. He had no moral preparation to make for the final change. His work was all done, and with perfect submission and confidence he awaited the coming of the Master. When his family, who had been summoned by telegraph to the dying scene, arrived, they wished to call additional medical advice, to which he strenuously objected, saying, "Can you not trust Jesus? He is almighty to save. Let his will be done. I wish to go now, if it be his will to take me. Weep not for me; the Lord knows what is best. He is good, very good to me; praise his holy name." "From this time," says a member of the family, "he was almost constantly talking of the goodness of the Lord, and calling upon those around him to join in his praises. A little past midnight, on the 24th of June, he seemed almost gone, when he suddenly revived and said very distinctly,

> "'The chamber where the good man meets his fate
> Is privileged beyond the common walks
> Of virtuous life; quite on the verge of heaven.'

And now, his voice becoming as strong as when he was well, he called us to his bed and bade us farewell, exhorted us to be good, and gave us his message for his friends far away. 'Tell them,' said he, 'not to mourn for me, for I shall soon be in a better world.' He then added, 'Tell my friends, tell the world, that the Gospel I have preached to others has saved me, and that it is potent to save even in the hour of death.' After bidding adieu to all in the room, and to the world, he commenced praising God in still higher strains. 'There,' said he, looking upward, 'I shall see Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, and there I shall see mother and the angels;' adding, in a tone and with an emphasis which it would be difficult to describe, 'Praise the Lord! Praise the Lord! Amen and amen! Halleluiah!' Thus he continued to exult till nearly half past nine o'clock in the morning, when he gently passed away." In view of such a scene, one can hardly help exclaiming, "Mark the perfect man, and behold the upright, for the end of that man is peace."

His remains were brought to Osborne Hollow, and there interred in the village cemetery, alongside of kindred dead, his friends placing over his grave a chaste and beautiful monument. Thus do ministers, as well as others, fall beneath the pale horse and his rider. May we take heed, and be also ready.

QUEST. 11. Who have Died this year?

George W. Green.

REV. GEORGE WASHINGTON GREEN died at South Royalston, Mass., Oct. 8, 1863, aged forty-seven years. He was born at Washington Landing, Conn. At an early age he removed with his parents to the State of New York, where he, when about sixteen years of age, received, in answer to prayer, the remission of sins, and a clear evidence of his acceptance with God. He soon felt that he was called of God to preach the Gospel, and when about eighteen years of age he commenced this great and glorious work. In 1836 he united with the New England Conference, and was sent to Northfield and Phillipston Circuit; in 1837 to West Farms, Cummington, and Ashfield Circuit; 1838, Peru; 1839, Athol; 1840, Ware; 1841–42, Charlemont; 1843, Otis and Blandford; 1844, Otis and Granville; 1845, Agawam; 1846, West Springfield. In 1847 he was compelled by feeble health to take a supernumerary relation, which he sustained to the conference for fourteen years. During this time his name appears in connection with the following places: 1847, Agawam; 1848–50, Agawam and Feeding Hills; 1851, West Springfield; 1852–53, Feeding Hills and Agawam; 1854, Westfield; 1855, Prescott; 1856–57, Lock's Village; 1858–59, North Dana; 1860, Erving and Northfield. Many of these years of impaired health were spent in the pastoral work, doing what he could to save souls, and laboring with his hands to obtain a comfortable support for his family. In 1861 he was made effective and stationed at Erving and Northfield, where he had labored the preceding year, and was continued there in 1862. At the last conference he was stationed at Byfield; but the authorities of the Church changed his field of labor to South Royalston. He entered upon his charge about the first of July, and continued his labors in the midst of difficulties to the extent of his strength till he was called to his reward.

Brother Green was a member of the New England Conference twenty-eight years, and during that time he remained on Springfield District. He was a practical man. He possessed good natural abilities. The first years of his ministry were spent on large circuits, so that his opportunities for study were limited; but he was a constant student of men and things, and he stored his mind with useful information. As a preacher, he was plain and practical. He aimed to lead sinners to Christ, and on some of his appointments he had signal success. He gathered souls to Christ.

The disease of which he died was dysentery; it overtook him in the midst of his labors, and after a few days of great suffering his spirit passed triumphantly away. His last days were his best. The following were among his last sayings: "I have no fears; I am ready to go; there is nothing here deserves my joys; there is nothing like my God." Again: "O what light! such light I never thought of; and such glory! O such a weight of glory! such an indescribable weight of glory!" Raising his hand, and looking up, he said, "O how it comes welling up, welling up! Glory! glory! glory!" At another time: "O how light! just as I expected; I have had sweet visions of heaven; praise God, how good he is to me; praise God for religion; it makes a dying bed feel soft." At another time, being in great distress, he said: "Such pain I never experienced; but the glory overpowers it." And again: "My Lord, my Lord, my Saviour, and my all, why are thy chariot wheels so long in coming? I long to rend this mortal vail and rise." In the midst of such manifestations he left the Church militant to join the Church triumphant.

QUEST. 11. Who have Died this year?

A. M'Kean, Lewis Potter, J. B. Stratten —3.

1. Rev. ANDREW M'KEAN, father of Hon. J. B. M'Kean, late member of Congress, of Rev. S. M'Kean, of Troy Conference, and father-in-law of Rev. William M. Chipp, of the New York Conference, died in Mechanicsville, N. Y., Dec. 19, 1863, in the eighty-seventh year of his age. He was the oldest minister in the Troy Conference, and the third that the Master has called to himself from the Saratoga District since our last session. He was born in Huntington, Pa., July 28, 1777. When twelve years of age his parents removed to Burlington, in the same state. Here, in his own father's house, the first sermon preached by a Methodist itinerant in the place was delivered by Rev. James Painter, who was soon followed by other preachers. Mr. M'Kean was early and deeply impressed, under this new style of preaching, with the necessity of a change of heart. When about twenty he sought and found the pearl of great price. Soon after he was received into the Methodist Episcopal Church by Rev. Johnson Dunham. In his twenty-third year he was licensed to preach by Rev. William M'Lenahan, presiding elder of a district extending from Northern Pennsylvania to the Mohawk River. For three years he traveled under the presiding elder, and though often urged during this time to join the conference, yet he was deterred, by his remarkable diffidence and a feeling of unfitness and unworthiness, to perform the great duties of the Christian ministry. In May, 1802, he joined the Philadelphia Conference. By change of boundary lines he passed into the New York Conference, and in 1832 into the Troy Conference. The joining the itinerant ranks was done under the influence of deep feeling, and a conviction that a dispensation of the Gospel of the Son of God was committed to him. He was appointed to Ulster Circuit, the eastern boundary of which was the Hudson River. While on this circuit he introduced Methodism into Kingston, N. Y. He visited the place and tried to procure a house in which to preach the Gospel, but being unable to do so, he resolved to deliver his message on the Common. His friends tried to dissuade him, fearing, so great was the prejudice against Methodism at that time, that personal violence would be visited upon him. They failed to change his purpose. He made the appointment, and preached on the Common, the first sermon delivered in that village by a Methodist preacher, to a large and attentive congregation. He continued to labor there, and during the year organized the first Methodist society there. In 1803 he traveled Saratoga Circuit. In 1804 he was ordained deacon by Bishop Asbury, and sent to Delaware Circuit. This circuit extended from the Susquehanna to the Mohawk. In 1805, Herkimer Circuit. In 1806 he was ordained elder by Bishop Asbury, and stationed on Albany Circuit. During his labors here he preached in Schenectady, and, early in 1809, organized a class in the place. In 1807 he was sent to Whitingham Circuit, lying east of the Green Mountains and embracing a large territory in Vermont and Massachusetts. He was not aware there was such a circuit in the connection until the reading out of the appointments. It was some time before he could ascertain its exact locality. It led him far away from his acquaintances and the home and friends of his youth. A momentary shadow came over his spirit, but grace triumphed, and he went forth in the name of Jesus, and enjoyed a pleasant year. In 1808–9 his appointment was Charlotte, Vt.; in 1810, Plattsburgh; 1811, Montgomery; in 1812, again on Albany Circuit; in 1813 he went to Leyden, same as Whitingham; in 1814, Saratoga again. During this year he was married to Miss Catharine Bedell, who, after sharing with him the joys and privations of an itinerant life for almost fifty years, is now called to mourn his departure from her, and to finish her journey alone. In 1815–16 he was on Cambridge Circuit; in 1817, Pittstown; 1818, Coeymans, same as Albany; 1819, Chatham; 1820, Pownal; 1821, Granville; in 1822–23, Saratoga. The late Rev. James B. Houghtaling, formerly of Troy Conference, was converted during his labors on this circuit. In 1824 he labored on Berne. This was his last appointment in the regular work. He had moved almost every year, traveled large circuits, rode thousands of miles on horseback, endured great hardships and exposures, and found, as a consequence, his health had become impaired. It was necessary he should be entered supernumerary. He however continued to preach as long as his strength would permit and opportunity presented. He settled near Schuylerville, where he remained until 1828, when he removed to Halfmoon. There he lived until 1862, when he came to Mechanicsville, from which he went to heaven. He conversed about death composedly, and expressed his readiness and willingness to depart. Two days before his death, his son Samuel, and his pastor, Rev. O. J. Squires, conversed very freely with him, and he gave them full assurance that all was peaceful. The day before his death he desired his son to pray with him once more, and he responded heartily to the petitions, and at the close thanked him for his prayer. When the son said, "Father, you will soon be in the better world," he replied, "O yes, I shall soon be there, my prospect is bright, I have no condemnation, I feel that all is well." About half an hour before he died Brother Squires said, "Father M'Kean, you are almost home."

His articulation was very difficult, yet he replied, "O yes." And thus passed away this servant of God. For about sixty-seven years he was a faithful disciple, for sixty-five a minister of Jesus Christ. Many have been led to Christ through his instrumentality. A part of these are at home to welcome him, others are on their way, and some are distinguished ministers of the Gospel of the grace of God. The evening of his life was pleasant and peaceful. He lived to see all his children members of the Church of his early choice, and occupying responsible positions in society. In all the relations of life he was amiable, sweet-spirited, and consistently pious; a friend to the friendless who took sweet counsel with him, a friend to the people and beloved by both. None knew him but to love him, and those who knew him best loved him most. He was a judicious counselor, and a prudent administrator of discipline. So carefully and diligently had he studied the holy Scriptures that he was never at a loss to find any passage referred to, and hence, in the days of his labor, his brethren often designated him as the New York Conference Concordance. He was one of the most distinguished and useful ministers of his time in all the regions where he traveled.

2. Rev. Lewis Potter was born in Fort Edward, N. Y., September 26, 1806. In the days of his youth he enrolled himself under the banner of his Lord, and was received into the Methodist Episcopal Church, under the administration of the lamented Rev. John Clark. Thenceforth, with him, to know his duty was to perform it, and his powerful convictions of a call to the ministry impelled him in that direction, through loss and trial, in which he was also sustained by his ardent longings after usefulness, and by the first-fruits of it already appearing. For several years these conflicts continued; but He who "bringeth us to the desired haven" at length prepared the way of his servant, who was received by the New York Conference in 1830, laboring within its limits first on Berne, then on Lester Circuit, until its division in 1832. He has been identified with the Troy Conference from the period of its organization, being first appointed to Grand Isle, where he married Miss Mary Phelps, who has continued the faithful companion of his itinerancy until he reached the gate of heaven. Removing from Grand Isle, his subsequent charges were: Chazy, Essex, N. Y., Hinesburgh and Starksborough, Westport, Jay, Bakersfield, Grand Isle, Weybridge, Benson, Nassau, Cohoes, Poultney District, North Pittstown, Tomhannock, Saratoga District; his labors as a presiding elder being pursued uninterruptedly until within a week of his death, which resulted from typhoid fever, preceded by a year of chronic disease. In Waterford, July 15, 1863, Brother Potter "ceased at once to work and live."

The structure of his character was calm, firm, and symmetrical. A spirit conscientious and devout expressed itself in a solemn and serene deportment, which impressed by its dignity, while it won by its humility, and throughout life was inflexibly true both to its Christian purity and propriety. In health he had no idle hours; in sickness no murmuring ones. In his ministrations he aimed alike at immediate and permanent results, happily witnessing both; a number of his charges being especially blessed with extensive revival and abiding fruit. He dearly loved the work of the ministry, and the fullness of his early consecration was revealed in the fidelity with which he maintained it.

His death was worthy of his life. On the afternoon of his departure, in the midst of great sufferings, he joined in giving "thanks unto God who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ." He assured his friends that he possessed "a satisfactory evidence that his home was in the incorruptible inheritance." His last words (a few hours later) in reply to the assurance that his family "would all try to meet him in heaven," were a renewal of the Gospel invitation he had so faithfully preached in life: "Come, come!" His sufferings had now abated; he had committed his family and the Church into the hands of God, and twenty minutes more he lingered, calmly as the surrounding sunset glow in which he passed away.

3. Rev. John B. Stratten.—This venerable minister of Christ "entered into his rest" on June 20, 1863, aged 78. He was born in Stratford, Conn. He was converted and joined the Church in early life, and in 1811 was admitted on trial in the New York Conference and appointed to Granville Circuit. His subsequent fields of labor were the following: In 1812, Fletcher; 1813, Ticonderoga; 1814, Grand Isle; 1815, Plattsburgh; 1816–17, Grand Isle; 1818, St. Albans. During the next four years he was presiding elder on Champlain District. In 1823–24, stationed in New York city; 1825, Middlebury, Vt.; and then presiding elder on Saratoga District four years; in 1830–31, Troy. In 1832 the Troy Conference was organized, and Brother Stratten was stationed in Albany in that and the following year. He was then transferred to New York Conference, and appointed to the West Circuit, New York city, where he remained two years. The next year he was in Brooklyn, and then for two years in Allen-street, New York. In 1839 he was in charge of Delaware District, in which relation he was continued four years. He was then transferred to Troy Conference in 1843, and put in charge of Troy District, where he remained three years, and was then retransferred to New York Conference; stationed two years at Forsyth-street, and the next two at Twenty-seventh-street. He was stationed at Bridgeport, Conn., in 1850, and then four years on Hartford District. The next year he was home missionary in New York city, and the following year appointed to Sag Harbor. In 1857 he was again transferred to Troy Conference, and presided over Burlington District until the spring of 1861. At this time he took a superannuated relation, and retired to his new home, at Jonesville, Saratoga County, N. Y. Thus it will be seen that Brother Stratten was an effective minister during an entire half century; and such was his physical vigor and power of endurance that he was able to do his full work almost without interruption. In these fifty years he lost, on an average, not more than one Sabbath in seven years by illness. Such another instance can scarcely be found in all the annals of our itinerancy. After his retirement in 1861 he was still intent upon the work of preaching, looking for vacant places, and preaching with earnestness and vigor. In March, 1863, he attended a quarterly meeting, about four miles from home, where he preached for the presiding elder, who was in ill health. That sermon was both great and good, and is often alluded to by the Church with great satisfaction. On returning from that service he took a violent cold, which caused a derangement of the system, from which he never fully recovered. He was, however, able to go out, attending to his affairs, and after a few weeks ventured to preach occasionally. Only thirteen days before his death he preached at a quarterly meeting at Jonesville, and such were his zeal and earnestness, both in the sermon and at the sacrament, that more than one mind was deeply impressed with the conviction that he would never preach again. After that day he was more unwell, though not confined to his house, but attended Church twice the next Sabbath. His actual confinement wus but for three days, when he "ceased at once to work and live." He was faithful in every field of labor, true to the interests committed to him, mild but firm in the administration of discipline, amiable in his spirit, and interesting in the social circle, and had very many friends wherever he was known. He was an able minister of the new covenant, and many are the "stars in his crown of rejoicing." He died in the full exercise of his intellectual powers, and with unshaken faith in the Gospel which he had so long preached to others. Only about two hours before his death he expected to live and recover, at least partially; but at that time his weeping wife asked him "where and how he wished to be buried?" He looked at her a moment, as if wondering at the question, and then replied: "I have no choice, and do not think it necessary to settle that matter now."

He soon requested to be left alone with the brethren who were present, and all others having left the room, he desired to be informed with regard to the probability of the issue. Being told that he was sinking very fast, and probably could live but a very short time, he replied: "You can judge of the case better than I can; I do not feel as if this is sickness unto death; but it makes no difference; I am ready." He then desired all to be called in, and gave his last words of advice and consolation to his weeping wife and niece, and assuring all of his unwavering trust in Christ. His niece inquired if he would not like to stay longer with them. He answered: "For your sakes, yes." He sank rapidly, and when it became extremely difficult to articulate, he gathered up all his remaining strength and repeated those lines, so full of peaceful trust in a present Saviour:

"Jesus can make a dying bed
Feel soft as downy pillows are;
While on his breast I lean my head,
And breathe my life out sweetly there."

That place seemed indeed to be "quite in the verge of heaven." It may be said of him as of Barnabas, "He was a good man, and full of the Holy Ghost and of faith."

QUEST. 11. Who have Died this year?

R. E. Danforth.

Rev. R. EDMUND DANFORTH was born at Merrimac, N. H., Feb. 4, 18—. He experienced religion in Amherst in 1854; Oct. 14, 1855, he received license as an exhorter; Nov. 17, 1855, he was licensed as a local preacher; Jan. 15, 1856, he was married to Miss Mahala Rand, and immediately entered the Biblical Institute, where he remained two years. Before the completion of his studies he joined the New Hampshire Conference, and was stationed at Hudson, North Charlestown, and Peterborough two years each. He was ordained deacon at Portsmouth May 8, 1859, and elder at Concord, April 14, 1861. At the conference of 1862 he was appointed to Keene, and labored with great success till the latter part of November, when his health failed. He continued to decline till Sunday, June 28, 1863, when he fell asleep, and was gathered to his fathers. Through his long sickness he was sustained by the faith he loved to preach, and the closing scene was one of very great triumph.

C. Northrup, Walter Jerome,* A. J. Grover—3.

1. Rev. CHARLES NORTHRUP, the subject of this brief memoir, joined the traveling connection in 1814. He died in Moira, Franklin County, about the time of the last annual session of this body. Having been for several years beyond the bounds of the conference, and sustaining a superannuated relation to it, we are able to gather but few circumstances relating to his death. We only know that after prolonged suffering he died in great peace. We have not the data at hand to furnish the fields of his labor or the period of his effective ministry. We know that he was one of those clear-headed, true-hearted men who broke up the ground which we now occupy, trusted and beloved by his colaborers in the holy cause. All honor to their memory! He leaves a worthy, aged, and much afflicted widow, the companion of his privation and labor, feeble in health and in comparative destitution.

2. Rev. ANDREW J. GROVER was born in West Dryden, Tompkins County, N. Y., December 22, 1830, and died from wounds received on the bloody field of Gettysburgh, July 1, 1863, in the thirty-third year of his age. When a mere youth he enlisted in the United States Army, and was among the troops that were led by Gen. Scott from Vera Cruz to the city of Mexico. In that campaign he contracted a fever, the effects of which followed him through life. After the expiration of his term of enlistment had expired he returned to his native town, where he enlisted in the army of the Lord some time in January, 1851. He was licensed to exhort at West Dryden in July, 1852; and in the same or early in the following year was licensed to preach by the quarterly conference of Cazenovia Station, where he was attending school. He traveled one year under the presiding elder on the Cuyler and De Ruyter charge. At the close of this year he was admitted on trial in the Oneida Conference, and in the ordinary course was received in full connection and ordained deacon and elder. After filling several of our most important stations with great credit and usefulness, he received his last ecclesiastical appointment at Cortland in the spring of 1861. In the autumn of this year he felt himself called to the defense of his suffering country, and raised a company, and was commissioned a captain in the Seventy-sixth Regiment N. Y. S. V. At the battle of Gainesville he was wounded, as was then supposed mortally, and subsequently resigned, and was mustered out of the service. After his return home he recovered rapidly, and fully made up his mind to again enter and spend his days in the ministry, which he so ardently loved. But a major's commission being tendered him in the regiment in which he had formerly served, he regarded the call as providential, and again joined his old companions in arms. At the battle of Gettysburgh he was in command of his regiment, and fell covered with wounds while cheering his men to the deadly onset: as was stated by Gen. Cutler in a letter to his afflicted wife, he fell "the bravest of the brave." After his death a lieutenant-colonel's commission was sent to his family, which, had he lived a few days longer, would have been placed in his own hands as a reward of his soldierly qualities and his bravery.

Brother Grover was a good man and a patriot. He often acted as chaplain in his regiment after his return, and maintained his Christian integrity. His brethren had no occasion to blush for him either in the pulpit or the field. He has fallen, another invaluable sacrifice to a cruel and wicked rebellion. He died almost immediately after receiving his injuries, with his thoughts and affections lingering around the sacred memories of wife, of children, and of home. None were there to tell us what he said of Jesus and of heaven; but we confidently believe the patriot, the soldier, and the Christian is at rest with the great Captain of his and our salvation; and that from the tumult of battle he has passed to the songs of paradise!

QUEST. 11. Who have Died this year?

James Floy, Buel Goodsell, John Kennaday, J. Ellis, Raphael Gilbert—5.

1. Rev. JAMES FLOY, D.D., was born in the city of New York Aug. 20, 1806, of pious and highly respectable parents. He received his academical and collegiate education at Columbia College, New York. His conversion to God, according to a record left by himself, occurred Feb. 13, 1831, during a revival in the Allen-street Church. He united with the Bowery Village (now Seventh-street) Methodist Episcopal Church, and for some time acted as teacher and superintendent of a Sunday-school for colored persons under the care of that Church. He was also appointed a class-leader at an early stage of his connection with the Church. Respecting his entrance upon the work of the ministry, we learn from the record referred to, that "from childhood he had an impression on his mind that he should be a minister;" and after his conversion that impression was renewed, and strengthened his heart. He was licensed to preach in February, 1833, two years after his conversion, and for the next two years he filled the office of a local preacher. He was received into the traveling ministry as a probationer at the session of the New York Conference in the spring of 1835, and appointed to Riverhead, Long Island, N. Y. His subsequent appointments were: 1836-37, Hempstead Circuit; 1837-39, Harlem Mission. At the conference for the latter year he was ordained elder, and appointed to Kortright Circuit, Delaware County, N. Y., but on account of the severe and protracted illness of his wife, rendering her removal impracticable, he was released from the appointment. From 1840 to 1842 he was at Washington-street Church, Brooklyn; 1842-44, Danbury, Conn.; 1844-46, Madison-street, New York; 1847-48, Middletown, Conn.; 1848-50, New Haven, Conn.; 1850-52, Madison-street, New York, second time; 1852-54, Twenty-seventh-street, New York; 1854-56, presiding elder of New York District; 1856-60, Editor of National Magazine and Secretary of the Tract Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church; 1861-63, Seventh-street, New York; 1863, Beekman Hill, New York.

Brother Floy was a distinguished man among his brethren. Three times his conference honored itself by electing him a delegate to the General Conference. His appointments during the twenty-four years of his pastoral life strongly indicate the high appreciation that was held of his merits and capabilities; and it is believed that he never failed to leave any charge better than when he came to it. He also took a lively interest in the general affairs of the Church; was diligent in his attendance on the sessions of his conference, where his influence was always potent. For twenty-eight successive years he filled the places assigned to him by the Church faithfully and successfully. As a preacher, he was clear, direct, and earnest; eminently evangelical in doctrine; in exhortation, pungent and effective; elevated in matter, and rigidly correct in style and manner.

His death was sudden, and quite unexpected by either himself or his friends. On the evening of Oct. 14, 1863, in his study, with only a son with him, he was seized with apoplexy, and expired almost instantly. We cannot better close this brief notice than by adopting the closing words of a fuller memoir elsewhere published: "His death, so sudden and unexpected, brought sadness to many, who only then realized how much he was beloved. But the circumstances of his demise were not comfortless. Quietly in his own house, and in the arms of a loved and dutiful son, without lingering sickness, emaciation, or senility, for his eye was not dim, nor his natural strength abated, he rendered up his spirit in the faith and hope in which he had lived. A career, not entirely without its foibles and defects, yet as nearly so as often falls to the lot of erring mortals, was accomplished; a character, perhaps not faultless, but elevated far above the common level of humanity, had been formed and exercised; and now in the early postmeridian of such a life it ceased on earth to recommence in heaven."

2. Rev. BUEL GOODSELL was born in the town of Dover, Dutchess County, N. Y., July 25, 1793. Of his childhood and youth we have no special information other than that at about the age of sixteen he made a profession of religion, and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church in the place of his birth. In the year 1814 he was received on trial in the New York Conference, (which then included all the territory now embraced in the New York, New York East, and Troy Conferences,) and was appointed to the Granville Circuit, in the States of Massachusetts and Connecticut; in 1815, Stowe Circuit, Vt.; 1816, Chazy Circuit, N. Y.; 1817, Middleburgh, Vt.; 1818-19, St. Alban's Circuit, Vt.; 1820-21, Chazy Circuit again; 1822, Charlotte Circuit, Vt.; 1823-26, presiding elder on the Champlain District, including all the territory on the east side of Lake Champlain back to the Green Mountains, and from two to three tiers of towns on the west side of the lake in the State of New York; 1827, Fitchtown, N. Y.; 1828-29, Schenectady, N. Y.; 1830-31, New York; 1832-33, Troy; 1834-37, presiding elder on the Troy District; 1838-39, John-street, N. Y.; 1840-41, North Newburgh, N. Y.;

1842–43, White Plains, N. Y.; 1844–45, York-street, Brooklyn; 1846–47, Willett-street, N. Y.; 1848–49, Norwalk, Conn.; 1850–51, Hempstead, L. I.; 1852–53, New Rochelle, N. Y.; 1854, East Brooklyn, L. I.; 1855–58, presiding elder of the Long Island District; 1859–60, Greenpoint, Brooklyn; 1861–62, Rockaway, L. I.; 1863, East Chester and City Island, N. Y. He went to his appointment the next Sabbath after receiving it, and preached with great power, greatly exciting the hopes and strengthening the faith of the brethren. He returned the next day (Monday) for his family and effects. The latter part of the same week he set out with his wife and daughter in his own carriage for their new home, was arrested by disease on the way, called on his friend Dr. Van Ness, in Brooklyn, where he received all the attention that affection and medical skill could suggest, and after lingering about a fortnight, amid alternate hopes and fears for the results, he died in great peace and holy triumph on the fourth of May.

Brother Goodsell was a laborious, faithful, and successful servant of the Lord Jesus. He had acquired some knowledge of the natural sciences, as also of the Latin and Greek languages, and quite too much to admit of his making an ostentatious pedantic display of his acquirements. To those who loved and longed for highly intellectual food, and were somewhat fastidious as to its preparation, and the manner of its communication, he might have been more of an apostle had he been more rigidly observant of the rule to express his ideas in as few words as possible, consistent with perspicuity; but to such as cared only or principally to feel deeply, to be made to weep or to shout, he was a workman that needed not to be ashamed. He had many living epistles to his ministry, some of whom had preceded him to the better country, even the heavenly; others are on their way thither. Soon they will all meet, and having, as we trust it will then be found, turned many to righteousness, he will shine as a star of the first magnitude in the firmament of heaven.

3. Rev. John Kennaday, D.D.—To the list of sudden deaths occurring of recent years among the members of the New York East Conference must be added the name of Rev. John Kennaday. While in the act of delivering an exhortation in the chapel of Washington-street Methodist Episcopal Church, Brooklyn, on the evening of Nov. 13, 1863, he was struck with apoplexy, and after lying in a state of unconsciousness for about twenty-four hours he breathed his last. Up to the time of his death he was actively engaged in the work of the ministry, so that he literally "ceased at once to work and live." He was born in the city of New York Nov. 3, 1800. In early life he was a printer, devoting even then, however, his leisure, as far as practicable, to literary pursuits. He was converted, under the ministry of the Rev. Heman Bangs, in the John-street Methodist Episcopal Church. Mr. Bangs thus describes very graphically the awakening and conversion of young Kennaday: "It was in John-street—the occasion being a love-feast. Our city (New York) was then one circuit, and we all came together for love-feast into one church, and, consequently, the church was crowded. Among others, a young man arose in the back part of the house, near the gallery, and began to speak. The moment he opened his mouth it seemed like pouring oil on Aaron's head; the odor was such that it seemed to diffuse itself all over the congregation; and the fragrance was such that every one seemed to catch it. The inquiry was made: 'Whose silvery voice is that?' I believe that eloquence which he then manifested, and which seemed to be natural, and easy, and unaffected, continued with him to the last, more or less."

In this way did the public life of Dr. Kennaday begin, and it was prosecuted without abatement of energy or zeal for full forty years. In less than a year from his conversion he was licensed to exhort, and shortly thereafter he was employed by a presiding elder in New Jersey. Of this ministerial experience he says in his diary: "In every twenty-eight days I preached forty-two sermons, walked one hundred and thirteen miles, and rode one hundred and fifty-two, making in two hundred and fifty-two days three hundred and sixty-nine sermons; traveled on foot one thousand and seventeen miles, and rode one thousand three hundred and sixty-eight, besides leading classes, attending Sunday-schools, visiting alms-houses, etc." In May, 1823, he was received on probation by the New York Conference. In 1823–24 he traveled Kingston Circuit; 1825, Bloomingburgh Circuit; 1826, transferred to Philadelphia Conference, and was stationed that and the following year at Paterson, N. J.; 1828–29, Newark, N. J.; 1830–31, Wilmington, Del.; 1832, Morristown, N. J.; 1833, retransferred to New York Conference, and stationed in Brooklyn; 1835–36, preacher in charge of New York East Circuit, embracing all the churches east of Broadway; 1837–38, Newburgh, N. Y.; 1839, retransferred to Philadelphia Conference, and that and the following year stationed at Union Church, Philadelphia; 1841–42, Trinity Church, Philadelphia; 1843–44, second time to Wilmington, Del.; at the close of his pastoral term the Church was divided peacefully, and a new Church organized, called St. Paul's, and for the two following years Dr. Kennaday was its pastor; 1847–48, again pastor of Union Church, Philadelphia; 1849, Nazareth Church, in that city; 1850, transferred to New York East Conference, and that and the following year was pastor of Pacific-street Church, Brooklyn; 1852–53, returned to Washington-street Church; 1854–55, First Church, New Haven, Conn.; 1856–57, second time to Pacific-street Church, Brooklyn; 1858–59, third time to Washington-street Church, Brooklyn; 1860–61, reappointed to First Church, New Haven, Conn.; 1862, Hartford, Conn.; and in 1863 he was appointed presiding elder of Long Island District, which office he was administering at the time of his decease.

The noticeable fact of this record is the number of times Dr. Kennaday was returned as pastor to churches that he had previously served. Of the forty years of his ministerial life twenty-two years, or more than half, was spent in five churches. No fact better attests his long-continued popularity and his power of winning the affections of the people. "As a Christian pastor," says Bishop Janes, "Dr. Kennaday was eminent in his gifts, in his attainments, and in his devotion to his sacred calling, and in the seals God gave to his ministry. In the pulpit, he was clear; in the statement of his subject, abundant and most felicitous in his illustrations, and pathetic and impressive in his applications. His oratory was of a high order. His presence, his voice, his fluency of speech, his graceful action, his fine imagination, and his fervent feelings, rendered his elocution effective and powerful, and gave to his preaching great attractiveness and popularity. Out of the pulpit, the ease and elegance of his manners, the vivacity and sprightliness of his conversational powers, the tenderness of his sympathy, and the kindness of his conduct toward the afflicted and needy, and his affectionate notice of and efforts for the childhood and youth of his congregation, made him the greatly endeared and beloved pastor."

In many respects Dr. Kennaday was the model of a Christian minister. He had the pastoral spirit and loved the pastoral work. To preach Christ and watch over Christ's flock seemed his highest joy. There was not a single ministerial duty which he did not perform well. Preaching, exhortation, and pastoral visitation seemed alike easy to him. His readiness and tact never deserted him. An unfailing good sense instinctively suggested to him what was appropriate to each occasion. He was, for these reasons, one of our most available men for every public service that could be required of a preacher. His ministry in the Philadelphia Conference, from 1839 to 1850, is remembered there to this day as one of extraordinary success; for it was everywhere fruitful of good from its beginning to its close.

Sudden death is to the feelings of the living who contemplate it a most painful visitation; but dying in the act of offering Christ to men as an all-sufficient Saviour relieves sudden death of much of the painful impressions which it otherwise makes upon us. We often say of ourselves,

"Happy if with my latest breath
I may but gasp His name;
Preach him to all, and cry in death,
Behold, behold the Lamb!"

Just such a death was vouchsafed to Dr. Kennaday. He did literally

"Preach him to all, and cry in death,
Behold, behold the Lamb!"

Like Fletcher of Madeley, he was taken from his pulpit to his death-bed, and thence to his grave. Let us follow him, as he followed Christ. The lesson of Dr. Kennaday's career is an illustration of the beauty and joy of a life devoted to the pastorate. Among the Churches his name is as ointment poured forth. But better than all, his name is registered on high with those who have turned many to righteousness, and "shine as the stars for ever and ever."

4. Rev. John Ellis was born in Wales in 1815, and died in the city of Brooklyn on October 22, 1863. He was converted in his twelfth year, and from that time devoted himself with much zeal to the cause of Christ. He began to preach in the twentieth year of his age. He afterward removed to England, where he labored for several years for the salvation of his fellow-countrymen. From England he came to America, and in 1851-52 was stationed in Cincinnati; in 1853 at Ironton; in 1854-55 at Gallia Welsh Mission. From 1856 to 1860 he was at the Welsh Mission in the city of New York. In 1861 he became superannuated, which relation he continued to the time of his death.

When multiplied infirmities forbade the attempt to preach the word, he sought out the flock, and led them into green pastures of Gospel truth and experience. It is said by those who heard him in Wales that he was remarkable for eloquence and attracted crowds to his ministry. Brother Ellis was a man of a meek and quiet spirit, a dignified deportment, and a genial and generous nature. He was a diligent student of the holy Scriptures, his mind was richly stored with theological literature, and his style in the pulpit was clear, elevated, and forcible. His highest honor was the fidelity with which he discharged his sacred duties, and the testimony of his now scattered people is that he was to them a faithful minister of Christ.

Thus, at the age of forty-seven, he expired far from the scenes of his childhood, after doing the work of evangelist and pastor and making full proof of his ministry. He has left a wife and six children to be remembered by the Church in the days of their darkness, which are many. His dying testimony was, "I am trusting in the atonement and all is clear."

5. Rev. Raphael Gilbert, of the New York East Conference, died at Whitestone, Queens county, June 6, aged 67. He was born at Berlin, Conn., in 1798. Though circumspect in his moral deportment as he attained to the period of accountability, and always respectful toward religion, yet he lived without a personal interest in its enjoyment until approaching the period of early manhood. His translation "into the kingdom of God's dear Son" was not a little remarkable. Entirely unacquainted with Methodism, and without the slightest intercourse with any of that people, and, indeed, without any of the ordinary facilities of religious instruction, he became deeply impressed with a conviction of the divine holiness and a sense of his own impurity. His feelings were deep, and yet he was wholly unable to assign any cause for these impressions. Great tenderness of heart and constant contrition attended him. "Not knowing the Scriptures, neither the power of God," he sought no instruction from the spiritually minded, with whom, however, his intercourse was very limited. Praying and weeping, he sought constant retirement, and continued for many weeks in this strange course of exercise. On one occasion, after an earnest effort in prayer, he arose from his knees feeling a remarkable transition from sorrow to joy. Even this change was as "a light shining in darkness," "and the darkness comprehended it not." On stating his feelings to a dear friend, he was told, "You are converted. God has come to you and given you a new heart." In a little time he sought an interview with the Rev. Reuben Harris, the preacher upon the circuit, from whom he attained great encouragement, and under whom he attached himself to the Church. Brother Harris was a man of great simplicity of manners, utterly void of guile. It was fortunate that the young disciple became so early acquainted with one of such purity of character. Young Gilbert soon commenced a course of usefulness, and a deportment which, continuing through all his years, commended him always to the Church. In 1827 he was admitted a probationer into the New York Conference, and appointed to New Windsor Circuit, on which he continued the following year; in 1829, Wethersfield Circuit; in 1830-31, Essex Circuit; in 1832-33, Woodbury Circuit; in 1834, Stratford Circuit; in 1835-36, York-street, Brooklyn; in 1837-38, Seventh-street, New York; from 1839 to 1842 he remained superannuated through the failure of his health; in 1843 he was appointed supernumerary to Madison-street, New York; from 1844 to 1857 he again occupied a superannuated position; in 1858 he was appointed to Wethersfield; in 1859-60, Astoria; in 1861, supernumerary, and taking charge of Astoria; in 1862-63, Whitestone, where his labors were finished. During the seasons in which he held the place of a superannuated man his labors often exceeded his strength, and it was with no little difficulty that he was restrained. His usual appearance indicated comparative health and strength, but a severe affection of the throat and head, and a general debility, often led to sudden prostration, and upon the slightest pulpit effort. During much of the time in which impaired health prevented his labors in the ministry he engaged in business, which he conducted actively, but never to the detriment of his religious zeal, and to an extent so limited as not to entangle him. Through those scenes "where many a mightier has been slain," he passed in safety, never faltering in integrity, nor incurring the slightest imputation. At the conference held in Williamsburgh last spring such was his healthful appearance, and such his cheerfulness, that several of his friends congratulated him upon his improved health. One of his friends said to him, surprised at his seeming vigor, "Why, Brother Gilbert, do you never mean to die?" "No," replied he with a smile, "I do not expect to die; I expect to fall asleep in Jesus." This expression was remarkably verified as the time came when God took him. He was attacked by a violent cold, terminating in congestion of the lungs, about the last of May, and on the evening of June 5, without a pang, or the slightest sign of suffering, he so gently slept in Jesus that none knew the hour of his death from that of rest. Through his illness the same calm reliance upon God, always so conspicuous in his life, was manifest. His joy frequently found utterance in his exclamations. "Halleluiah!" "Victory!" "Victory in the blood of the Lamb!" were frequent utterances while he had strength to speak. Brother Gilbert was an unaffected Christian, humble and ardent in spirit. His eyes seemed a fountain of tears, so that his preaching was unusually tender. Pathos, earnestness, and plainness characterized his appeals, while the absence of all guile rendered them impressive. As a friend, he was ardent and reliable. No one familiar with his Christian walk, his industry, and religious care in all things would ever hesitate to say of him, "Mark the perfect man, and behold the upright, for the end of that man is peace."

Quest. 11. Who have Died this year?

J. L. Dickerson, N. Rice—2.

1. Rev. Josiah L. Dickerson died May 16, 1863, in Spencertown, Columbia County, N. Y., aged sixty-seven. Our deceased brother was born January 20, 1797, in Newton, Litchfield County, Conn. Left at an early age without the counsel and restraints of paternal care, through the grace of God, in his eighteenth year, he was brought to the knowledge of a justified state, and became a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Bethlehem, Litchfield County, Conn. After being licensed to exhort, the Church, seeing in him the promise of greater usefulness, gave him a license to preach. For eighteen years he labored as a local preacher with acceptability and usefulness in his native county. In 1822 he was ordained deacon by Bishop Roberts, and in 1835 received the ordination of elder at the hands of Bishop Hedding, at which time he was received in the New York Conference, and successively filled the following appointments: Redding, Weston and Newton, Norwalk, Bedford, Tarrytown and Pleasantville, Cortlandt, Pawlings, Tyringham, Sheffield, North-east, Spencertown, Tyringham, Egremont, and North Hillsdale. His health failing in 1857, the conference granted him a superannuated relation, in which he continued until the close of life. In November, 1862, he was stricken with paralysis; from this he never fully recovered, yet was comfortable in body, retaining his mental faculties. On the sixteenth of May last he was again stricken with the same disease; this time death ensued in a few hours. Brother Dickerson, before he was incapacitated by physical weakness, or prevented by domestic afflictions, was a faithful and, consequently, a successful minister of the Gospel. He had the deportment of a Christian gentleman; was sympathetic and kind in feeling. Of more than ordinary ability in the pulpit, he was well fitted to win and retain the respect of the people committed to his charge, and instruct and profit them. Amid all the changes and occasional privations attendant upon the itinerancy; the painful bereavements that so frequently thinned the family circle; the weighty afflictions that befell him in the loss of health, laying him aside from the active work of the ministry, he did not murmur; his trust was in God. From the manner of his decease we have no death-bed testimony to record. We need none. In the calm and trusting frame of mind he possessed before the fatal stroke was permitted to fall, we confidently gather proof that he has entered upon the reward of Christ's faithful followers in heaven.

2. Rev. NATHAN RICE was born June 10, 1792, in Coventry, R. I., and died in Washingtonville, N. Y., Feb. 21, 1864. His father died when he was four years old. His mother was a pious member of the Freewill-Baptist Church. The fervent prayers of this sainted mother sometimes awakened the subject of this memoir from his midnight slumbers. He was the youngest of seven children. The family during his infancy removed to Great Barrington, Mass. The first sermon he heard by a Methodist minister was from the late Rev. William Jewett. At about the age of seventeen he was led to the Saviour by the instrumentality of the Rev. Phineas Rice, deceased. He joined the Methodist Episcopal Church in Lee, Mass., and continued an active and useful member for ten years. In 1819 he joined the New York Conference with Daniel Coe, John Bangs, Orin Pier, G. Coles, and S. D. Ferguson. The conference then embraced all the territory included in the present Troy, New York East, and New York Conferences. He was successively appointed to the following fields of labor, namely: Delaware, Sullivan, Petersburgh, Granville, Conn., Pittston, Warren, Saratoga, Middletown, N. Y., Sullivan, New Windsor, Phillipstown, Bedford, New Milford, Huntington, Smithtown, Westhampton, North Hempstead, Woodstock, Marlborough, and Rossville. In 1854, worn down with toil on these distant fields of labor, he was obliged to retire from the itinerant field. Since then, as a superannuated minister, he has continued to labor as his strength and health would admit. Part of this time he has acted as a colporteur, and part of the time he has supplied pulpits which have been temporarily vacant by the absence or sickness of a pastor. To the measure of his ability he has spent these years of age and infirmity in doing good. No longer able to maintain his position in the front rank of the sacramental host, where he had stood for thirty-five years, he cheerfully fell back, and for the last ten years has formed a part of that heroic rear guard made up of veteran warriors. His last battle was nobly fought, and death is vanquished. Another good man, another good minister, has finished his earthly course; another star, less brilliant than some, but gentle and pure as any, has hid itself in Heaven's own light.

Brother Rice was a true patriot. He looked upon the present rebellion as a horrible crime against God and humanity, and anxiously desired to live to see it overthrown. Until almost the last hours of his life he eagerly inquired after the news from the seat of war. Our sainted brother was an example of simplicity. There was no display in or out of the pulpit. His method of preaching was plain, direct, earnest, and interwoven with a happy personal experience. His unmistakable aim was to do good, and God honored his ministry with great success. Many who linger on earth, many who are now with him, were saved by his instrumentality. "He counted not his life dear unto himself, so that he might win souls to Christ." On circuits very large, far apart, and sometimes exceedingly rough, he crossed mountains, encountered winter storms, and forded rivers, that he might attain the object of his mission, the salvation of men. Without murmur or complaint, he steadily pursued his course. His life of sacrifice and toil is now over. The last river, death, is forded, and the bliss of a great reward, a home unswept by winter storms, is his forever. Kindness was a law of his life. He delighted in the welfare of others. His was a sympathetic nature. It is doubted whether he had an enemy. All classes of various denominations, ministers and people, vied with each other in showing their tokens of respect and sympathy during his last sickness. There was a humble, unaffected goodness about him which drew all hearts toward him. His attachment to his family was a marked characteristic. Sickness, pain, death, could not quench this steady flame. Indeed, the only regret he manifested at approaching death was that it would take him from his dear children. It was one of the comforting assurances of his declining days that they were all the followers of Jesus; and well did they reciprocate his love by their tireless ministrations day and night during his sickness.

It only remains to gather up a few of the precious words which fell from the lips of our brother as he "still went on and talked," catching glimpses of the heavenly city by the way, and coming up at last to the mount of vision, where the calm unclouded glory shone steadily about him. The arrangements for his funeral and burial were made by himself. He expressed a strong desire, if it were God's will, to visit the conference once more and see his brother ministers; but in anticipation that he might not be able, he said to me, "Tell the conference the religion I have preached for forty-five years sustains and comforts me now. I love my brethren in the ministry; I expect to meet them in heaven." During a visit, about one month before his departure, as we were about to offer prayer, we sang,

"I would not live alway; I ask not to stay
Where storm after storm rises dark o'er the way;
The few lurid mornings that dawn on us here
Are enough for life's joys, full enough for its cheer.

"I would not live alway: no—welcome the tomb!
Since Jesus hath lain there, I dread not its gloom;
There sweet be my rest till he bid me arise,
To hail him in triumph descending the skies."

During the singing his whole countenance glowed with exultant joy, and while the family wept he shouted aloud the praises of God. At his request, about three weeks before his end, several ministers of his own and other churches, together with the family physician, met to join with him in commemorating the sufferings and death of Jesus. To him it was to be the "last supper." His three daughters were present, and one of his sons had just returned from the army to receive the last blessing of a dying father, and then go back to fight for humanity and God. The desire he had for this passover, the presence of his brethren and family, and above all, the presence of the Master, inspired him with unwonted strength. In a peaceful, happy frame he said, "God's grace is sufficient for me. He wonderfully sustains me. The Gospel which I have preached for forty-five years is my comfort and support now. It never gave me more comfort. I have no doubt. I am sometimes tempted, but not overcome. I have been looking over that heavenly country; it looks very pleasant to me. Many are there I have known and loved; I expect to get there and see them. I may recover; I rather think I shall; I have prayed for this; but I have asked in submission to God's will. I should be glad to stay a little longer on account of my family. They have been very dear to me; they have watched over me day and night during my sickness; they have twined themselves around my heart." His emotions overcame him for a while; then he resumed, "I should be glad to stay with them a little longer, but I leave it all to God; 'for me to live is Christ, to die is gain.' I have had some hard fields of labor; long rides, streams to ford, mountains to cross. I have suffered from cold and hunger, I have abounded and been in want, but if I had my life to live over again, I had rather be a preacher of the Gospel than President of the United States." These and similar sentences were uttered at intervals, as strength would admit. As he was unable to kneel, he sat in his easy chair during the sacramental services. When he, who had so often ministered it to others, "took the cup" for the last time, the glory within him broke forth in ascriptions of praise to Him who hath loved us and given himself for us.

Still nearer his end he said, "I have just thought what a glorious place heaven is. I have listened, and could hear the angels with their golden harps: such heavenly music!" His voice faltered; he was overcome by his emotions. Then, rallying, continued, "How happy shall we be when we join that innumerable throng, when they fall down with the four and twenty elders and worship Him that sitteth upon the throne for ever and ever!" On Saturday afternoon, the day before he died, being in great pain, he said, "I cannot last long. I should like to live a little longer on account of my dear children; but the will of the Lord be done." When asked if his trust was strong in God, "Yes," he answered emphatically, "yes, bless the Lord. I am ready to go whenever the Lord wills it." On another occasion he said, "I have gained a great victory; I can now give up my children to God." Shortly before he died he repeated several times, "Life's work is done." When so near his end that he could not speak, he pressed the hand of his daughter as a token of recognition and victory.

B. Nichols, G. H. Salisbury, G. W. Barney, E. W. R. Allen—4.

1. Rev. Browning Nichols was born Aug. 9, 1799, in Rhode Island. Early in life he removed to the state of New York, and about the year 1817 was united in marriage to his now bereaved companion. He embraced religion and united with the Methodist Episcopal Church in the fall of 1830. About the year 1834 he was licensed to preach, and soon became an esteemed local preacher, and was frequently employed as a supply on different circuits. At the session of the Black River Conference at Watertown in 1853 he was received on trial and appointed to South Butler. He served successively, with zeal and usefulness, the following charges: In 1854-55, Three Mile Bay; 1856-57, Natural Bridge; 1858-59, Cicero; 1860-61, Durhamville; 1862, Steuben. In 1863 he was appointed to Phœnix and Belgium, where he labored very efficiently and acceptably. He was greatly beloved by the people of his charge, and they were confidently expecting his return; but, alas! he was suddenly removed from their midst. He closed his useful life and labors on the morning of April 1, 1864, in great peace. He sleeps in Jesus.

"Servant of God, well done;
Thy glorious warfare's past;
The battle's fought, the victory's won,
And thou art crown'd at last."

2. Rev. George H. Salisbury, of the Black River Conference, was born in Brownville, N. Y., December 27, 1826, and died at Hermon, N. Y., November 27, 1863. He was a son of Rev. Nathaniel Salisbury, of the Black River Conference. The early part of his life, previous to his entering the ministry, was spent in school, in the successive relations of scholar and teacher. His habits were studious, and his education was thorough, as far as he had found means to prosecute it. He was converted at a camp-meeting in Hannibal, N. Y., August 30, 1851, and soon after joined the Methodist Episcopal Church. He was united in marriage with Miss Marietta H. West, of Pulaski, N. Y., May 30, 1852. He joined the Black River Conference on probation in 1853, in Watertown. He was successively admitted into full membership and to deacon's and elder's orders, and ordained as soon as the disciplinary limitations of time would allow. He continued in his holy calling until he was arrested and laid aside by disease and death. His fields of labor were successively Collamer and Palermo, each one year; South Mexico, two years; Cleveland, one year; Rose, two years; Wolcott, two years; Hermon, one year and seven months.

Brother Salisbury was always acceptable and useful among his people, enjoying a rising popularity, and was generally instrumental on his charges in the conversion of souls. Regularity and system were prominent characteristics of his method of life. His journal gives evidence of the accuracy with which he marked passing events, and particularly his own duties in the ministry. He aimed at constant progress and improvement in his pulpit labors; hence, while he preached during his ministry thirteen hundred and forty-four different times, he used eleven hundred and twelve different texts. His discourses were delivered with an elevation of language and a solemn earnestness which commanded the admiration of his hearers.

Soon after his removal to Hermon his health failed, and for the greater part of the year he was able to preach but once on the Sabbath. At the close of the year, however, his official board unanimously requested his return, preferring to retain him, in view of his superior pulpit talents, notwithstanding his poor health, to taking the risk of a change. He preached but once the second year, when his health completely failed, and his disease by gradual progress terminated in one form of consumption. During his sufferings and on his dying bed he illustrated the virtues of a Christian pastor. His mind rested to the last with confidence upon the atonement of Christ as the meritorious ground of his salvation, and he looked forward with hope and joy to the fruition of his heavenly inheritance. In illustration of the direction of his thoughts in the closing hours of his life, he requested the fifty-third chapter of Isaiah to be read at his last season of family worship; and the feeling of his heart was continually, "For me to live is Christ, and to die is gain." "I am in a strait betwixt two, having a desire to depart and to be with Christ, which is far better." He died in great peace, with a holy joy radiating from his eye and a placid smile upon his manly face.

He rests from his labors, and his works do follow him. May his godly mantle fall upon his brethren still toiling in the ranks! At his own request his remains were conveyed to Wolcott, N. Y., for interment.

3. Rev. Godfrey W. Barney was born in Herkimer County, N. Y., in the year 1795. He moved to Henderson, Jefferson County, when young, with his parents. He professed religion in his youth, and united with the Methodist Episcopal Church. He joined the Genesee Conference on probation as a traveling preacher in the year 1827, and was appointed to Potsdam Circuit; was readmitted on trial in 1829, and appointed to Malone Circuit 1829–30; in 1831 was received into full connection and appointed to Fort Covington Circuit; 1832, Parishville; 1833, Waddington; 1834–35, Carthage; in 1836 became a member of the Black River Conference. From 1837 to 1847 he was superannuated. In 1848 he was made effective, and appointed to Booneville. From 1849 to 1863 he was superannuated. On May 12, 1863, after a severe and protracted illness, he fell asleep in Jesus. He rests from his labors, and his works do follow him.

4. Rev. Eli W. R. Allen joined the Genesee Conference on trial in 1825, and was appointed to Steuben Circuit, which he served two years. He was received into full connection in 1827, and appointed to Westmoreland; 1828–29, Little Falls; 1830, he became a member of Oneida Conference, and was appointed to Palatine Bridge; 1831–32, Marcellus; 1833, Syracuse; 1834–35, Sandy Creek; 1836, he became a member of Black River Conference, and was appointed to Herkimer; 1837–38, Rome; 1839, Camden; 1840, Vienna; 1841–42, Marcy; 1843, superannuated; 1844–45, Drew Station; 1846–47, Cleveland; 1848–49, Liverpool; 1850–63, superannuated. He died in Amber, March 3, 1864, in great peace.

Quest. 11. Who have Died this year?

E. Spear, J. F. Chamberlain, A. Hayward, L. H. Hooker—4.

1. Rev. Elijah Spear was born in Hartford, Vt., in 1795, was converted and commenced preaching in Cabot in 1814, entered the traveling connection in 1819, was ordained deacon at Barre, Vt., June 24, 1821, and elder at Providence, R. I., June 15, 1823, by Bishop George. In 1827 he was returned superannuated, and sustained that relation most of the time for the remainder of his life. He preached but little for many years. In his last hours he was resigned, trustful, peaceful, having the assurance of his acceptance with God and of his final salvation. He died in Pomfret, Vt., Dec. 27, 1863; and but three days after his decease, Dec. 30, his worthy companion, with whom he had traveled on life's pilgrimage for more than half a century, followed him to the spirit-world, and, we trust, a better land.

2. Rev. Josiah F. Chamberlain was born Sept. 6, 1786, and died March 26, 1864. He embraced religion in 1800, and experienced full salvation when about seventeen years of age. He commenced preaching in 1811, and was faithful and successful in his labors, and many souls were given him as seals of his ministry. He was greatly afflicted for a few of the last years of his life, yet, as he asserted, "God gave him suffering grace." He was a worthy man, lived a useful life, and died a peaceful death. "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord."

3. Rev. Ardin Hayward died in East Barnard May 5, 1863, aged twenty-eight years. He was converted and united with the Methodist Episcopal Church some ten years since. He spent about one year at the Biblical Institute at Concord, N. H.; but so strong was his desire to engage in the active work of the ministry that he left the Institute and united with the Vermont Conference on probation, and was stationed at Berlin, where he labored successfully one year. He was then appointed to the West Bradford charge, where he labored with great acceptance for two years; the following year he labored at East Barnard and Pomfret, greatly beloved and esteemed by his people. At the conference at the close of the year he was ordained elder, and returned to the charge not to labor, but to die.

He was a good man: reliable, studious, and faithful in his work. By this mysterious Providence a young man of much promise has been removed from the Church militant to the Church triumphant. His last words were: "Jesus is strangely precious to me; he was never so precious before."

> "Servant of God, well done!
> Thy glorious warfare's past;
> The battle's fought, the race is won,
> And thou art crowned at last."

4. Rev. Levings H. Hooker died in Springfield, June 21, 1863, aged thirty-eight years, eight months, and ten days. He was converted at seventeen years of age. Two years after his conversion he engaged in trade, in which he continued until he was twenty-five years of age. Being impressed with a call to the ministry, and feeling the necessity of a preparation for so great a work, he entered the Biblical Institute at Concord, N. H., in the winter of 1850, and remained there for more than three years, graduating in the class of 1853. He united with the Vermont Conference a few months before leaving the Institute, and in succession received appointments on the following charges, namely: Middlesex, Randolph, Pittsfield, and Brattleborough, on which charges he labored two years each. He was then appointed presiding elder of Springfield District. At the end of two years' service on the district, being unable to continue his labors, he was appointed financial agent of Springfield Wesleyan Seminary. Soon after he received this appointment he was attacked with fatal sickness, which was borne with great fortitude, and after one short week of painful suffering he closed his earthly course. He performed his work with ability and success, and passed from the scene of labor in sacred triumph.

QUEST. 11. Who have Died this year?

Irving A. Wardwell.

Rev. IRVING A. WARDWELL was born in Penobscot, March 8, 1831, and died in Donaldsonville, La., July 22, 1863, aged thirty-two years and four months.

Brother Wardwell sought and found salvation in Christ in early youth. He was licensed to preach in the year 1856, and joined the East Maine Conference in 1857. He labored successively on the Lubec, Cherryfield, Mount Desert, Trenton, Hancock, and Orrington Center charges. In September, 1862, the fire of patriotism burned so high upon the altar of his heart, and feeling that his country had need of his services, he enlisted in the Twenty-second Maine Volunteers, and went forth to do battle for his God and country. Some may question the propriety of this step; but our deceased brother had but one opinion as it regarded himself; he felt to the last that he was in the path of duty. His course in the camp was in keeping with this sentiment. He carried his Christian and ministerial character with him; and while he faithfully discharged his duties as a private, he visited the sick, attended funerals, and preached to his comrades in arms. In March, 1863, he was appointed Chaplain of the Twenty-eighth Maine Regiment. Officers and men testify to his usefulness, and to the high esteem in which he was held in his new position. But he served them only a brief period. On the 6th of July he was seized with typhoid fever, which soon ended his days. The purity of his previous life, the devotedness of his later labors, and letters to loved ones, furnish evidence that he died in the Lord.

J. A. Berry, Philip Plummer, J. Mitchell—3.

1. Rev. John A. Berry, M. D., united with the Methodist Episcopal Church in 1842, was admitted on trial into the North Ohio Conference in the autumn of 1854, and labored with great success and acceptability on Roscoe, Chesterville, and Fredericktown Circuits. In 1859 he was appointed Agent of the Ohio Wesleyan Female College, where he labored with his usual success; but a severe spinal affection (which ultimated in his death) compelled him to resign the agency. His next and last appointment was Mount Gilead Station, where he labored faithfully for about one year and a half; and although he had suffered severely, and almost constantly, for four years, yet he could not be induced to rest until he reached the point where his strong will and burning zeal could bear him no further, and he was compelled to stop. He sought for medical relief in Granville, Ohio, where he spent the last days of his life. Some time in December, 1863, Rev. John A. Berry parted with his family, closed up his connection with the North Ohio Conference, and passed to the better land.

Brother Berry left a lucrative profession when he joined this conference, yet he never claimed that he had made sacrifices in becoming one of God's messengers, hence he was cheerful in his work. He was emphatically a practical man, hence his success. Brief as was his ministerial career, yet hundreds were converted to God through his instrumentality. In every relation as a minister, whether in the pulpit, by the bedside of the dying, or in the social circle, John A. Berry, by the grace of God, was a success. We will cherish his memory, and deal kindly with the family he has left to our charge.

2. Rev. Philip Plummer was a native of Maryland. He came to Ohio, and settled near Mt. Vernon, in 1826; he was converted to God and united with the M. E. Church in Richwood in 1834; he was licensed to exhort in 1837, and to preach in 1841. He was received on trial in the North Ohio Conference in 1845, and in due time ordained to the full powers of the ministry.

Brother Plummer was a man of only medium talent as a preacher, but while he did not excel in his pulpit efforts, he had few equals as a pastor; his heart burned with love for souls; he was a faithful, godly man, and as the result of his faithfulness and zeal, he was permitted to witness the conversion of many souls. There are very many in the different fields where he was called to labor who rise up and call him blessed. It may be truly said of him, he was a good man and full of the Holy Ghost. For some months before his death he was a great sufferer, yet always patient and resigned. He died July 4, 1864, in the sixty-fourth year of his age. His last end was that of a righteous man, peaceful and triumphant.

3. Rev. John Mitchell was born in Alleghany County Pa., May 19, 1806, was converted to God in 1829, united with the M. E. Church and was licensed to preach in 1833. In 1808 his parents emigrated to the West and settled in Knox County, Ohio. Here his educational advantages were necessarily small, yet by energy and perseverance he acquired a good English education. In 1835 he traveled as a supply under the direction of a Presiding Elder, and in 1836 was received on trial in the traveling connection. Having in due time graduated to the regular ministry in the Church, he continued without interruption in the itinerancy until he was called from the militant to the Church triumphant. Such was his ability, acceptability, and usefulness that he occupied many of the best charges in the Conference, usually remaining two years on the same charge. As a preacher he was theologically sound, in manner earnest, and at times eloquent. His intellections were unique, his thoughts often taking forms and being expressed in language altogether peculiar to himself. As a temperance lecturer he had few equals. Of Irish descent, he was naturally genial, generous, and magnanimous. His companionship was musical, yet spiritual, and his friendship strong. He held in the confidence and affections of his brethren in the ministry and laity no ordinary place. He died of typhoid fever on the 23d day of November, 1863, after an illness of some five weeks. His exit was peaceful, his rest glorious.

QUEST. 12. Who have Died this year?

E. Colson.

Rev. EBENEZER COLSON departed this life December 16, 1864, in Monroeton, Pa., in the fifty-ninth year of his age.

Brother Colson was born in Plainfield, Mass., and was "born again" at the age of fifteen, in Madison County, N. Y. Father Cameron gave him license to preach the Gospel. He was received on trial in the Oneida Conference at the age of twenty-four, and was appointed to the Wyalusing

Circuit; he had here twenty-four preaching appointments every four weeks. Rev. C. Nash was his colleague, and Rev. H. Agard his presiding elder. The next year he was appointed to the Bainbridge Circuit. Here his health failed, and he was forced for a while to leave the work of the ministry. He received on this last charge forty-five dollars, counting all his receipts, and spent over ninety dollars. This was for but part of the year. Such pecuniary sacrifices were common in the early itinerancy. Bishop Morris reported having received for a whole year's service in his first ministry but sixty-five dollars. Such unpaid labor laid the foundation of the Methodist Church in this now rich and prosperous country. After years of sickness, Brother Colson was persuaded by friends, contrary to his own convictions, to enter the mercantile business, and failed in the commercial crisis in 1837. He had turned from his holy calling and lost all the property he had. From this time, recovering his health, he turned again to preaching the everlasting Gospel.

In 1840 he removed to Elmira, and recommenced the itinerant work on the Southport charge, being employed by the presiding elder, where he spent a part of the year. After conference he went to Millport as a supply, where he remained two years, then joined the Genesee Conference. He was successively appointed in 1844 to Canton; in 1845–46 to Tioga; in 1847 to Addison; in 1848–49 to Southport. In 1850 he was superannuated; in 1851 he was made effective, and appointed to Dresden, where he remained two years; in 1853–54 he was appointed to the Jacksonville charge; in 1855–56 to Fairville; in 1857-58 to South Sodus; in 1859–60 to Bethel and Voaks; in 1861–62 to Mainsburgh. Here, during the second year, his health failed again, and he was superannuated. His health improving at the close of the year, he hoped to be able to do light work, and accordingly an arrangement was made by his presiding elder, Rev. E. H. Cranmer, for him to preach at Monroeton as he should be able. The burden of moving was too much for him, and it soon became evident that his work was done. Death, by consumption, had fastened his hold upon him, but he was only a servant to introduce him to glory. He arranged his temporal affairs, and then gave himself to waiting for the chariot of the Lord to convey him home. He suffered much, but Christ was his support. He had preached Jesus able to save, and soon he illustrated in dying the precious saving power; in holy triumph he conquered, and in peace "rested from his labors." Christ was precious to him, and often he praised him with his voice, the voice of triumphant shouting as he was sinking into the stillness of death. Among his last expressions is this: "Jesus! yes, sweetest name ever sung! My all! my all!" One inquired of him, "What message have you to your brethren in the ministry?" "Tell them," said he, "to love Jesus." Precious message!

Brother Colson was a good man, and his record of Christian fidelity is with the Churches he served, and it is written in heaven, which is better. "He was a burning and a shining light." Those who knew him best loved him most. He was a true man, and a firm supporter of the right. He had not the brilliancy of the flashing meteor, but the perpetual effulgence of the fixed star, and his memory is precious as the perfumed ointment of the broken vessel. The Lord vouchsafed grace to our brother to convert sinners, and to edify the Church. At several of his appointments he had glorious revivals. At Jackson, on the Southport charge, over seventy were converted under his ministry. At Addison many were converted by his instrumentality, among them the Rev. M. Coyle of this conference, also Rev. J. Jeroloman, both of whom are active laborers with us in the Lord's vineyard. Surely he, being dead, yet speaketh.

He has left a widow and three small children for the prayers and sympathies of the Church. God's people, and especially his ministers, are admonished to be diligent in his work, for the "godly man ceaseth, the faithful fail from the congregation."

F. W. Conrad.

Rev. FREDERICK WILLIAM CONRAD died, of a consumption of a year's continuance, at Columbus, Wisconsin, on the 16th day of April, 1864. He was in the twenty-sixth year of his age, and in the ninth year of his itinerancy in the Methodist Episcopal Church. He suffered much distress during his illness, and was, we trust, perfected through suffering. On the Monday previous to his death, being very feeble, and apparently at the gates of death, he fell for a time into a slumber, and on awaking inquired, "Am I here yet? I thought I was in eternity." A while after he exclaimed, "Soon shall I behold thee in glory!" His earthly remains were deposited in the city cemetery at Columbus.

Zachariah Connell, Edward Estell.

1. Rev. ZACHARIAH CONNELL was born in Connellsville, Fayette County, Pa., September 11, 1794. In 1801 his father removed to the West, and settled in Adams County, Ohio. His early education was such as could be obtained in the West at that early day, which he diligently improved by all the means within his reach in after life. He was a faithful student and became a wise man. In the fall of 1811 he sought religion, and after a long and painful struggle he was clearly and powerfully converted by the Holy Spirit. Not long after his conversion, Mr. Connell was impressed with the conviction that it was his duty to preach the Gospel. He did not, however, immediately yield to that conviction; but when fully satisfied of duty, "he did not confer with flesh and blood," but gave himself to the great work, to which he believed he was called of God. Accordingly he was licensed to preach, and sent to fill appointments which had been made for him. The success which attended his labors satisfied the Church that they had not been mistaken in his call to the ministry; and after due trial and examination, he was recommended to the Ohio Annual Conference, and received into the traveling connection of the M. E. Church; and his name appears for the first time in the Minutes for 1818, in which year he was appointed to Whitewater Circuit. In 1819 he was appointed to Fleming Circuit, Kentucky; in 1820, to London; 1821, to White Oak; 1822, Scioto; 1823, Deer Creek; 1824, Pickaway; 1825, Kanawha district, to which he was reappointed for four years; in 1829, to Fairfield; 1830, Columbus Circuit; 1831, Lancaster; 1832, Pickaway; 1833, Brainbridge; 1834, Wesley Chapel, Cincinnati; 1835–36, New Richmond; 1837, Madison; 1838, Troy; 1839, Urbana district for four years; 1843, Lebanon district, for four years; 1847, Ripley; 1848–49, Hillsboro; 1850, West White Oak; 1851, Lancaster district, for four years; 1855, Columbus district, for four years; 1859–60, New Holland; 1861–63, Chilicothe district, where he closed his life and his labors together, and "ceased at once to work and live."

In person Mr. Connell was of medium height, erect and manly in his bearing, and of a most genial spirit, yet modest and retiring, both in the public council and in the private circle. Understanding thoroughly, as he did, the whole machinery of the Church, he was a most efficient and active member of his Conference; an able and judicious counselor, and an accurate and careful administrator of discipline. His judgment was clear and sound on all questions which might arise, either in the Quarterly or Annual Conference, and his decisions as a presiding officer were seldom if ever incorrect. As a presiding elder he was faithful to all the interests committed to him, both in regard to the charges and the preachers of his district. No presiding elder of his Conference had a larger share in the confidence and esteem of the preachers of his district than he.

Mr. Connell was on five several occasions called by his brethren of the Conference to represent them in the General Conference of the Church, where he was always found faithful to the trust committed to him.

As a minister he was well read in Christian theology, and understood thoroughly the doctrines of his own Church, and saw clearly the lines of discrimination between truth and error, however finely they might be drawn. As a preacher his manner, owing to a defect in the modulations of his voice, was not the most attractive, but his subject was always clearly stated and his points fairly made out; and when his heart grew warm under the inspiration of the Spirit, great power attended his ministry. He was a man of great faith, and in his pleadings before the mercy-seat a holy unction rested not only upon himself, but upon the congregation. He was an able minister of the New Testament. His love for the doctrines and discipline of the Church was ardent, constant, and uniform, never wavering for a moment.

As a Christian his piety was deep and uniform, never boisterous, but always buoyant. Of him it may be said confidently, that he was in the best sense a Christian gentleman. In his domestic relations Mr. Connell was called, in the providence of God, to pass through severe afflictions. He had lost by death two affectionate companions, and several of their children; but still his confidence in the goodness of God was unshaken. He could say, "The Lord gave, and the Lord hath taken away; blessed be the name of the Lord." But now the partner of his riper years, who divided his sorrows as well as his joys, is left to mourn his sudden death.

Brother Connell was attacked by disease on the 6th of December, while preaching with great power and effect, at a quarterly meeting. All medical skill was baffled, and he expired in full hope of a glorious immortality, December 13, 1863, in the sixty-ninth year of his age and the forty-sixth year of his itinerant ministry.

2. Rev. EDWARD ESTELL, of the Ohio Conference, died in Frankfort, Ohio, April 2, 1864. He was born May 5, 1801, in Luzerne county, Pa., and came to Delaware, Ohio, when young. In his early youth he embraced religion, and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church. In 1825 he was married to Miss Rebecca Perfect. He was licensed to preach in 1834, and soon after that was admitted on trial into the Ohio Conference, from which he received his appointments as follows; Deer Creek, 1834; without an appointment, 1835; Washington, 1836; Bainbridge, 1837–38; White Oak, 1839–40; New Richmond, 1841–42; Georgetown, 1843–44; Madison, 1845; White Oak, 1846–47; Mechanicsburg, 1848; King's Creek, 1849; Vienna, 1850; Frankfort, 1851–52; Kingston, 1853–54; Bainbridge, 1855; New Holland, 1856–57; Deer Creek, 1858–59; Kingston, 1860–61; Frankfort, 1862–63, where he ended his useful life and labors. All these appointments he joyfully received, and did the work assigned to him from year to year, with great acceptability and usefulness. He loved the Church, and gave her his time, his talents, and his influence, and labored long and hard for prosperity, and was at times much elated at seeing the success that attended his efforts. His work being mainly that of preacher in charge, to whom is committed more especially the varied enterprises connected with the Church, such as missionary, the tract, the Sabbath-school, and the Bible causes, all of them were cared for by him, and collections made by him throughout the length and breadth of his charges. To give them efficiency in these efforts he excelled. In making his fifth collection, he entered so into sympathy with superannuated preachers, and the widows and orphans of deceased traveling preachers, that he did not fail to affect his charge with the same sympathy, and bring from them a liberal contribution. He also excelled his brethren in general in the attention he gave to the periodicals of the Church. His list of subscribers was always large, the subscription price collected, and the funds paid over to the Book Concern. He also took a deep interest in having meeting-houses for his congregations, and parsonages for himself and colaborers—to have new ones erected, old ones repaired, and church debts canceled. His health began to decline about three months before his death. He felt that his days were numbered. Four doctors volunteered their services and counsel, which was gratefully received; but the case baffled their skill, and resisted the power of their remedies. He saw clearly that he must go, and arranged all his worldly matters with deliberation, perfectly calm and collected. His thoughts were now wholly directed to the future world. He had long been hoping to make a safe arrival there. In his past life he had oftentimes been desponding, and sometimes almost despairing; yet he had lucid intervals, being strong in faith, and giving glory to God. His experience gave strong evidence that a mighty warfare had been going on for years in his own breast, and now, as he nears the port of endless rest, he sends back word, "I feel that the hull is sinking, but that the cargo is insured."

QUEST. 12. Who have Died this year?

A. G. Chenowith, J. B. Mershon—2.

1. Rev. ALFRED GRIFFITH CHENOWITH was born near Winchester, Virginia, Feb. 9, 1809, and died near Greencastle, Indiana, April 25, 1864. He was converted and attached himself to the M. E. Church at the age of twenty, and after four years of study was licensed to preach. In March, 1834, he was admitted on trial in the Baltimore Conference, where he continued a traveling preacher until 1855. His appointments in the Baltimore Conference were Calvert, Bellefonte, Northern Neck, Covington, Monroe, Greenbrier, Augusta, Moorfield, Romney, Springfield, Warrenton, Front Royal, Hillsborough, Berkeley, Winchester, and Ebenezer, D. C. In the spring of 1855 he was transferred to the Northwest Indiana Conference, where he filled the appointments of Greencastle Station, Fillmore Circuit, Terre Haute district, and Indianapolis district. During a ministry of thirty-one years he did not fail of being present at every session of his Annual Conference, and he was equally faithful to all his appointments and the work with which he was intrusted by the Church.

As a man, Brother Chenowith was affable, courteous, and companionable; as a Christian, he was a model of simplicity, faith, and purity; and as a minister, he was sound in theology, unremitting in labor, and faithful to duty. Though a Virginian by birth, he had no trace of sympathy for the Southern rebellion. He steadfastly maintained the decided antislavery sentiment of the M. E. Church, and his loyalty to the government was of the most uncompromising character. The only diversion he allowed himself from the work of the ministry in a period of more than thirty years, was about three months that he served as guide to the Union army in the Shenandoah Valley. His familiarity with that country led to this selection, and when the authorities called him to the service he responded with alacrity, leading the marshaled hosts of freedom through the mountain gaps and defiles, which in earlier years he had traversed as an itinerant preacher, to decisive and cheering victories. His three sons were cheerfully given to the military service of the nation, and in all things he proved himself a true patriot in the time of his country's peril. His death was sudden and unexpected, but we have every assurance from the Christian devotion of his life that he was ready when the summons came, and "ceased at once to work and live." He was holding a quarterly meeting on Greencastle Circuit, where he held the Quarterly Conference on Saturday. On Sabbath morning he preached his last sermon, in which he alluded several times to his happy religious experience and joyful prospects of heaven, and seemed to have an unusual unction from God. After the sermon, he administered the Lord's supper. The following morning, after breakfast, he was attacked by congestion of the heart, and by nine o'clock his spirit had left its earthly tenement. He is gone! His genial heart and cheerful voice no longer greet us here, but he awaits us on the other shore, where kindred spirits shall be forever joined.

2. Rev. JARED B. MERSHON was born in Erie County, Pa., and died in Lebanon, Ind., March 8, 1864. He was received on trial in the Indiana Conference in the fall of 1836, and accomplished a ministry of nearly twenty-eight years. For a few years his name appeared on the superannuated list, but most of the time he did effective work, and traveled some of the largest and most laborious circuits in Indiana. He was plain in his dress, simple in his wants, unostentatious in manners; somewhat reserved, and yet warm and genial in his friendships when closely approached. His early advantages for education were meager, but this deficiency was in a good degree compensated by a diligent course of reading and study in later years, and we can say of our brother that he could both explain and defend the doctrines and ordinances of the Church. He was not only pious and highly conscientious, but he loved the Church with unfaltering attachment. In his last illness, Brother Mershon did not forget his brethren in the ministry; his thoughts and his heart were with them. "Tell my brethren of the Conference," he said, "that I loved the work and died praying for it. I have been laboring long and hard, and the only regret I have is that I have not been more useful. I have one request to make of my brethren: tell them when they meet my children, scattered over the country, to remember them in religious conversation, and point them to heaven."

Brother Mershon gave his sons to the army of the country. His end was peace, and his last words were: "O what joy! Higher! higher! higher!"

E. D. Long, H. B. Collins, S. H. Lockwood—3.

1. Rev. ELIJAH D. LONG was born in Henry County, Va., Dec. 3, 1818, and died in Jeffersonville, Indiana, Feb. 26, 1864.

In 1841 Brother Long, then in the 23d year of his age, joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, and at the same time professed faith in Christ.

In 1843–44, under the presiding eldership of Rev. John Miller, Brother Long traveled the Belleville Circuit, Indiana Conference. In Jan., 1844, he was licensed to preach. The next year he was employed by Rev. E. R. Ames, then presiding elder of the New Albany District, to travel the Corydon Circuit. In the fall of 1845 he was admitted on trial into the Indiana Conference, and appointed to Washington Circuit. He was afterward appointed successively to Carlisle Circuit, Prairieton Circuit two years, South Indianapolis Circuit, Western Charge, Indianapolis, Franklin two years, Connersville, Brookville, Wesley Chapel, Madison two years, Lawrenceburgh two years, Asbury Chapel, Indianapolis, Lawrenceburgh District two years, Greensburgh, Jeffersonville. Jeffersonville was his last appointment. Here he "ceased at once to work and live." Brother Long was eminently a man of one work. He had a high appreciation of the worth of souls, and the responsibilities of the ministerial office. His preaching was direct, earnest, practical, and remarkably effective. He was an arduous student, but the duties of the study he never allowed to trench upon those of the closet or the pastorate. He was a faithful pastor. In the study, on the street, in the family circle, in the pulpit; everywhere he seemed the same; "a good man, full of faith and of the Holy Ghost." During the last three or four years of his life his health was much impaired; but during the latter part of last year he seemed to rally, and he entered upon his work in Jeffersonville full of hope. Said he to his presiding elder, "I expect to do my whole work this year as a Methodist preacher." Sabbath night, the 10th of January last, he preached on "the kingdom of heaven suffereth violence, and the violent take it by force." This, though intended as introductory to a series of meetings, was his last sermon. He returned home and was taken ill. For seven weeks he suffered severely, but he endured as seeing Him who is invisible. A few hours before he breathed his last he called Brother F. A. Hester, his presiding elder, to his bedside and said, "I want you to preach my funeral, bury me, and write my obituary. That is all." "Is all well?" asked Brother Hester. "Yes, glory! glory! glory!" Thus died Elijah D. Long, like Stephen, "looking up into heaven."

2. Rev. HIRAM B. COLLINS was born in Vincennes, Indiana, May 4, 1829. Left fatherless in his childhood, he was indebted to a pious mother for that knowledge of the Holy Scriptures which early made him wise unto salvation. The exact time of his conversion is not known. He was received by letter from the Presbyterian Church into the Methodist Episcopal Church in August, 1858. In the fall of this year he was licensed as a local preacher, and appointed by the presiding elder to New Washington Circuit. He was admitted on trial into the Southeastern Indiana Conference, at Indianapolis, in 1859, and was appointed to Port Fulton. In 1860 he was appointed to Liberty Circuit. In 1861 he was ordained deacon and returned to Liberty Circuit. In 1862 he was appointed to Franklin. In 1863 he was ordained elder and returned to Franklin. March 14, 1864, he left Franklin, for the term of six weeks, as a delegate of the Christian Commission. He was the first itinerant preacher that went from Indiana, and the first delegate that pushed his way to the front of the army. Here at Bull's Gap, pinched with cold and suffering for want of food, he contracted the disease from which he never recovered. His sufferings were borne with Christian fortitude. He contemplated death with resignation and exhorted his friends to acquiesce in the will of God. A few hours before his death he called for the singing of his favorite hymns, "There is rest for the weary" and "How sweet the hour of closing day." As the sun sank to rest, Sabbath, Sept. 4, he entered into the rest that remains for the people of God. "Happy! O yes! all is peace, sweet Saviour!" were among his last utterances.

Brother Collins for several years previous to his entering the ministry was a professional teacher. He brought to the work of the ministry a well-developed intellect, a refined taste, superior literary attainments, an energetic character, and a heart in living sympathy with the interests of humanity and religion. He was a sound theologian, a good preacher, a faithful pastor, a successful minister of the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ.

3. Rev. SAMUEL H. LOCKWOOD was born in Bourbon County, Ky., March 27, 1836, and died at Moore's Hill, Sept. 15, 1864. Pious parents trained him for God, and in his eighteenth year he was happily converted. He was licensed to exhort in 1855, to preach in 1856, admitted to Conference on trial, and appointed to Liberty Circuit in 1857. In 1858 he was appointed to Mount Carmel Circuit. His health failing this year, he was admitted into full connection, ordained deacon, and granted a superannuated relation. In 1860 he was appointed to Milroy Circuit. This year he was married. In 1861 he was stationed at Laurel, in 1862 at Moore's Hill; in 1863 returned to Moore's Hill, making seven years in the ministry. Early in the present month he was taken sick. He arose from his bed, and preached twice the Sabbath after he was taken ill. His sufferings were very severe, but his frame of mind was peaceful. He had no fears as to the future, but longed for a brighter manifestation of the divine mercy. "I want," said he, "perfect purity." To this end he prayed, and asked the prayers of his brethren. In regard to the question of his recovery, he said to his wife, "there are three things we may pray for: 1. For my recovery; 2. If I am to die, that I may have an abundant entrance into the everlasting kingdom; 3. That you may have sustaining grace in your trials."

Brother Lockwood was a high-minded, dignified Christian gentleman. He was a diligent student, and perhaps his early death is attributable in no small degree to his arduous devotion to the duties of the study. He was a man of live sympathies. The poor, the suffering, the bereaved, never lacked for any attention that he could give. He made their cause his own and suffered with them. Hence in the pastoral work he was possessed of peculiar power. Even considering his age, he was above mediocrity as a preacher. But Samuel Lockwood's work was done. He was ripe for heaven, and God took him. In the midst of his death agonies he asked his friends to sing,

> " Jesus, lover of my soul,
> Let me to thy bosom fly."

QUEST. 12. Who have Died this year?

James M. Morrow.

Rev. J. M. MORROW died in Dayton, Ohio, Feb. 12, 1864. He was born in Cumberland county, Pa., Jan. 31, 1818, and subsequently, with his parents, removed to Risden, Ohio, where he united with the Methodist Episcopal Church, and was converted at a camp-meeting held near that place in 1836. In 1841 he entered the Norwalk Seminary, in order to qualify himself for the ministry, in which he was for some time employed as a teacher, and during the same year was licensed to preach by the Norwalk Quarterly Conference. He was admitted on trial into the North Ohio Conference in 1843; received into full connection and ordained a deacon in 1845. The same year he was married to Miss Angeline Chapman, of Bellevue, Ohio, and in 1847 ordained an Elder in the M. E. Church. He filled successively the following charges: Fitchville, Niffen, Bellevue, Defiance, Ashland, Republic, Berea, Medina, Elyria, agency two years of Baldwin University, Crestline, Delaware, White Sulphur Springs, and Lima. His last appointment was the Chaplaincy of the Ninety-ninth Ohio regiment, in which capacity he served the Church and the Government, from July, 1862, until the time of his decease. He shared the fortunes of his regiment in the several battles of Stone River, Snow Hill, Chickamauga, Lookout Mountain, Ringgold, Pigeon Mountain, and Missionary Ridge.

As a chaplain, Brother Morrow was one of those who honored the office, and proved himself worthy of his high calling. He counted not his own life dear unto himself, but, as a messenger of mercy, was ever present in the midst of danger, ministering comfort to the suffering and the consolations of religion to the dying. Brave, patriotic, and ardently devoted to the Union, he would rather lead a forlorn hope to the cannon's mouth than skulk away into supineness and safety. He commanded the respect of his superiors and the admiration of the private soldiers. Moved by no mercenary consideration to assume the duties of the office, no difficulty seemed insurmountable, nor sacrifice too great for the cause he served. Gifted in a high degree with conversational powers, and possessing a warm and genial heart, together with a fund of useful knowledge, his society was courted by the refined and intelligent as well as the many, affording opportunities for usefulness which he failed not to improve for the advancement of religion.

As a pastor, Brother Morrow had few superiors. His fidelity to his flock was proverbial, "in labors more abundant;" and whether at the altar, the sick-bed, or the sepulture, his words were like "apples of gold in pictures of silver." He was a polished shaft. No doubtful arrow ever found a place in his quiver; his sermons evincing patient investigation, deep thought, and thorough preparation. His talents were of a superior order, and his qualifications were fully up to the times. He bore faithful testimony against sin of every kind, no matter how disguised in the livery of heaven. He never vailed the sacred oracles, however much he adorned them with garlands of beautiful imagery. Clear, logical, and direct, he seldom failed to uncover the hidden places of darkness, and strip error of its fine woven sophistries. He attracted by his eloquence, and charmed by the sweetness of his diction. Brother Morrow's sun had not reached its zenith. How strange and mysterious the Providence that called him away in the midst of prosperity, and a life of extended usefulness! But the eye that sparkled with intelligence is now dim, the warm heart is cold, and that voice whose notes were sweeter than an Eolian harp is now silent in death forever.

It is painful to contemplate the closing scene of our brother's life. In December, he was detailed by Gen. Thomas to special duty in Ohio, affording him a brief visit to his family. The time was improved in preaching, with his accustomed acceptability, and soliciting means to purchase a flag to present to his regiment. On the 5th of January he left Lima, flushed with the highest hopes of rejoining the army of the Cumberland. Five miles below Dayton his train collided with the express from Cincinnati. On being extricated from the wreck, he gave his name, title, and residence, adding, "send for Mrs. Morrow," and was conveyed to the City Hotel, in Dayton, in a state of insensibility. Both of his limbs were fractured below the knees, and he was otherwise injured. The shock to his system, and the exposure to the inclement weather, induced typhoid fever, which baffled the skill of the surgeon, and overpowered his vigorous constitution. During his suffering he was hopeful, and still expected to resume his active duties in the field; but Providence directed otherwise. He was much of the time irrational, and imagined himself in the struggle of battle, and among the wounded. In the lucid moments of his affliction he greatly enjoyed the consolation of religion and the fellowship of Christians. We visited him on the 20th of January, and found him apparently much better. Alluding to his condition, he remarked that it was truly sad and lamentable, but he was devoutly thankful that it was no worse. On inquiring what were his divine consolations, and what were his hopes in the event of death, he answered most emphatically, "That question is settled; and had I gone thus suddenly, as it would have been unexpectedly, I should have gone triumphantly home to glory." He continued to sink gradually till the last moment, when, without a groan or struggle, he fell asleep in Jesus. The survivors of his family are a wife and three sons, to whom the deceased was greatly endeared, and who are worthy of our most ardent prayers and tender sympathies.

Quest. 12. Who have Died this year?

Jonathan Blanchard.

1. Rev. Jonathan Blanchard, whose pleasant face for twenty-five years has annually appeared among us, is not to be seen; for on the twenty-second day of March, 1864, at about five o'clock P. M., his spirit returned to God who gave it, leaving good evidence, both from the uniform piety of his life and his last expressions, that for him it was a happy exchange. Brother Blanchard was admitted on trial in the Conference in 1838, and always took his appointments until the last session of our Conference, when he was placed upon the superannuated list. He had always performed his work with great diligence and assiduity. He has filled some of our first stations, and served two terms as presiding elder; first on the Romeo district, and then on Adrian. In the Autumn of 1862 he was appointed Chaplain of the twenty-sixth Regiment Michigan Volunteer Infantry, where he exhibited his characteristic devotion to his work. It is a notable fact that he always kept up vocal devotions in his tent morning and evening, as if he had his family about him. He was very useful as a Chaplain, and much beloved by the soldiers for his kindness and uniform, consistent piety. He had performed his ministerial work in great physical suffering and weakness for many years. At first his health seemed to improve in the army, but in the spring of 1863 he was attacked with camp diarrhea, and continued to waste away in spite of all efforts of medicine. His mind was calm and confiding through the whole. He was led to a Christian experience in his youth, and before he had made any public profession of religion, to labor for Christ. Being engaged in teaching school, an effort was made to secure preaching at his school-house, which failed; but the people gathered, prayer was made, seriousness was manifested, and he was urged to invite persons forward for prayers, which he did; several came forward and were converted. He also was led to espouse the cause openly. Shortly after he was licensed to preach, and employed one year by the presiding elder, so that he had been in the ministry for twenty-seven years. He has left a wife and two children to mourn his absence. He died in the city of Ann Arbor, aged forty-seven years.

As a man, Brother Blanchard was estimable; as a Christian, sound in experience; as a minister, faithful and useful; as a husband and father, kind and affectionate; as a friend, true and worthy. May we be ripe as he for the rest of heaven.

Quest. 12. Who have Died this year?

C. Woolsey.

Rev. C. Woolsey died Aug. 17, 1864. He was born in the state of New York in the year 1799. Brother Woolsey acquired a good English education in his youth; embraced religion, and gained admission into the Methodist Episcopal Church, of which he was a member and minister for more than forty years. The last eleven years of his life were spent in the itinerant work. As a preacher he was not eloquent, but scriptural; not forcible, but plain. He had no brilliancy to attract, but he was so amiable that to be known was to be loved. His support was usually meager, and his circumstances straitened. While others acquired money, he labored in the employ of the Church, and received the reward of godliness with contentment, which is great gain. He was a man of more than ordinary reading and superior intelligence. His friends were numerous, enemies he had none. His aged and furrowed cheek always glowed with a smile of cheerfulness. As a friend he was kind; as a husband, affectionate; as a parent, indulgent; as a man, honest; as a Christian minister, unblamable and without reproach.

He was the first summoned away from our Conference by death, and our deep sorrow is only mitigated by the assurance he was best prepared. He died peaceful, trusting in God.

Quiet and lonely he sleeps in a rural burying-ground near the parsonage on Brooklyn Circuit, his last field of labor, where the careworn itinerant will often pause to shed the tear of affectionate memory on the grave of that good man.

I. I. Stewart, W. Simpson, M. B. Wayman—3.

1. Rev. ISAAC INGERSOL STEWART was born near Absecom, New Jersey, Aug. 4, 1806. At the age of twelve years he moved with his parents to Mt. Carmel, Illinois, in which place he was converted to God, and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church at the age of fifteen years. He was licensed to preach in 1836, and at the same Quarterly Conference recommended to the traveling connection, and was received by the Illinois Annual Conference, in Mt. Carmel, the place of his residence, and appointed to the Paris Circuit. In 1837 he was appointed to Hillsborough and Vandalia Circuit. In 1838 he was ordained deacon by Bishop Soule, and appointed to Platteville, Wisconsin Territory; in 1839, Dubuque, Iowa Territory; in 1840 he was ordained elder by Bishop Waugh, and appointed to Burlington, after which he filled the following appointments: in 1841, Burlington station; 1842–43, Mt. Pleasant Circuit; 1844, Fort Madison Station; 1845–46, Dubuque Station; 1847–48, Des Moines District; 1849–50–51, Burlington District; 1852–53, Agent of Mt. Pleasant College Institute; 1854–55, Oskaloosa Station; 1856, Knoxville Station; in 1857 he took a supernumerary relation; in 1858 he was made effective, and labored on the Eddyville Circuit; 1859, Council Bluffs District; 1860, Pella Circuit; 1861, Indianapolis Circuit. During this year his health failed, and in 1862–63 he sustained a superannuated relation. During the year 1863 he was appointed Chaplain in the United States Hospital, Keokuk, Iowa, in which appointment he closed his earthly labors in blissful hope of a glorious immortality, August 15, 1864. It was the privilege of Brother Stewart to spend a large portion of his ministry as a pioneer among the early settlements of the Northwest; to tread his way across the prairie, guided by the Indian trail, and plant the standard of the cross at the door of the cabin of the new settler, ere the mud had dried upon its walls; not to reap where other men had sowed, but to break up the fallow ground and sow the seed of the kingdom. In this work he often "went forth weeping," and we doubt not but in the day of final account he will bear many sheaves with rejoicing. On the last Sabbath but one which he spent on earth he preached twice with unusual power and liberty. The last week of his life was one of uncommon serenity of mind, and sweet communion with Christ. Often did he break forth in exclamations of praise and thanksgiving to God for the uninterrupted peace and holy triumph which he was permitted to enjoy. On the morning of his death he joyfully sang:

"Come, thou Fount of every blessing,
Tune my heart to sing thy praise."

And thus has passed from labor to reward our brother and fellow-laborer. May we, like him, finish our course with joy.

2. Rev. WILLIAM SIMPSON was born in Huntingdon County, Pa., January 22, 1812. On the 14th day of June, 1832, he was converted to God, and united with the Methodist Episcopal Church. In the autumn of 1833 he emigrated to Michigan, and located in the town of Centerville, St. Joseph County. While here he served the Church as class-leader for nearly three years. On the 11th day of July, 1836, he was granted license to exhort. About this time he removed to Hennepin, Illinois. After spending a few months in that place he was employed by John Sinclair, presiding elder, to travel Bureau Circuit as colleague of William Cummings. Upon this circuit he remained till the 2d day of April, when he was transferred to Bloomington Circuit, and became the colleague of John Shepherd. At a quarterly meeting held in Bloomington June 3, 1837, he received license to preach, and was recommended to the traveling connection. At a session of the Illinois Conference, held in Jacksonville September 27 of the same year, he was received on trial and appointed to Helena Circuit, Wisconsin. This was a new field. The entire membership consisted of only twenty-six persons, and to add to its discouragements, (if we may use the word in connection with pioneer Methodism,) the mission committee had made no appropriation for this work. He must depend alone on the providence of God, and the scanty pittance which the early settlers could spare from their own meager supplies. But God took care of him, and made his labors abundantly successful, and supplied all his wants. At the close of this year he traveled four hundred and twenty-five miles to attend his Conference, which was held at Alton, Illinois. Here he received an appointment to Bellevue Circuit, Iowa Territory. On the 11th of September, 1839, at conference in Bloomington, Illinois, he was ordained deacon by Bishop Morris, and appointed to Prairie du Chien, Wisconsin. When the Illinois Conference was divided he was placed in the Rock River Conference, and appointed to the Lancaster Circuit. In August, 1841, he was ordained elder by Bishop Morris at a Conference held in Platteville, and appointed to Hamilton's Grove. On the 22d day of February, 1842, he was married to Miss Nancy M. Range, who was indeed a helpmeet for him, sharing with most heroic fortitude, and Christian patience and resignation, the toils and privations and sufferings of pioneer life.

In 1842 he was appointed to Fort Madison Circuit; in 1843, West Point Circuit; in 1844, Mt. Pleasant Circuit. The Iowa Conference now being organized, he became a member of it. In 1845 he was returned to the same circuit; in 1846–47 he traveled the Pleasant Valley Circuit; in 1848–49, Cedar Circuit. In 1850 he offered himself as a volunteer for Council Bluffs Mission. The inhabitants of that region were almost entirely Mormon and Indian. Having received his appointment, he was soon on his way to his new field of labor, at which he no sooner had arrived than he began to preach Christ and the resurrection. A circuit was soon formed, souls were converted, societies organized, and the solitary place was made glad, and the desert blossomed as the rose. At the close of this year he reported a membership of one hundred and twelve persons in the mission. In the following year he was returned to the same work, and again the Lord in a most gracious manner owned his labors, so that at the end of the second year his charge contained two hundred and forty members. In 1852 he was appointed to Brighton Circuit; 1853 to Fort Madison Station; in 1854 he was appointed presiding elder of Montezuma District. In 1855 the Iowa Conference was divided, and the Montezuma District was merged into the Oskaloosa District; upon this district he labored for four succeeding years. In 1859 he was appointed to New London Circuit, where he remained two years; in 1862–63 he traveled the Agency City Circuit; in the autumn of 1863 he was appointed to Marshall, where upon the 22d day of February, 1864, he closed his life of ardent toil and abundant success, and calmly fell asleep in the Saviour. His illness was brief, extending only from Friday evening until Monday morning. His sufferings were extreme, yet he never complained; not a single murmuring word escaped his lips. His mind was clear and tranquil, and his soul seemed to be calmly enjoying that peace that passes all understanding. His wife seeing his end approaching, said, "What shall I do when you are gone?" "Trust in Providence," was his reply. She then asked him, "What shall I tell your brethren of the Conference?" "Tell them," said he, "that the same Gospel that I have preached to others sustains me now." A few hours before his death his pain subsided, and he rested quietly till his departure. Beside his couch stood a few faithful friends, who had ministered to him in his affliction, and now waited to witness his triumph in the final hour. Steadily the tide of life was ebbing, and the darkness of the grave was drawing near; his wife and children were the only objects of solicitude now. The great work had already been accomplished, and like the apostle, he was ready to be offered. Two sons stood upon the battle-field, and three younger members of his family stood beside his bed. Looking upon his wife he said, "Educate those children, train them for God." Feeling now that his hour had come, and that he stood beside the chilling waters, he raised his voice and sung in full melodious strain,

> "We'll cross the river of Jordan,
> Happy in the Lord."

As the sound died away upon the air the weary wheels of life stood still, the silver cord was loosed, and the spirit returned to God who gave it.

Thus passed away from earth one of God's noble men, who in an early day raised the standard of the cross, and bore it in triumph upon the battle-fields of Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois and Iowa, and in the face of Mormon, Infidel, and Indian, declared the whole counsel of God, giving to saint and sinner his portion in due season.

3. Rev. Manasseh B. Wayman was born in Marshall County, Western Virginia, April 9, 1836. Through the pious examples and teachings of godly parents he was happily converted to God in the year 1850, when about fourteen years of age, and but some eighteen days prior to the death of his devoted father, for whom he entertained the highest regard and the tenderest affection. When about eighteen years of age he was licensed to exhort in the Methodist Episcopal Church, without his knowledge or consent, in which capacity he labored with great zeal and faithfulness. The spring following he moved to Morgan County, Ohio, where he engaged in teaching school, and continued two years in the same place; during which time he was licensed as a local preacher, in 1857. In April, 1858, he came to Burlington, Iowa, and in the fall of the same year, being duly recommended by his Quarterly Conference, was received into the traveling connection in the Iowa Annual Conference. Brother Wayman's first appointment was Augusta Circuit, with Rev. J. G. Thompson in charge. Here, by his urbanity of manners, his fervent piety, and indefatigable labors, he not only gathered around him a large circle of warm friends, but was instrumental in leading many souls to Christ, and in building up believers in the faith of the Gospel of the Son of God. He was appointed in 1859–60 to Toolsborough Circuit. Here he was called to endure very sore trials, but through the grace of God he triumphed. At the close of this year he graduated to deacon's orders. In 1860–61 he was appointed to West Point and Denmark, with Rev. A. C. Williams in charge. Here he had many seals to his ministry. On the 19th of August he was united in marriage to Miss Olive G. Maynard, and in 1861–62 was appointed to the Bloomfield Circuit, where he labored zealously and with success. At the close of the year the people asked for his return; he was accordingly reappointed to the same charge in 1862–63. At the conference held at Washington, September 10, 1862, he was ordained elder, and appointed to Troy Circuit. He repaired immediately after the close of the conference to his new field, and was prosecuting his work with his accustomed zeal and energy, when he received an appointment to the chaplaincy of the third cavalry regiment of Iowa volunteers from the governor of the state. He at once resigned his charge and repaired to his regiment, which was then at Memphis, Tennessee. Here by his piety, excellent social qualities, and earnest labors in preaching to the soldiers, and imparting wholesome counsel to the sick and dying, we are told he greatly endeared himself to his regiment; but in the midst of his labors and usefulness he was seized by that fatal disease, camp diarrhea, which has carried to an untimely grave so many of our patriotic soldiers in the last three years. The disease being at first of a mild form, he continued with his regiment, and labored as he had strength until the latter part of June, when his condition became very critical, when he obtained a furlough and started home. He directed his friends to bring him without stopping on the way. He reached his family, who were at his father-in-law's, Dr. Maynard's, on Wednesday evening, almost in a state of unconsciousness, barely recognizing his wife and little daughter, and too far exhausted to converse. He lingered until Saturday, the 2d of July, when he calmly fell asleep in Jesus, a smile resting upon his countenance after the spirit had departed.

S. D. Bassinger, J. M. Springer, Washington Wilcox—3.

1. Rev. Sephrenus D. Bassinger was born Jan. 27, 1802, in the town of Springfield, Otsego Co., New York. A pious mother taught him in early childhood to pray, and at the age of twenty he gave his heart to God and his hand to the Methodist Episcopal Church, of which he remained a member till death removed him to the Church above. He was married to his now bereaved companion at the age of nineteen.

Not long after his conversion he was appointed class-leader, which place he held until he was about thirty, when he was licensed to preach, and for several years he served the Church in the capacity of a local preacher, then for many years he traveled as a supply under the presiding elder, first at Lechedah, then at Dartford, and in the fall of 1852 he was placed on the Montello mission, a country then known as the Indian Land. Here he labored with great success for two years, and continued supplying different places under the elder until the spring of 1858, when he was received into the West Wisconsin Conference and appointed to the Strong's Prairie Mission, next to the Ironton Circuit, where he traveled two years. His next was De Soto, next Towerville, next Lone Rock; the next was Avoca, where, on August 31, 1864, he ended together both his work and his life.

Brother Bassinger was a very laborious and successful preacher.

On the day before he died the writer visited him and found him evidently near his end, and asked him how it was with him. Raising his eyes upward, he answered, "All is well." Then looking around for a moment, he again replied, "After looking the matter all over, I see nothing to the contrary but that all is well; all is well."

2. Rev. John M. Springer was born Jan. 13, 1837, at Petersburg, Ill. His father was a devoted and useful Methodist preacher, who died at his post in 1850, while presiding elder of Milwaukee District. John at this time was thirteen years of age, and commenced working at the printing business in the office of the Milwaukee Sentinel, and subsequently in the office of the Northwestern, at Chicago. When about sixteen he was converted, but soon after fell back, giving as his reason to his mother, "If I am a Christian I must be a Methodist preacher; and that I wont be, for the toil, poverty, and sacrifices of the itinerancy, as exemplified in the life of father, are more than I can endure." For a few years he led a wild, wayward life, the most of the time as a theater actor, till in the summer of 1857 he again yielded to the strivings of the Spirit, gave his heart to the Lord, and consecrated himself to the work of the ministry.

He joined the Methodist Episcopal Church Sept. 6, 1857, commenced to exhort December following, and assisted Brother Hall for two or three months on Irvington Circuit. He was then sent by the presiding elder to form a new work, which was soon organized, and called Glendale. At the Quarterly Conference of this new charge he was licensed to preach April 17, 1858, and at the approaching session of the West Wisconsin Conference, April 29, 1858, he was admitted on trial, and appointed to Kilbourn City Mission. The next two conference years were spent on Dalton Circuit. The 14th of Sept., 1860, he was married to Miss Celestia M. Clark, of Baraboo. This year he was appointed to Reedsburgh Circuit. The latter part of the year he was called to supply Portage City, where he remained the year following. The next year he was appointed to Poynette charge. In Sept., 1863, he was stationed at Monroe, where he labored with his usual diligence until November, when he was drafted into the United States service. Ever faithful to his country, like a true patriot, he refused to allow his friends to pay the commutation, and was sworn into the service, Dec. 22, 1863. The governor of Wisconsin commissioned him as chaplain of the third regiment Wisconsin Veteran Volunteers, Feb. 3, 1864, and he soon after joined the regiment at Fayetteville, Tenn. On Sunday, May 15, the regiment was brought into action near Resaca, Georgia. Brother Springer went into line of battle to watch the contest. Soon the captain of one of the companies was killed. In a few minutes the first lieutenant also fell, and soon the second lieutenant. Orrin Longstaff was wounded in his right hand, and his sword dropped. The boys began to waver a little, when Brother Springer sprang forward, seized Lieut. Longstaff's sword, forced his way through the company to the front before the enemy, rallied the men by his shouts and presence, and led them in a charge. He was a prominent mark for the rebel sharpshooters, and soon fell, his right leg shattered below the knee. He was conveyed to Nashville, where he received proper medical treatment, but all in vain. Though the symptoms were favorable, and his mind always lively and cheerful, yet he constantly insisted that his work was over, and he was soon to die. On the 28th of May he suddenly raised himself in the bed and said to his friends, "I am dying." After giving his last messages and directions, he shook hands with his friends, and said, "Good-by. Tell my friends I die in the Lord." He then sunk back on the bed, closed his eyes, placed his hands on his breast, and fell asleep in Jesus. His body was brought to Baraboo, where his wife and mother reside. Appropriate funeral services were held in the Methodist Episcopal Church at Baraboo, June 15.

Brother Springer was a man of uncommon energy and industry, and was fully devoted to the work of the ministry. His friends and the Church have suffered a great loss.

3. Rev. Washington Wilcox was born in the state of Vermont, April 19, 1807. Of his early life prior to the age of twenty we have no information, he having left no written record of his life or conversion. At a period, however, previous to his arriving at twenty years of age, he was converted to God, and united with the Church. To use his own language, as often stated by him in the love-feast, "I retired," said he, "into the spruce grove with a hard heart, and there bowed before God until the great deep of my heart was broken up and my sins forgiven through Jesus Christ." He also often remarked that his Christian mother was the instrument of his conversion.

On the day he was twenty years of age, with his Bible and hymn book in hand, in a severe snow storm, he started over the hills of New Hampshire to exhort his fellow-men to be reconciled to God. He traveled two years under the presiding elder. In 1830 he was admitted on trial on the New Hampshire and Vermont Conference; in 1832 he was admitted into the Conference and ordained a deacon, and in 1834 he was ordained an elder. In 1836 he removed to the then far west, connected himself with the Illinois Conference, and was appointed to Des Plaines Circuit. During his succeeding ministry he successively received the following appointments, which he filled with efficiency and success: Dupage; Galena; Dubuque, Illinois; Mineral Point, Wisconsin; Dixon; Elgin, Illinois; Sylvania, and Waukesha Circuits; Fond du Lac and Madison Districts; Platteville, Mineral Point, and Baraboo Stations; Point Bluff, Mineral Point, and Platteville Districts; and finally, Baraboo Station, Wisconsin, where he finished his uninterrupted labors on earth the 23d day of August, 1864.

His last sickness was very short. Although a sufferer for several years from a catarrhal infection, yet in the providence of God another disease (dysentery) terminated his mortal conflict. He rose early, as had been his custom all through life, on Thursday, 18th of August, apparently in his usual health. In a short time he was taken sick. He, however, read with his companion, as was their custom, several chapters of God's word and united in prayer. During the day he became worse, gradually sinking under the influence of his disease until the Tuesday following, when he died. His long and faithful Christian life is the best comment on his death. For over forty years he had been diligently seeking a growing meetness for it; now it came, and found him ready and waiting for the summons. When informed by his companion that he must die, he requested a season of prayer. After all present in the room had prayed, his companion inquired of him if all was well. He replied, "Yes, all is well; the Lord is my portion, portion, portion." Soon after this the cold chills of death crept quickly over his frame, and those powers of speech, so long employed in publishing the glad tidings of salvation, were silenced in death.

Brother Wilcox was married to his now bereaved companion on the 4th of August, 1834. She has, therefore, borne with him almost through his entire ministry the toils, privations, and sufferings connected with the itinerancy in relation to him as a faithful husband. Sister Wilcox, in writing to a friend, remarks: "During the thirty years we have lived together he has always been the same kind, devoted, and affectionate husband, anticipating my wants, and doing his best to supply them." May the Church, which our departed brother so long and faithfully served, ever remember in their sympathy and prayers his bereaved companion.

As a Christian minister his life was in very many respects a model, after which his brethren in the Conference would do well to copy. He was emphatically a man of one work, devoting himself wholly to God and his work. He diligently "redeemed the time," and consecrated it all to God. His faithfulness in the performance of duties, however laborious, and his punctuality in performing those duties, were manifest to all. Whether employed on the circuit, station, or district work, unless absolutely prevented, he was at his post, and there at, or most generally a little before, his time. On his last station a brother remarked, "He has taught us a lesson of punctuality." In 1849 the writer was a preacher on the district, then embracing about one fourth of the state, over which our departed brother presided; yet however great the distance he had to travel, over almost impassable roads through snow, rain, piercing cold, or intense heat, we never found him absent from his post, or too late at any appointment. His efforts to raise the standard of education in the Conference, while by many thought severe, arose from a deep conviction of the wants of the Church, which he greatly loved, and by which means he hoped to secure greater efficiency and success. In the deliberations of the Annual Conference he took an active and efficient part. Generally correct in his judgment, able in debate, and firm in his purpose, his presence was a power among us, and his loss is very perceptibly felt. His work is done. May God raise up from among us others to fill his place. And while God buries his workmen, may he carry on his work.

1. Rev. Elijah Corrington was born January 28, 1797, in Harrison County, Ky., and sought and obtained religion in the fall of 1827, and was licensed to preach December 13, 1828. In April, 1830, he removed to Jacksonville, Ill., and was received into the Illinois Conference in 1836, and for two years was appointed to Carrollton Circuit. From this time up to 1844 he traveled in succession the Jacksonville, Winchester, Sangamon, and Apple Creek Circuits. During the year commencing the fall of 1844 he was superannuated. In 1845 he was appointed to the Edwardsville Circuit. From this time to 1852 we have not the means at hand of determining what appointments he occupied, yet he was all the while in the regular work. From 1852 to 1862 he traveled the following circuits consecutively: Naples, Franklin, Wilmington, Georgetown, Scottville, Milton, Hardin, and Martinsville. In 1863 he superannuated, and occupied that relation up to the time of his death. His life was useful and his end was peace.

2. Rev. Jonathan Stamper, D. D., was born in Madison County, Ky., April 27, 1791, and died at his own residence in Decatur, Ill., February 26, 1864. He was converted at a camp-meeting in Kentucky when about nineteen years of age. While out alone, in deep meditation, the impression seized him that he was doomed to be lost, and he says, "I threw myself on the ground and groaned in anguish that words could not speak. I left the place of my lamentation and returned to the encampment. A preacher was inviting mourners to the altar. I paused and inquired of myself, 'Am I a mourner, such as are invited to come forward for the prayers of the Church?' Then this thought came: 'Surely there is no being in the universe that needs intercession more than I do. It will make my condition no worse to go, and it may be that God will yet pity and forgive.' The very thought presented to my view the goodness of God in an enlarged and affecting light, hope sprang up, my heart melted into tenderness, and my eyes overflowed with tears. I did not wait to walk, I ran. I fell prostrate on my face and cried, 'Lord, if it be possible to save a wretch like me, O save, for the sake of Jesus.' In a moment I apprehended the fullness of the atonement in Christ, and claiming an interest in the sinner's friend, instantly felt the renewing power of the Holy Ghost. My burden was removed, my guilt absolved, my sorrow turned into joy, and my lamentations into praise. I could give vent to my feelings only by shouting aloud the praises of God. Love to God and man filled my soul to overflowing. I talked to all I met about the love of God in Christ Jesus, and exhorted them to seek the Lord."

In 1811 he was employed by the presiding elder on the Flemingsburg Circuit as junior preacher. At the expiration of six months he was removed to the Lexington Circuit, where he served as junior preacher to the close of the Conference year. In 1812 he was admitted on trial in the Western Conference at Cincinnati, Ohio, and was returned junior preacher to the Lexington Circuit, and occupied the following fields of labor in succession up to 1841: Big Sandy, Licking, Limestone, Lexington, Hinkstone, and Bush Creek Circuits; Muskingum, Salt River, and Augusta Districts; agent for Augusta College; Augusta, Cumberland, and Kentucky Districts; Shelbyville, Louisville, Danville, and Harrodsburg Stations; Augusta, Greensburg, and the Shelbyville Districts. In 1841 he was transferred to the Illinois Conference, and stationed in the city of Springfield; in 1843 was stationed in Quincy, Ill., and in 1844 returned to Kentucky. Here he was agent for the Transylvania University one year, and two years presiding elder of Maysville District. In 1848 he was transferred to the St. Louis Conference, and stationed in Jefferson City, Mo.; in the fall of 1849 he returned to Kentucky, and was stationed at Newport; in 1850 he superannuated, and took up his abode in his own property in Decatur, Ill. In this relation he remained until the fall of 1858, when he joined the Illinois Conference as an effective preacher, and was stationed in his own town. At the close of the year, being too feeble to take regular work, he was left without an appointment. In the fall of 1860 he was appointed to the Mechanicsburg Circuit, and to it was returned in the fall of 1861. At the close of this year he again superannuated, in which relation he remained till his death.

In 1814 he united in marriage with Miss Alathea Tucker of Bourbon County, Ky. Of her he says: "Of no trial or emergency of a life of fifty years together did she ever fail to bear her part. She never kept me from a single appointment on any account, but urged me frequently to go when I felt that duty required me to stay at home."

As a minister he was great. He was one of the finest pulpit orators of his day. God made him an orator. On camp-meeting occasions congregated thousands have hung with wrapt delight upon his ever-varying strains, amazed at the richness, beauty and strength, attractiveness and glory of divine truth, or swayed by his mighty reasonings, or convulsed with fear and dread, or melted into tenderness and tears, or lifted to their feet, or hurled prostrate to the ground when he discoursed to them of the judgment of the last day, of the glorious appearing of the great God our Saviour Jesus Christ, of the lost soul, of the triumphant entrance of the soldier of the cross into his rest, or of Joseph and his brethren.

A few days before he died he remarked to a friend, "My hope is in Jesus; he is precious to my soul. I love him. I will praise him. I have been an unfaithful servant, and I am needy and unworthy, but there is a fullness in Jesus that diffuses and spreads itself abroad, covering the entire field of my wants, and in that fullness I rejoice. Glory to God! My work is done; I am almost home."

3. Rev. George W. Fairbank was born in Framingham, Massachusetts, October 17, 1799; was converted in March, 1811, in Marlboro, Mass., and enjoyed religion a short time, and afterward fell into darkness and into a backsliden state, with occasional awakenings until he was twenty years of age. He was reclaimed in Rindge, N. H., December, 1819, joined the Methodist Episcopal Church in March, 1820, and was licensed to exhort the June following. He was almost immediately employed by the presiding elder to travel the Ashburnham Circuit; was licensed to preach in November, 1820, and was admitted into the local preachers' Conference at Thomson, May, 1821, and continued to labor on the Ashburnham Circuit till August, and then was removed to Hebron Circuit. In 1822 he was admitted into the New England Conference, where he received the following appointments: Needham Circuit, Hebron and New London Circuit, Winchester Circuit, Malden Station, and Chelsea Circuit. In 1830 the New Hampshire and Vermont Conference was organized, and in it he labored in Danville, in Barton, and in Craftsburgh. In 1834 he was appointed to Vermont District; in 1837 he located, and moved to Montgomery County, Illinois; in 1839 he was admitted into the Illinois Conference, and continued his connection with it till his death. He was successively on the Hillsboro

Station, Hillsboro Circuit, Danville Circuit, Paris Circuit, Georgetown Circuit, Danville District, Springfield District, Bloomington District, Mechanicsburgh Circuit, Georgetown Circuit, and Homer Circuit. Thus ended his effective ministry, and he took a superannuated relation and moved to Dallas, Vermilion County, Illinois.

The second year of his superannuated life he was employed by the presiding elder to take charge of Indianola Circuit, but on account of feeble health was unable to meet his appointments half the time. After conference he declined in health rapidly; and when asked by his presiding elder, Brother Moore, what report he should take to Conference for him, he said, "To preach the doctrines of our holy Christianity, as taught by the Methodist Episcopal Church, has been the delight of my life. Tell my brethren I love them all, and expect to meet them in heaven." He died the evening of January 11, 1864, aged sixty-four years, ten months, and six days. He died as he lived, a conqueror through Jesus Christ.

Brother Fairbank was a man of strong physical and mental power, and all his intellectual faculties were evenly balanced. His education was chiefly theological, and here he was a master in Israel. As a preacher he was clear and thorough, and occasionally wielded a remarkable power over the hearts of his audience.

As an administrator of the law of the Church and presiding officer he was faithful, wise, gentle, and unostentatious.

4. Rev. J. C. Kimber was born in Brownsville, Pa., May 7, 1811, and was nearly fifty-three years old at the time of his death. He died in Danville, Ill., April 2, 1864. He moved to Ohio in 1827, where he was married. In 1834 he moved to Belleville, Ill., where he and his wife were shortly after converted under the labors of Rev. Mr. York, and he received license to exhort the same year. He joined the Illinois Conference in 1843, and continued a faithful and honored member thereof up to the time of his death, a period of more than twenty years. His first appointment was to Columbus Circuit, which then included what are now five separate charges. He was familiar with the exposures and toils, the hardships and privations of the pioneer itinerant preacher, who had to face the bleak storms of our wide prairies and take the fare which the early and sparse settlements were able to give. His appointments in order were Pulaski, Mount Vernon, Jacksonville, and Winchester Circuits, Springfield District, Mechanicsburgh Circuit, Bloomington, Beardstown, Paris, and Danville stations. On several of these charges God blessed him with powerful and extensive revivals of religion. Hundreds will remember how he labored with zeal and energy day and night, for weeks together, in conducting the revival which crowned his efforts in Danville but a few months before his death. In fact these arduous labors impaired his health and probably hastened his death. During his illness his sufferings were great. He remarked to his son, "It seems that a flame of fire is blazing up in my breast; but the promise is, 'When thou walkest through the fire it shall not kindle upon thee.'" His Lord walked with him through the furnace, and with faith and patience he passed through in triumph. He remarked at one time, "My way is all bright and clear," and then he would break forth in the language of triumph and praise, "Thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory!" After two weeks he yielded to the power of the disease, and sank gently and peacefully to sleep in the arms of Jesus.

Brother Kimber was eminently qualified to build up, edify, and instruct the Church. He was zealous, earnest, and determined in all his plans and enterprises. His sermons were generally thoughtful and well considered, and carried conviction to the minds of his hearers. The official board of Danville station passed a series of resolutions, on the occasion of his death, which have been extensively published. These resolutions speak in the highest terms of his ministerial fidelity, his Christian zeal, his friendship firm and pure, and his unswerving fidelity to the cause of his country and the cause of freedom and humanity.

5. Rev. Joseph Lane was born December 25, 1819, in Madison County, Ohio. He had been a member of the Illinois Conference about twenty-one years. In 1845 he was ordained deacon by Bishop Morris, and was ordained elder by Bishop Waugh in 1847. He was married, October 5, 1847, to Miss Hannah A. Piggott, of Jersey County, Ill., who proved to be an efficient, faithful, and cheerful colaborer with him through the remainder of his itinerant career. He died August 11, 1864, during the year that he occupied the Moawequa Circuit. His physical constitution was feeble, his mental talents were fair, and his intercourse among the people agreeable. The evening preceding his death, when told by the physician that he could not live through the night, he calmly remarked, "All right, all right." A few days before his death, when asked by his wife whether any temptations troubled him, he replied, "Temptations do present themselves, but they are not permitted to disturb my peace; all is joy and heavenly comfort." At another time he said, "Tell my brethren in the ministry that the Gospel I have preached to others sustains and comforts me in a dying hour."

6. Rev. Stephen M. Huckstep was born Jan. 24, 1831, and died in the Hospital at Nashville, Tenn., at four o'clock A. M., December 9, 1863. He was converted about eighteen years ago, and was shortly after licensed to preach. He was received into the Illinois Conference in 1852, and traveled successively the following circuits: Danville, Cumberland, Williamsburgh, Vermilion, Okaw, Middletown, Paradise, Rushville, and on each of these fields of labor he reported interesting revivals.

When the Rebellion broke out he took position promptly and firmly for putting it down at all hazards. After repeated requests and appeals he accepted the command of Company D, One hundred and fifteenth Regiment Illinois Infantry, Rev. Jesse H. Moore of this Conference being the colonel. He not only bravely commanded his men, but became to them a Christian pastor, and held religious meetings wherever practicable. While he was heroically leading his company on a desperate charge at the battle of Chickamauga, and had rushed almost to the very muzzle of the enemies' cannon, he was wounded by a canister shot, and was carried to Nashville to the hospital, where he soon after died. His father and his wife reached him about eight hours before he died. He told them his end was near. To his father he said, "All is well with me." To his wife he said, "I had hoped to live to point sinners to Christ, but God's will be done."

He soon passed peacefully to rest. All the officers and many members of the regiment gave unfeigned expressions of regret and bereavement in a series of resolutions already extensively published.

S. B. Sutton, E. L. Kemp, L. L. Welker—3.

1. Rev. Stephen B. Sutton was born in Clermont County, Ohio, February 14, 1819. He was, in the providence of God, left an orphan at an early age. From his youth he was modest, unostentatious, and retiring. He united with the Methodist Episcopal Church in February, 1837, at Olive Branch, New Richmond Circuit, Ohio Conference, and was converted to God at a camp-meeting held at Olive Branch in August of the same year. He filled by appointment the office of class-leader in his nineteenth year. He was married to his now bereaved widow February 24, 1841, which marriage union was a happy one, and facilitated the union of himself and wife with Christ.

He was licensed to exhort by order of the Quarterly Conference of New Richmond Circuit, August 28, 1843, which license bears the signature of Rev. W. H. Raper of precious memory, and was yearly renewed for several years by order of the same Quarterly Conference. He was licensed to preach by order of the Quarterly Conference of the same circuit March 16, 1844, which license was renewed from year to year until he was ordained a deacon by Bishop Morris October 25, 1851, at the Cincinnati Conference held in Cincinnati. The offices of class-leader, exhorter, and local preacher were filled by him with earnestness, spirituality, and efficiency. He was admitted on trial in the Indiana Conference in October, 1851, and was ordained elder by Bishop Simpson at Vincennes, in October, 1855. He ministered consecutively in the following charges, namely: Jonesville two years, Mooresville two years, Spencer two years, Monrovia one year, Wesley Chapel, New Albany, two years, Rockport two years, Martinsville one year and three months. In all these charges he was a great favorite, and was much beloved. Among the fruits of his labor, according to an accurate account kept by himself, he admitted twelve hundred and seventy-five persons on trial in the Church, and about the same number were converted.

Our beloved brother possessed manly virtues and excellent traits of character. He was kind and candid, modest and dignified, reserved and companionable. He knew by experience how to sympathize with the poor, and was always ready to assist them, and among them he had many beneficiaries. As a Christian he was devoted and spiritual. He loved religion, exemplified it, and enjoyed it. He was a diligent and systematic student, and thus he mastered several sciences and acquired much theological knowledge. His sermons were well prepared both in the study and in the closet, and were preached with enlightened zeal, producing marked saving effects upon his congregations.

Brother Sutton was attacked with typhoid fever early in November, 1863, and after lingering and suffering for several weeks, he died, surrounded by his family and a number of his friends, in great peace and joy, in Martinsville, December 3, 1863. During his illness he murmured not. He was placid and resigned, and many were his peaceful and exulting expressions to his wife and others. His peace was like a river; his soul rejoiced in God his Saviour. "He rests from his labors, and his works do follow him."

2. Rev. Ezra L. Kemp was born in Frederick County, Maryland, January 30, 1800, and was converted in the fifteenth year of his age. In 1821 he came to the West and settled in Clark County, Indiana, where he commenced to preach the Gospel as a local preacher. In 1836 he was admitted on trial in the Indiana Conference, and was sent to Brownstown Circuit. Subsequently he labored on the Bedford, Putnamville, Russelville, Terre Haute, New Port, Prairieton, New Lebanon, Paoli, Livonia, Fredericksburgh, New Philadelphia, Corydon, and Salem Circuits. In 1852 he was appointed agent for the Indiana Asbury Female College; in 1853-54 he held a superannuated relation; in 1855 he was made effective and appointed to West Union mission; in 1856 he was stationed at Ebenezer charge, New Albany; following this he traveled the Lanesville, Greenville, and Orangeville Circuits, and finally was sent to New Lebanon Station, where he ended his life and ministry on the 9th of January, 1864, in the sixty-fourth year of his age. His disease was bilious pleurisy of a most excruciating character, which, however, he bore with patience and entire resignation to the will of God, often seeking relief in the reading of the Bible and in prayer. One present asked if he was willing to die. "O yes," he responded; "the Lord's will, not mine, be done." Again being asked, "Are you afraid to die?" "No, no," was his quick, emphatic reply; "for many years I have been preparing for this hour, and now the Lord my Shepherd will not forsake me." When it was evident that death was near he called his family and other friends around his bed, and bade each one an affectionate farewell, and then in the fullness of his soul he exclaimed, "Glory be to God! light is beaming all around. If this is dying it is not hard." With many similar expressions of triumphant faith, he calmly turned his face to the wall and sweetly fell asleep in Jesus.

In contemplating the death of this faithful minister who does not exclaim, "Let me die the death of the righteous, and let my last end be like his?" Neatness and order were eminently characteristic of Brother Kemp, and courtesy and kindness marked his intercourse with his brethren. He abounded in labors, and seemed never to be so much at home as when in the work of his Divine Master. His preaching, always practical and evangelical, gave evidence of a mind well stored with useful knowledge, and a heart warmed and refined by the love of Christ. His body now rests in the grave-yard at New Albany, Indiana, in hope of the resurrection of the dead and of the life everlasting.

3. Rev. Leander L. Welker was born June 18, 1838, in Putnamville, Indiana, and was early dedicated by religious parents to God. From childhood he promised an amiable disposition and unblemished character. At the early age of fifteen years he was converted to Christ, and united with the Methodist Episcopal Church under the ministry of Rev. Joseph Whorten. In 1860 he was licensed to preach, and received on trial in the Indiana Conference. He was appointed successively to New Albany, Bowling Green, and Worthington Circuits, in all of which he labored with becoming zeal and usefulness, and had seals to his ministry. In these several charges he rapidly developed capacities of mind and heart which, had he lived, would have fitted him for higher orders and distinction in the ministry. He was returned to the Worthington Circuit the second year, and continued with zeal and fidelity to prosecute his labors as a minister till near the close of the conference year, when he was suddenly stricken down with typhoid fever, which terminated his life and labors on the 13th of September, 1864, in the twenty-seventh year of his age, and the fifth year of his Christian ministry. His last sufferings were somewhat protracted and severe, though patiently and heroically endured. In this affliction he gave the most satisfactory evidence to all who conversed with him that all was well. To his father, who reached his bedside before death, he said, "Fear not my dear father for me, I fear not to die; my way before me is perfectly clear."

Thus closed the life of our beloved young brother, and he has left an example of amiability in disposition, gentleness in manners, zeal in religion, and fidelity in the ministry worthy the imitation of all.

Quest. 12. Who have Died this year?

Norman Allyn, Carlisle Babbitt, R. J. Nall—3.

1. Rev. Norman Allyn was born in Hartford, Connecticut, January 23, 1810. He was an earnest and able minister of the gospel in the Methodist Episcopal Church for nearly thirty years. Brother Allyn served the Church in some of her most responsible offices. He acted in the capacity of presiding elder for many years. He served as a delegate to General Conference, and in Christian labors he was faithful and abundant. As an example of patience and perseverance, we can safely say, that Brother Allyn has never been excelled by any minister we have known. It was the happy privilege of one of the committee on these memoirs to profess the religion of Jesus at a revival conducted by this eminent and faithful man of God, at Naples, Illinois, in the early part of the year 1842. Hundreds have been gathered into the Church by this excellent man, and thousands have been cheered and instructed by his counsels and encouragements. He died of typhoid pneumonia, in blessed hope of immortality, at Bunker Hill, Illinois, March 27, 1864. Brother Allyn leaves behind a devoted wife, family, and numerous friends to mourn his loss. "Let me die the death of the righteous, and let my last end be like his."

2. Rev. Carlisle Babbitt was born in the state of Vermont, March 19, 1808. He experienced religion at a camp-meeting held near the city of Dayton, Ohio. He entered the traveling connection of the Methodist Episcopal Church in the Kentucky Conference, in the fall of 1831. He was married to Miss Sarah Holding in the fall of 1835, and was ordained elder at the Conference of the same year. He traveled extensively, and preached for more than thirty-one years. He was a fast friend of education, and labored to build up the institutions of the Church. He traveled part of his time as presiding elder. He located in the fall of 1855, and having removed to Illinois, he was readmitted into the active service of the Church in the Southern Illinois Conference in 1857. He always entered upon his work after each session of his Conference impressed with the great importance of the work to which Providence assigned him. He was prompt in his attentions to all the financial interests of the Church. Brother Babbitt was a kind father, an affectionate husband, and an excellent pastor. His last sickness was pneumonia, with which he suffered much; but his confidence in the divine mercy was complete. With a heart full, and triumphant with faith and affection, he bade his family adieu. And thus he passed away from labor to rest, and from a life of anxiety and toil, to his glorious reward, at Olney, Illinois, Sabbath, June 26, 1864.

3. Rev. Richard J. Nall was born January 11, 1818. He was licensed to preach and admitted on trial in the traveling connection of the Methodist Episcopal Church in the Illinois Conference in the fall of 1839. He was ordained deacon in 1841, and was admitted to elder's orders in 1843. He was a faithful and laborious minister of the Gospel for nearly twenty-five years. For several years he filled the office of presiding elder in an acceptable manner. His last illness was a complication of diseases, but was characterized by dropsy of the heart. His sufferings were very great, as he had to sit up in his chair for many weeks together. His mind was calm and stayed on God. His faith in the promises of the Gospel was strong and triumphant; and on the 2d of August, 1864, at Lawrenceville, Illinois, he fell asleep in Jesus, leaving a family and numerous friends to mourn his departure. In reviewing the life of this excellent minister, we can freely sum up his character in a few words; he was a happy, good, and most useful man.

Quest. 12. Who have Died this year?

B. Williams, Milo Scott—2.

1. Rev. Benajah Williams died at Glencoe, Belmont County, Ohio, January 22, 1864, aged sixty-four years. We have been unable to ascertain the place of his birth or the time of his conversion. He was first introduced to us in 1818, at which time he connected himself with the Genesee Conference, and was appointed to Bloomfield Circuit with James Hall for his collegue. In due time he was received into the Conference and ordained deacon and elder. It would be interesting to but few to follow him during the years of his ministry to all his appointments; suffice it to say, that he was one of the oldest members of the Genesee Conference, and one of the pioneers of Methodism in Western New York. He had been for more than forty-five years in the itinerant ranks, and was one of the most laborious, efficient, and successful preachers of his day. Hundreds in the Church, and many watchmen upon her walls, revere him as the honored instrument under God of their conversion. On almost every circuit that he ever traveled, revivals, more or less extensive, and large accessions, crowned his labors. He always expected this, and whenever he went to a new field of labor, he immediately set himself to work to promote the salvation of souls. He attended faithfully to the enforcement of the rules and discipline of the Church. Without ostentation or offensive obtrusiveness, he visited from house to house, conversing with old and young, rich and poor, educated and uneducated, on the subject of religion, and such was his earnest sincerity and his deep piety, that he seldom left a house or an individual without leaving favorable impressions. He was never idle. Few men have distributed so largely the literature of the Church; everywhere he increased the number of subscribers to our Church periodicals. He was a friend of education, and was one of the efficient instruments in founding the seminary at Cazenovia, also the Genesee Wesleyan Seminary. He was much devoted to his family; and notwithstanding the scanty support which he received, he succeeded in giving his children a respectable education. He was one of the original antislavery men of the Genesee Conference, not afraid nor ashamed to be called an abolitionist; firm and unyielding in his views, because he had an honest conviction that they were right. In the latter part of his life, he seemed to have no stronger anxiety in regard to himself than that he might live to see the end of slavery in this country. He did live until he saw it tottering to its fall, till the dark cloud which had so long hung over the land began to be lifted, and the light to break forth. In his last sickness his concern for this was gone, and he rejoiced that he could discover a glorious future for his country. He died at the house of his son-in-law, Colonel H. Neff. The immediate cause of his death was typhoid pneumonia, though he had long been in feeble health, aggravated by attacks of epileptic fits. His bodily suffering was extreme, yet his mind was calm and composed; he died forgiven and forgiving. His remains were taken to Chagrin Falls, Ohio, where he spent the last years of his life; and the funeral sermon was preached, agreeably to his own request made on his death bed, by his excellent and intimate friend, Rev. J. Studds, from Isaiah xxxiii, 15, 16; a passage which the veteran man of God had selected for the occasion some time before his death. His aged consort, for more than half a century the partner of his toils and his sacrifices, survives him to mourn his loss. "Servant of God, well done."

2. Rev. Milo Scott.—The record of a departed minister, while it saddens our hearts by the reflection that another laborer has been called from his field of toil, is mitigated in its severity when a reasonable assurance is furnished that he has been transferred to the Church above.

Such is our feeling in relation to the recent decease of our esteemed brother, Rev. Milo Scott. For twenty-one years successively, during which time he has been a member of the Genesee Conference, he has stood among us not only a spotless man, but an able and efficient minister of the Lord Jesus. He leaves a record honorable to his memory and full of tender interest to his brethren. Few men loved more ardently the doctrines, institutions, and economy of the Methodist Episcopal Church. How well he executed the high trust of a Christian pastor, the various fields which he has so successfully occupied give ample testimony.

Brother Scott was emphatically a man of one work, having always kept his ministry steadily before him as pre-eminently his great vocation. The last Sabbath he spent on earth he preached with the unction of the Holy Ghost, and arranged for closing the Conference year, exhorting the people of his circuit to come together to hold an extra Quarterly Meeting, that they might have, as he expressed it, "a good time." That Sabbath found him amid the glories of the upper sanctuary. After a brief illness of only four days, during which he suffered most intensely, he ceased at once to work and live.

He was born in New Berlin, Chenango County, N. Y., in 1818, converted and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church in 1836, was licensed to preach in 1842, joined the Genesee Conference in 1843, and fell asleep in Jesus October 1, 1864, aged forty-six years. The last three days of his life will never be forgotten by those who were permitted to receive his dying testimony. Referring to the brother whom he wished to preach his funeral sermon, "Tell them," said he, "I am on a good foundation."

When his wife asked him, "What shall I and the children do when you are gone?" his prompt and characteristic reply was worthy of the heroic age. "O, be brave, and trust in God, and He who has always taken care of us will still take care of you." Noble words of the dying husband and father, exhibiting the same unfaltering faith in God by which he had been so long sustained! What a glorious legacy is such a life crowned with such a death, bequeathed to his afflicted widow and her orphan children; and what an admonition to us, his colaborers, does the suddenness of his death administer! His generous salutation at our annual gatherings, his manly bearing in the Conference-room, and his words of cheer, will long be cherished in the memories of his ministerial brethren, who had learned to esteem and love him. May his mantle fall on each of us, and may we be fitted for a similar glorious triumph.

John Dempster.

Rev. John Dempster, D.D. Rarely does it fall to the lot of an annual conference to record the death of a minister of the Gospel at once so aged, so venerable and so active as was the subject of this notice at the period of our last annual assemblage. Although at that time Dr. Dempster had been forty-seven years a traveling minister, he appeared among us as one capable of doing full service in the most responsible offices of the Church. He served on our leading committees. His voice in pregnant utterances was heard on the most important subjects, and at the time of our separation he left as hopefully as any one of our number to enter upon the duties still before him. A few weeks later, in the church where we are now assembled, he presided at the Anniversary of the Institution to which the last nine years of his life had been devoted. That was the last public service at which he officiated. On the 28th of November, 1863, he fell asleep in Jesus, aged seventy years lacking thirty-five days.

He was born January 2, 1794, in the town of Florida, New York. At the age of eighteen he was brought to the knowledge of sins forgiven through the merits of a crucified Redeemer, and soon after commenced the glorious work of calling sinners to repentance. He entered the itinerant ranks in 1816, and his successive appointments, as stated in our General Minutes, were as follows: 1816, St. Lawrence, Lower Canada District; 1817, Paris, New York; 1818, Watertown; 1819, Scipio; 1820, superannuated; 1821–22, Watertown; 1823, Homer; 1824, Auburn; 1825–26, Rochester; 1827–28, Cazenovia; 1829–32, Cayuga District, Oneida Conference; 1833–35, Black River District; 1836–41, Missionary to Buenos Ayres; 1842, Vestry-street, New York; 1843–44, Mulberry-street; 1845–54, Professor in Biblical Institute, Newbury, Vermont, and Concord, New Hampshire; 1855–63, Professor in Garrett Biblical Institute, Evanston, Illinois. Thus he was successively a member of the Genesee, Oneida, New Hampshire, Black River, and Rock River Conferences.

His fields of labor were extremely diverse, and yet he occupied every one of them with marked success. From the borders of Canada on the north to St. Augustine, Florida, on the south, whither he went in 1835, primarily in search of health, and thence to Buenos Ayres in South America; from New England on the east to Illinois on the west, his name has, during the last half century, been familiar to the good, and associated with active labors for the promotion of the cause of Christ.

As in many pages already published (see Appendix to the volume of Dempster's Lectures and Addresses, also the July number of the Methodist Quarterly Review) his character as a minister, as a missionary, as a student and thinker, also as a teacher and a man of progress, has been duly set forth, it is only necessary, indeed, only practicable, here to record a few brief words in token of the estimate in which his memory as a preacher and an educator deserves to be cherished by the Church.

As a preacher he was at once simple, stirring, and profound. He seized with a master's hand upon the great cardinal truths of revelation and providence, and wielded them with equal application to the judgment and the conscience. His earlier ministry was marked with great impressiveness, and if in after years, with failing strength and more contemplative habits, his manner in the pulpit seemed less energetic and his thoughts more profound, there never was a time when sacred truth did not kindle lively emotions in his soul and call forth breathing and burning words from his lips.

As an educator his position was one of peculiar influence and honor. Convinced by his own experience and observation of the great loss the Church was suffering for lack of institutions specially adapted to ministerial education, he devoted himself intelligently and laboriously to the task of founding such institutions. For this work he had a special talent and a special call, and God crowned his labors with encouraging success. For eighteen years he toiled in this chosen field, and though his work was in a great degree preliminary, he was permitted ere its close to witness results which cheered his heart and filled him with glorious anticipations for the future. Although not spared to consummate all the plans he had formed, he nevertheless accomplished more in various spheres than most men would have dared to plan. When in the midst of schemes and undertakings contemplating future usefulness on distant shores, he was suddenly summoned to rest from his labors, he was found prepared for the event. The severity of his illness left him little strength for the utterance of words, yet the calmness of his spirit, his occasional responses, and the expressions of his countenance, indicated a glorious triumph over the last enemy through faith in the atonement of Christ.

> "O, may we triumph so,
> When all our warfare's past:
> And, dying, find our latest foe
> Under our feet at last!"

Oscar F. Chase.

Rev. Oscar F. Chase embraced religion in 1856, and was admitted on trial in the Michigan Annual Conference held at Ionia, 1860, and appointed to Partello Circuit, where his labors not only gave entire satisfaction, but were crowned with the conversion of many souls. Mason was his next appointment; on this charge he labored two years with great success; there were many seals added to his ministry. Brother Chase possessed more then ordinary preaching ability; he was diligent in the study, faithful as a pastor, earnest and affectionate in his pulpit ministrations. In social life he was retiring and graceful. His future as a Christian minister was full of promise, which has speedily, however, culminated in the glories of the Church triumphant. In 1863 he was appointed to St. Johns, but before he reached his field of labor he was stricken down by inflammation of the lungs, and after a few days of severe suffering he departed this life in the triumphs of faith on the 17th day of October, 1863, in the thirty-eighth year of his age.

Bishop Burns.

Rev. Francis Burns, D.D., Missionary Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church for Africa, and member of the Liberia Mission Conference, was born in Albany, New York, December 5, 1809, of poor parentage, so poor that Francis had to be bound, at the age of five years, to Bennet Atwood, of Greene County. In Mr. Atwood he had a staunch friend, as far as the things of this world go, but on Sundays he was under no restraint, and was allowed to go where his own inclinations prompted. At school one day he was admonished of the awful consequences of sin, and in such a manner that it directed his thoughts for the first time to religion. He sought and obtained pardon in his fifteenth year. Impressed with the idea that he was called to preach, he asked God to open the way for him to get some schooling. A way was opened, and for some fifteen months he attended the Lexington Heights Academy. Still doubting the certainty of his call, although he had been licensed an exhorter and local preacher, he asked God for a field, when the Rev. David Terry, then on that circuit, called his attention to Liberia, and at the session of the New York Conference held in Poughkeepsie in 1834, recommended him to Bishop Hedding. His certificate of appointment to the Liberia Mission was signed August 6, 1834, by R. Spaulding as superintendent of Liberia Mission. He came out with Superintendent J. Seys in that same year, and landed in Monrovia on the 18th of October. The first post assigned him was as a teacher at Cape Palmas, under Rev. A. D. Williams. In 1838 he joined the Liberia Mission Conference; from 1840-42 was stationed as assistant on the Bassa Circuit; in 1843-44, in Monrovia; was ordained deacon at Brooklyn, New York, in the morning, and elder at New York in the afternoon, in the Mulberry-street Church on the 16th of June, 1844, by Bishop E. S. Janes; returned to Liberia the same year, and at the next session of the Conference was appointed presiding elder of the Cape Palmas District; in 1851, by the direct order of the Board in New York, he was removed to Monrovia to open the Monrovia Academy and act as superintendent of the Mission. On the 14th of October, 1858, he was ordained at Perry, Wyoming County, New York, by the Reverend Bishops Janes and Baker, at the session of the Genesee Conference according to the provision made by the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church in the United States held in 1856, to the office and work of a Missionary Bishop. He returned to Liberia, his home, during that year, and for nearly five years Bishop Burns devoted himself unceasingly in behalf of the Church, until advised by his physician to go abroad for his health, which had then become exceedingly poor.

He died, while following the direction to go abroad for his health, of consumption, in the fifty-fourth year of his age, in Baltimore, Maryland, on the 18th of April, 1863, three days after his arrival in the United States, as he had lived, a firm believer in the faith. Bishop Burns for his qualities as husband, parent, citizen, and friend, had few equals in Liberia. He has left a widow and eight children. May they all follow his example, and like him "die the death of the righteous."

E. Sayer, A. J. Wall—2.

1. Rev. EZRA SAYER was transferred from Troy Conference, New York, in the year 1850, to the Missouri Conference, and his first appointment was to Shelbyville, then to Edina, Memphis, and Kirksville; was superannuated in the year 1860, and removed to his home near Shelbyville, preaching occasionally as his health would permit; and when the hand of affliction was laid upon him, he gradually fell beneath the power of a dropsical affection, and patiently endured as seeing Him who is invisible. Brother Sayer died the past summer. During his last hours he left his bed by request, asked a blessing before supper, partook lightly, returned to his couch, and quickly breathed his last, in hope of a blissful immortality. Brother Sayer was a preacher of no common abilities; he fulfilled the duties of his station in a manner which won the confidence and respect of all with whom he came in contact, and within the past month his consort also passed away in the triumph of Christian faith.

2. Rev. ANDREW J. WALL came to us from his native state, Indiana, and was recommended and elected to deacon's orders, when a local preacher, during the session of the Missouri Conference at Pleasant Green, Cooper County, Mo., August 28, 1850. He was then received on trial in the Missouri Conference, and was appointed to Unionville, Lancaster, and Ashley Circuits. He was then located at his own request, and readmitted in 1859 and appointed to Linneus Circuit. In the year 1860 he became a superannuate; after which he lived at Laporte, Macon County, Mo., and finally removed to the state of Iowa, where he finished his life in great peace, near Fairfield, Jefferson County. Brother Wall was a man of clear intellect and good mind; was regarded as a useful preacher, whose talents and sermons were alike above mediocrity, and who possessed, more than all else, that which is indispensable to a minister of the Gospel, an exemplary spirit of humility. Well may we say with the wise man, "The memory of the just is blessed." Brother Wall left a wife and several children to follow him and meet him in heaven.

1. Rev. John Bowen.—The register of the East Baltimore Conference for 1864 contains an epistle dictated by this venerated and beloved father and brother "in the prospect of a glorious immortality." The chronicle for this year records, that on the 18th of November, 1864, he was conveyed to the "immortality" he was then touching, and is now "numbered with the blest." He was in his seventy-second year. The fathers do not live forever on earth, but in the better land eternal life is rendered "to them who by patient continuance in well doing seek for glory and honor and immortality." This memorial of departed worth is made up from his own voluminous MSS. and materials given by the "widow indeed," who for nearly forty years journeyed with him in the way the Lord their God led them. Her company before is gone; may she trust in God, and continue in supplications and prayers night and day, until from the farewells of earth she receives the welcomes of Paradise.

From an autobiography extending to 1850 we draw a few sentences: "I was born June 8, 1793, in Bedford County, Pennsylvania. I am able only to trace my ancestry to my great-grandfather, William Bowen, who came from Wales with William Penn, and first settled on part of the site where Philadelphia now stands. He subsequently removed to Chester County, where my grandfather and father were born. In 1784 my father was married to my mother, Eleanor Edwards, who was brought up in Loudoun County, Virginia, but removed to Adams County, Pa., with her father's family a short time before her marriage." His father's birthright was forfeited by his marriage; and on the removal of the family to Bedford County, they were only "outer-court worshipers on first days." Afterward John Bowen, the first in the family of twelve sons and daughters to obtain experimental religion, was made the honored instrument of the conversion of father and mother and brothers and sisters, before he was sent into the field of the world to show unto other men the way of salvation. He was "when about seventeen years of age, without any visible instrumentality besides the reading of the Bible, powerfully awakened to a sense of his lost condition," and for four years was feeling after God and salvation. At the end of this night joy came in the morning. He lived four years in the state of Ohio, and there "away from his home and the friends of his youth" he passed from death unto life, receiving a conversion of which he said a thousand times in love-feasts, and wrote it in a book, "Light from the upper world broke into my soul. It was quick as lightning, bright as the sun's meridian beams, and convincing as a demonstration. I could then as easily have doubted my own existence as I could have doubted the favor of God." The grace then received, it is believed, was never forfeited. He grew stronger and stronger. This change was made in November, 1817. On the 10th of July, 1818, he was licensed to exhort, and in May, 1819, returned to his native place, and in his own country, and among his own kin, was honored with many honors from God. He was licensed to preach Jan. 29, 1820. In the sphere of home he labored with success as a local preacher until June 20, 1822, when the sainted Henry Smith, then presiding elder of the Northumberland district, appointed him to Bedford circuit, and the young itinerant was in a peculiar sense a "home missionary." In 1823 he was admitted on trial in the Baltimore Conference; ordained a deacon by Bishop Soule, April 10, 1825, and an elder by Bishop Roberts, April 15, 1827. During two and forty years he fulfilled this ministry which he had received of the Lord Jesus, to testify the Gospel of the grace of God; twenty-three in Pennsylvania, fourteen in Maryland, (including nearly four years of superannuation,) and five in Virginia. Twenty-six of these years were on large circuits, twelve in stations, and four in comparative obscurity, waiting for his change. He now rejoices that he has not run in vain, neither labored in vain. His life of honorable and useful toil was crowned with a peaceful end. He preached several times in the fortnight preceding his last sickness, wishing to be useful as long as he lived. On the day before he was seized with his final illness he preached in Waugh Chapel, adjoining Beulah Cottage, (his retreat in the last days,) on Matt. xv, 25, "Lord help me," and in nine days sweetly "fell asleep." His last hours were brightened with peculiar luster. To her who was with him day and night, when calmly looking to the end on the third day of his sickness, he said after a pause, "Well, I can submit; I believe I have no accounts to settle for this world or the next. I would like to take care of you a little longer, but I am content." He suffered pain uncomplainingly, was sweetly calm, spoke lovingly to every one, and thrice repeated,

> In heaven above, where all is love,
> There'll be no more suffering there.

When only wife and daughter were present, he was heard repeating, as if in soliloquy, Isaiah lxiii, 1–4, "Who is this that cometh from Edom;" etc., and added from our 756th hymn, drawn from the German by John Wesley,

> Thou, Lord, the dreadful fight hast won;
> Alone thou hast the winepress trod:
> In me thy strength'ning grace be shown:
> O may I conquer through thy blood!
> So, when on Sion thou shalt stand,
> And all heaven's host adore their King,
> Shall I be found at thy right hand,
> And, free from pain, thy glories sing.

After this he spoke but little except when interrogated. In answer to several questions he said, "All our sins and short comings, when compared with the boundless mercy and infinite fullness of our Redeemer, are as the dust in the balance." When asked, "If you had your life to live over would you preach the Gospel?" he said, "Yes; in the discharge of duty there was always a pleasure." "What message," said a fellow-minister, "do you send your brethren of the Conference?" "If I could—" he replied, "but I can only say, tell them all is well with me for life and godliness." When his faithful physician, Dr. Kepler, said, "Mr. Bowen, I suppose you have no fear of death?" with a decided emphasis he repeated three times, "Not any, not any, not any!" He soon drew a few quiet prolonged breaths and was gone; gone to his reward. His face was beautiful in death; so calm, it seemed to express what he had often said when sick, "I am content." Devout men carried him to his burial. The mortal part was consigned to the Baltimore Cemetery, beside a beloved grandson. His record is on high; his works do follow him. He was useful, yet unostentatious; was instrumental in the conversion of many precious souls; received many valuable members into the Church; improved many circuits and stations; always punctual in filling his preaching appointments, and diligent in his duties. He was a man "in whom was no guile;" a true friend, and unselfish in a high degree; he was never covetous, but was generous, kind, and patient, in the fullest sense of the word. He was always hopeful; his equanimity was remarkable; his faith strong, his trust in God's care habitual. He was fond of study from childhood, and devoted every leisure hour to reading and writing; yet when deprived of sight never murmured; seldom alluded to it, but cheerfully took up such employments as he was capable of pursuing. When he superannuated and retired into comparative obscurity, he never felt slighted or indulged in fault-finding. The evening of his life was calm and tranquil, and when his sun went down it was in the hope of a glorious rising in the morning of the day of Christ.

So lived and so died John Bowen. When we give "honor to whom honor is due," we pronounce him

"A veteran warrior in the Christian field,
Who never saw the sword he could not wield:
Grave without dullness, learned without pride,
Exact yet not precise, though meek, keen-eyed:
A man that could have foiled at their own play
A dozen would-be's of the modern day;
Who, when occasion justified its use,
Had wit as bright as ready to produce;
Could fetch from records of an earlier age,
Or from philosophy's enlightened page,
His rich materials, and regale your ear
With strains it was a privilege to hear;
Yet, above all, his luxury supreme
And his chief glory was the Gospel theme;
There he was copious as old Greece or Rome,
His happy eloquence seemed there at home,
Ambitious not to shine or to excel,
But to treat justly what he loved so well."

2. Rev. Archibald G. Marlatt, A.M., was born in Warren County, N. J., in 1829, and died in Mechanicsburgh, Pa., Jan. 2, 1865. He graduated at Dickinson College in 1850; received the degree of A.M. at the Wesleyan University in 1853; was junior preacher on Carlisle Circuit in 1851; was the following year appointed to Lock Haven Circuit, where a bronchial affection developed itself, which compelled him to locate in 1854. Was ordained deacon in 1853; elder in 1858. Was appointed professor of a male literary institution in Washington city in 1854, where he remained until 1856, when he accepted the presidency of Irving Female College, and to this institution he devoted his energy and talents from its origin in 1856, until Monday morning, January 2, 1865, when he "fell asleep in Jesus." The personal characteristics of our brother may be included in the comprehensive title "a Christian gentleman," the highest style and type of manhood. As a gentleman, a scholar, and a minister of truth, his was a noble candor. His charity was indeed not blind; when truth was concerned his trumpet gave no uncertain sound. In everything that bore upon truth or purity he was a decided man. Of his mental power and literary culture it may be safely said that he possessed a clear intellectual perception; rapid insight, coupled with careful analysis and broad power of generalizing; a vivid sensibility of nature, a keen discrimination of character, a large acquaintance with ancient and modern belles lettres; and from the college under his presidency have been sent forth those that shall shine brightly in the literary world. He was a man of remarkable Christian munificence. In a word, his activity in benevolence was as large as in the literary undertakings and official employments which were the immediate business of his life. His religious character was as an "epistle known and read of all men;" one that went on steadily improving in purity, zeal for doing good, and self-consecration. He was a truly catholic Christian, embracing in his love all the followers of our common Lord, and in return, all classes of Christians to whom he was known regarded him with affectionate confidence, and mingle their tears with ours over his grave. He was a hopeful and joyful Christian. This shone forth particularly at the close of his life. In an interview with his pastor, Rev. James C. Clark, on Dec. 21, he remarked, "When you hear that A. G. Marlatt has fallen, remember it is all well with him; 'to die is gain.'" To his wife he said, "God is good! God is love! I wish I could describe to you the grace afforded me. O the exceeding great and precious promises! and they are all mine, the least of all the saints. No wonder David said, 'His name shall be held in everlasting remembrance;' around and about me are the everlasting arms. O how secure I am; I am resting in God." And again, "I have conquered self and every temptation, and am like a warrior retiring from the field victorious." And again, at a time when suffering most intensely, he exclaimed, "Shall a soldier grow weary of the march when almost in sight of camp? Nay,

"I'm marching through Immanuel's grounds,
To fairer worlds on high."

And now the goal has been reached; our brother is safe at home.

3. Rev. Thomas Care, A.M., was born July 10, 1832, and died at the house of his father in Harrisburgh, Pa., March 18, 1864, aged thirty-one years and eight months. In his boyhood he was moral, and generally quiet. At school he was cheerful, ingenuous, affectionate; a desirable school-mate. While at Dickinson College in 1857, applying himself with indomitable energy and great success to his studies, intending to make the law his profession, he became a subject of renewing grace. He was not long in doubt, nor conferred with flesh and blood; but feeling it his duty to give himself to his Master's cause, devoted himself to the Gospel ministry. In 1859 he was admitted on trial in the East Baltimore Conference, and appointed to Shirleysburgh Circuit; in 1860, to Mifflin Circuit; in 1861, to New Bloomfield Circuit; and in 1862–63 Professor of Natural Science, Williamsport, Dickinson Seminary. Here he applied himself with his usual energy, had the confidence and love of the students, and succeeded very well as a teacher. But though seemingly diverted from the itinerant ministry, he filled appointments in the town and country with great acceptance. He also took up new appointments like a true missionary; and there is at least one considerable society of his founding, where the people still esteem brother Care "very highly in love for his work's sake."

But during his latter year at the Seminary his health began seriously to fail. He retired from his active literary labors in August, 1863, but not to be idle. He rusticated, hoping soon to brace up his failing health. In December he betook himself to the wild portions of Elk County, Pennsylvania, continuing to labor as a self-appointed missionary. As did his weary Master at Jacob's well, so this young evangelist presented his holy theme by the wayside as well as in the congregation. But he was compelled to retire from these apostolic labors in the same month, and returned to his father's. Here his energy was remarkable; for though continually failing, and within a few days of his departure, he insisted that "the Lord had yet a work for him to do." But finding he must die, he employed his powers as best he could, in exhortation, prayer, and praise. He was severely assailed by the tempter during his last night on earth, but obtained a glorious victory, and then sang and shouted, declaring that he wished all the world could hear him. On approaching his dissolution he informed his mother that he must die, but requested her not to weep for him, remarking also to another friend at the same time that all was well; that his name was written in the Lamb's Book of Life.

In his manners Brother Care was modest, frank, and cheerful; in his friendship, honorable, affectionate, and constant. His mind was well disciplined, and his sermons, though not ornate, were substantial and convincing, appealing to the judgment rather than to the imagination, and were always impressive. His consistent life was an important element of his ministry.

> "His preaching much, but more his practice wrought
> A living sermon of the truths he taught."

As a pastor he was no less an indefatigable worker, being one of those who literally went into the highways and hedges to compel them to come in. It was his delight to seek the destitute, and through him was prayer heard in many a hovel for the first time. And in the day of eternity there shall doubtless fall upon his ears the comforting words of the Master, "Inasmuch as ye did it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye did it unto me." He was also a laborious student, bestowing much careful thought on his pulpit efforts, that he might "give to the Lord the best he had." Perhaps the most distinguishing characteristic of this young man was his deep and earnest devotion to his work. He sought thorough preparation for it by communing much with God. He was known often to retire to the grove and fields that this communion might be uninterrupted and sanctifying. He did commune with God to the end, for just before he died his brother-in-law remarked to him, "Thomas, you are almost over the river." He replied, "Yes, glory, glory, glory to God! I am on the banks of the river, and will soon be on the other shore. I have no desire to change my present condition for life." He was buried, from the Ridge Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, in the Harrisburgh Cemetery.

Rev. Joseph S. Lee was born in Lycoming County, Pa., December 16, 1808, and died March 4, 1864, in Glen Hope, Clearfield County, Pa., aged fifty-five years, five months, and nineteen days. He was the son of Rev. Timothy Lee, once an itinerant Methodist preacher, and a man of great power, long and favorably known as the champion of Methodism in his day. The early religious training which the son received, and the pious example which was dayly set before him, was not without an influence on his subsequent life. On his dying bed, being too ill to write to his brethren, he said to his son, "As I do not expect to recover from this illness, it may be proper for me to say, I was born of religious parents, and at a camp-meeting held in Clearfield County, under the pastoral care of Rev. O. Ege, September, 1829, I obtained the evidence that God for Christ's sake pardoned all my sins." Here his strength failed, and the last words he desired to say to his brethren were never uttered. Soon after his conversion he felt the love of Christ constraining him to call sinners to repentance, and in obedience to this divine call he began to warn his fellow-beings to flee from the wrath to come. In 1834 he was admitted into the Baltimore Conference, and was appointed to Lycoming Circuit. His appointments subsequently were as follows: 1835, Lewistown Circuit; 1836, Danville Circuit; 1837, Beaver Meadow Mission; 1838, Concord; 1839–40, Clearfield; 1841–42, Bedford Cir.; 1843–44, Warrior's Mark; 1845, Huntingdon; 1846–47, Williamsburgh; 1848–49, Northumberland; 1850–51, Bloomsburgh; 1852, Munson; 1853–54, Newberry; 1855–56, Shrewsbury; 1857, Castle Fin; 1858–59, North Baltimore Circuit; 1860, East Harford; 1861–62, Glen Hope. In 1863 he was placed on the superannuated list; and the following Spring, while his conference was in session in Altoona, it was announced that Joseph S. Lee was no more. He had passed from labor to reward.

As a preacher he was logical, pointed, and practical, and at times in exhortation he moved his hearers as few have power to do. He was successful in winning souls, and brought many into the fold of Christ. As a pastor, he was diligent in season and out of season, reproving and exhorting all with whom he had intercourse. He was acceptable and useful wherever the authorities of the Church sent him, and was regarded as a fair specimen of a faithful itinerant preacher. All his appointments were on circuits in Pennsylvania and Maryland. One of his presiding elders in representing him in conference said, "Joseph S. Lee is one of the best circuit preachers I have known." He possessed more than ordinary ability in managing the affairs of a circuit. The work never ran down in his hands. He was a mild, yet strict disciplinarian, prudent and unassuming, yet independent and fearless in the discharge of duty. As a financier he excelled, and in every department of his ministerial labors he was a workman who needed not to be ashamed. His last pulpit exercise was in connection with the funeral services of an old friend, in St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal Church, New York. This occurred in January. He was then unwell, and reached his home with difficulty, but did not take to his bed until three weeks before his death. A few days before he died he expressed a wish to have a prayer-meeting held in his room, saying he desired to receive a powerful blessing before he departed; nor was he disappointed. He then gave his last exhortation to his family and friends, telling them the world had no charms for him, that he was ready, that all darkness was gone, and all was now eternal sunshine. He shouted the praises of God aloud and wept for joy. His last words were in reply to a question from an only brother, "How do you feel in death's cold stream?" He exclaimed, "Joy! I feel no condemnation."

A few months after his death, his wife, who had been for several years greatly afflicted, followed her husband to that land where there is no more sickness, and "where the wicked cease from troubling and the weary are at rest."

QUEST. 12. Who have Died this year?

J. S. Patterson.

Rev. JACOB S. PATTERSON was born in Greene county, Pa., Jan. 31, 1819, and died in Knightstown, Indiana, July 10, 1864. His parents, John and Elizabeth Patterson, "trained their children for God, and he owned their labors." From childhood Jacob was convinced that he "must be born again," and at times he "sought very earnestly for that blessing, and then again would neglect duty and sin much against God," until in his sixteenth year he was more deeply convinced of sin, and fully resolved to seek until he should obtain the forgiveness of sins. This blessing he soon experienced. He was "justified by faith," received "the spirit of adoption," and "was constrained to rejoice with joy unspeakable and full of glory." This occurred on the 5th of December, 1835, at a meeting held in his father's house by Rev. John J. Swayze. On the next day he "gladly joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, which proved," as he himself expressed it not one month before his death, "a refuge and a home" for him "in this world of sorrow." Immediately after his conversion the impression was fixed upon his mind that it was his duty to preach the Gospel of Christ; and this impression "grew stronger and stronger," until, "in much weakness, and with great fear and trembling," he engaged in that great work. On the 13th of December, 1838, he was licensed to exhort by W. D. Lemmon. On the 10th of October, 1840, he was licensed to preach by the Quarterly Conference of Claysville Circuit, Pittsburgh Conference, T. M. Hudson, P. E. In April, 1841, he was employed to fill a vacancy on Fish Creek Circuit; and in July of the same year, on the recommendation of the Quarterly Conference of that circuit, he was received on trial in the Pittsburgh Conference. His first appointment was to Butler Circuit. In 1842 he was appointed to West Milford Circuit, and continued there two years; and at the close of that time he married Miss Elizabeth A., daughter of Col. Patten, whose exemplary deportment has shown that she was well qualified for her responsible position. In 1844, and again in 1845, he was appointed to Buckhannon Circuit; in 1846–47 to Kingwood. The West Virginia Conference was formed in 1848, and he was embraced in it, and was appointed to Weston. In 1849–50 he was stationed in Morgantown; 1851–52, in Fairmount; 1853–54, Chaplinestreet, Wheeling; 1855–56, Parkersburgh; 1857–58, Charleston; 1859–60, North-street, Wheeling; and in 1861–62 he was again appointed to Fairmount. During the latter year his health failed, so that he was compelled to desist from preaching; and in 1863, with painful feelings, he took a superannuated relation; and during the same year he removed to Indiana, where with joy he finished his course. His state of mind, his firm trust in the Redeemer, and his readiness to depart and to be with Christ, are so clearly indicated in a sketch of his life drawn up by himself, (in accordance with a request of the Conference addressed to all the preachers,) that we deem it proper to give to his brethren in the ministry and laity the closing part of it.

"It will be perceived," he says, "that God gave me the great honor and blessed privilege of preaching the glorious Gospel for twenty-two years. But alas! during these precious years I have been a very 'unprofitable servant.' Yet, through the tender mercy of our God, I have generally had intimations of his favor, and often clear evidence of his love. God has given me some success in each of the charges that I have served, which has been cheering to my heart, and calculated to sustain the conviction that it was my duty to proclaim salvation to dying sinners. I have strong belief in all the doctrines of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and find great comfort therein. And now, being in very feeble health, with many symptoms of speedy dissolution of the body, I can say, 'Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil, for thou art with me,' etc. My sustaining hope is based entirely upon Jesus. God in infinite mercy has given him as the Saviour of sinners. I gladly accept him as my Saviour. My mind lately has been unusually impressed with the fullness, the vastness, and infinite efficacy of the Saviour's merits for sinners. Thank God for the privilege of having a personal interest in those merits! And now I wish to say to all my brethren of the ministry and of the laity, that I realize a growing love to you all, and I bid you an affectionate adieu, hoping to renew our acquaintance on high."

Thus wrote, on the 9th of June, not quite one month before he died, our modest, amiable, and beloved Brother Patterson. He was an exemplary Christian, and a faithful and able minister of the Gospel, whose hands were "pure, whose doctrine and whose life, coincident," gave "lucid proof that he" was "honest in the sacred cause." Hence, through the whole of his itinerant career he was everywhere respected and useful. "Acceptable to God and approved of men" while he lived, he died in great peace, and has received "the crown of life, which the Lord hath promised to them that love him."

QUEST. 12. Who have Died this year?

Thomas H. W. Monroe.

Rev. T. H. W. MONROE was born in Fairfax County, Virginia, October 11, 1804. When a youth he made a public profession of religion under the ministry of Rev. Thomas J. Dorsey, and attached himself to the Methodist Episcopal Church. He soon exhibited grace and gifts suited to the Christian ministry; and after exercising his talents as an exhorter for more than a year, he was licensed to preach February 25, 1826. From September of that year until conference, he was employed by the presiding elder on Stafford and Westmoreland Circuits, and in the spring of 1827 was admitted on trial in the Baltimore Annual Conference. His appointments in the Conference were as follows: 1827, Carlisle Circuit; 1828, Gettysburgh; 1829, Bedford; 1830, Liberty; 1831, Cumberland; 1832, City Station, Baltimore; 1833–34, Shippensburgh; 1835–36, Harper's Ferry; 1837–38, Winchester Circuit; 1839–40, Liberty; 1841–42, Patapsco Station; 1843, Berkeley; 1844–45, Hereford; 1846, Chambersburgh; 1847, Columbia-street, Baltimore; 1848–49, Harper's Ferry; 1850–54, Huntingdon District; 1854–58, Frederick District; 1858, Baltimore Circuit; 1859–60, Franklin-street, Baltimore; 1861, agent for the Baltimore Christian Advocate; 1862–63, East Washington; 1864, Fayette-street, Baltimore.

Brother Monroe was twice married. His first wife was Miss Mary Ann Shuck, daughter of Mr. Daniel Shuck, of Bedford, Pennsylvania, to whom he was united June 16, 1831, and who lived only about eight months after their marriage. His second wife was Miss Sarah Ann Warfield, daughter of the late Alexander Warfield of Frederick County, Maryland. She and three children survive our lamented brother, greatly sustained under their sad bereavement by the comforting consideration that their loss is his infinite gain. The last illness of Brother Monroe was of short duration. When asked by his physician as to his hope of eternal life, he answered, "My hope is based upon the atonement of Jesus Christ." As the closing scene approached, he said to his wife, "Be faithful," and to his children, "Trust, trust, trust." He tried to leave a message for his congregation, but failing to form a sentence, was asked if they should be told that the Gospel which he had preached to them sustained him in his last moments. He replied, "Yes, yes!" He died July 28, 1864, in the sixtieth year of his age. We cannot easily over-estimate the character of our deceased brother. In his family he was affectionate, but firm and consistent in the maintenance of paternal authority. He was methodical and industrious in his habits, frank in his opinions, and plain and dignified in his manners. He kept a full journal of his life, and has left several manuscript volumes both in prose and verse, the whole furnishing materials, it is believed, if judiciously compiled, to form a valuable publication.

"As a minister of Christ," says the writer of his obituary notice, "he was tender in his addresses to those under his pastoral care, faithful in his ministrations, and diligent in his work. A more industrious and attentive pastor was not among us. He was well read in theology, science, and current literature. His sermons were fine specimens of expository and doctrinal preaching; they were always clear and systematic, and delivered with an unction that told with great power on his congregations. Christ, and the great events of his remedial history, were his favorite themes in the pulpit. As a presiding elder, his quarterly visitations were hailed with great pleasure by both preachers and people. He was punctual in his attendance, generally preached three times at a quarterly meeting, proposed very pointed questions to the members of the quarterly conference on their experience and duties, and left behind, whenever he sojourned, a hallowed influence." But he is gone to his reward. His consistent life and triumphant death proclaim the truth and power of Christianity, assuring us of the happy and exalted condition of the departed, and strengthening our hope of like immortality. May we meet him in heaven.

1. REV. SAMUEL E. BABCOCK. We have been unable to obtain many particulars concerning the life of Brother Babcock which we would like to present in this report. His age, his conversion, and his various fields of labor we are unable to ascertain. He labored as an effective minister thirty-three years, and was one year located. Entering the itinerancy in the early days of Methodism in the bounds of this Conference, he had many large and laborious fields to cultivate; and on his various fields, whether circuit, station, or district, he was an earnest and laborious preacher. His preaching was characterized by earnestness and pathos, and he was blessed on many of his fields of labor with extensive revivals of religion. He was affectionate as a husband and father, and ardent as a friend. Few men formed a larger circle of acquaintances, or enjoyed the society of friends more than he did. For several years his health was failing, and a man of less hopefulness than he would have retired from the work; but he was as anxious to toil on as in the days of his strength. His sickness was short, and his sufferings severe; but he evinced Christian confidence and resignation, and died in strong hope of a blessed immortality.

2. Rev William L. Harris was born August 4, 1829, near Beallsville, Monroe County, Ohio, and was "born again" in the twentieth year of his age at Pleasant Grove Meeting-house, Beallsville Circuit, under the pastoral labors of Rev. S. P. Woolf. At an early period in his Christian experience he gave more than usual promise of usefulness, and was licensed to preach as a local minister by Rev. John Coil, presiding elder of the district. He was admitted on trial in the Pittsburgh Annual Conference in the year 1859, and was appointed to Moorefield Circuit. He was reappointed to this charge the following year. He was ordained deacon by Bishop Ames in 1861, and was appointed to Fairview Circuit, whither he was returned the next year. By Bishop Janes he was ordained elder in 1863, and sent to Barnesville Circuit, which proved to be his last field of toil, for at the Conference which met at Barnesville, Ohio, his health was in such a precarious state that he was compelled to ask the Conference for a superannuated relation, which was granted. The early advantages for securing an education of Brother Harris were very limited, but his untiring energy and close and industrious application to study during seven years of his life in the Church made him a very good English scholar. His piety was deep and evangelical. His social qualities were of a very excellent character, rarely equaled and never excelled. Everywhere he labored he attracted around him hosts of ardent friends. His head was clear as his life was holy, and whenever error assailed the principles he held he was ever ready to give a reason for the hope that was in him, and maintained with great ability the doctrines of Methodism, to which he was so steadily devoted. His colleagues found him to be on all occasions all they could wish him to be, and now cherish his memory and mourn the loss of so valued and much beloved fellow-laborer; while those who heard him preach and have been under his pastoral charge feel that the Church has lost a faithful and efficient minister, the country a true patriot, and the world a man who lived in it only to make it better. His affliction continued through a period of three years, and was as severe as it was long and protracted. He died on Sunday morning, June 12, 1864, in Somerton, Belmont County, Ohio, the day of his death truly a sabbath, a day of sweet rest and peace to him. Its morning burst not forth on him in cloud and storm, but in peace and cheering sunshine. He said to those who hung lovingly by his pillow, "It is not dark, but appears light to me; I do not fear death; the Lord is with me," and breathed his last utterance, "all is right," in joy. The golden beams of the setting sun of that Sabbath evening were not so glorious as the visions of future beatitudes were to the eye of our departed brother ere he heaved his last earthly sigh. He was buried in the Barnesville cemetery, near the remains of our departed Brothers Coen and Hare.

QUEST. 12. Who have Died this year?

James Webb, W. Smith, J. B. Dennison, A. Freed—4.

1. Rev. JAMES WEBB died on the 8th of October, 1864, near Kennett Square, Chester County, Pennsylvania, in the thirty-fifth year of his age. In early life, under the ministration of the word by Rev. A. Manship, he was awakened. Discovering the exceeding sinfulness of sin and its awful consequences, he resolved to meet the requirements of duty, and turning unto God he was accepted in the Beloved. Appreciating this act of divine goodness, he could not consent to remain inactive in the Lord's vineyard, and sought to do good as he had opportunity. Combining the pure principles of Christianity with an amiable disposition and warm heart, he was well qualified for usefulness. The purity and depth of his piety was ever unquestioned by those who knew him. After years of devotion to God he became impressed that it was his duty to "preach the word;" a similar impression rested upon the Church; this led to the enlargement of his sphere of usefulness. He was licensed as an exhorter. In the year 1858 he was appointed by the presiding elder to Zion Circuit, Cecil County, Maryland. Meeting with discouragements, he began to doubt the genuineness of his call to the ministry, and at the end of his term he returned to his former vocation. After much prayerful consideration becoming confirmed in his conviction, he consented to again enter the itinerancy. He was admitted to the Philadelphia Annual Conference in 1860; the brethren who recommended him requested that he should be returned to them, but he was appointed to Richmond Circuit, Northampton County, Pennsylvania, where he labored with great acceptability and success for two years. His next appointment was Naglesville Mission, where he entered upon his work with diligence and zeal, success following. During this year he was married to Miss R. R. Rumford, an excellent Christian lady of Wilmington, Delaware. The following year it became evident to himself and his numerous friends that he must give up the work he loved so well, and at the following session of the Conference he sought and was granted a superannuated relation. Rest did not bring a return of health; that fatal but flattering disease, consumption, could not be arrested. His work was done. "In manhood's middle day" he calmly and sweetly fell asleep in Christ, leaving as a precious legacy to mourning friends the example of a holy life, the comfort of a triumphant death.

2. Rev. William Smith died June 7, 1864, aged thirty-one. Brother Smith was converted when fourteen years of age, and became a member of Mount Pleasant Methodist Episcopal Church on Radnor Circuit. In the Sabbath-school he began his labor in the vineyard of Christ. Upon his removal to Bridesburgh, Philadelphia, a wider field for usefulness was opened before him. He became superintendent of the Sabbath-school, was authorized to exhort, and appointed a class-leader. In 1856 he was licensed to preach, and also recommended as a suitable person to be received into the traveling connection. In the spring of 1856 he was received on trial in the Philadelphia Annual Conference, and appointed to Newtown Circuit. In 1857, on Springfield Circuit. In 1858 he was stationed at the Falls of Schuylkill; 1859, at Cressona; 1860, at Cornwall; 1861, at St. Clair; and 1862–63, at Mount Lebanon. During his second year on this charge his health declined, and he was superannuated at the ensuing conference. His decline was rapid. He suffered occasionally very much, but always with patience and cheerfulness. He said to his wife, "I am willing to suffer the will of the Lord since I can work no more for him; or if it be his will to take me, I am ready to depart and be with Christ." He spoke often of the kindness of the people of his last charge, and expressed a desire to see them. He said to his wife, "Tell them that the Gospel I have preached to them sustained me in the last conflict." To Rev. William M. Ridgeway he said, "My faith is unshaken, and I shall regard death as rather a pleasing dispensation." To his weeping friends he said, "I know you think it hard to see me suffer so, but I would not exchange places with any of you. Just think, one moment suffering here in pain, and the next in a world where I shall suffer no more. I feel that I am moving on. The waters are deep, but they do not overflow me; there is a firm bottom." On the doctor's telling him he would not have many more hard struggles, he said, "Ah, that is good news, doctor; I have been making preparation for this these many years." Then to his wife he said, "Do not think of me as lying in the grave, but think of me as being happy in glory; and I want you to be happy too, and I will keep looking out for you to come." Many will call him blessed at the coming of the Master and the gathering of the harvest.

3. Rev. John Barris Dennison died July 20, 1864, aged thirty-four years. He was the eldest son of William and Mary Ann Dennison, and was born in Cecil County, Maryland, December 26, 1829. Carefully trained in early life in the knowledge of divine things, his riper years were solemnly consecrated to God. At the age of sixteen he sought and found Christ as a personal and present Saviour. From the hour of his conversion he entered upon a career of service in the work of saving men. Soon after this he removed to Baltimore, and united with Caroline-street charge, where he maintained a steady Christian deportment. At twenty he returned to Cecil County, and was soon after selected superintendent of Principio Sunday-school. The fruit of his labors in this place is still seen. A conscious call to the work of the ministry manifested itself so visibly that during the same year he received license to exhort and to preach. A vacancy occurring on North East Circuit, he was sent to fill it, and for about four months he did so with acceptability. In 1851 he was appointed by the presiding elder to Fulton Circuit, Pennsylvania, where he labored with great success. Two churches were erected during the year. In 1852 he was received on trial into the Philadelphia Conference, and appointed to Delaware City Circuit, Delaware, which included the village of St. Georges. His subsequent appointments were, 1853, Strasburgh; 1854, Kelley Mission; 1855, Safe Harbor; 1856–57, Cochranville; 1858–59, Oxford; 1860–61, Pottstown; 1862–63, Lebanon; 1864, St. Georges, Delaware. His reappointment to this charge was eminently satisfactory to the people, and he entered upon the work with large promise of usefulness. By a strange coincidence, he ended his ministry where as a member of the conference he commenced it, and the Church which in his youthful zeal and faithfulness he had labored to erect, was to be the scene of his last ministrations and of his own obsequies. He was taken sick of bilious fever, which soon merged into a typhoid form. His physician did not consider him dangerously ill, nor did his friends or himself think that death would ensue; but when asked how he felt on the subject, he replied, "I can trust my heavenly Father." When asked by his wife, "Do you feel happy?" he said, "O yes, my dear, I have not a cloud or a doubt to darken my sky; all is bright; don't trouble yourself about that;" and then he gave her some advice in case he should die. When she spoke of being very desolate and lonely without him, he replied, "Trust in Jesus; it will all be right." When it became apparent that he would die, and he was apprised of the fact, he calmly replied, "I am ready; the Lord's will be done."

Our departed brother was fully consecrated to Christ. He was a man of God, and a good minister of the Lord Jesus. Christ's cause was his cause; Christ's work his work. He loved the Church, and was constantly employed in doing good. He was popular and successful. Many will rise up in the great day and call him blessed. His preaching was earnest, pathetic, and at times exceedingly powerful. He was baptized with the Holy Ghost and with fire, and became the vehicle for the transmission of the soul-saving light and heat, as the Lord always caused him to triumph, and made manifest by him the savor of his knowledge in every place.

4. Rev. Abraham Freed died on the 28th day of February, 1865, at Bridgeville, Delaware, aged forty-eight years. He was born near Pottstown, Pennsylvania, on the 8th of January, 1817, and from his earliest youth was remarkable for more than ordinary seriousness and gravity of character, induced, no doubt, by convictions of "the exceeding sinfulness of sin," and the necessity of spiritual regeneration, and by his habitually devout deportment was marked as one that feared God. Throughout the period of his youth and of his early manhood, the early inclinations of his heart, which grew with his growth and matured with his strength, prompted him to humble prayer for help and grace to work out his own salvation. Contending with the usual doubts and difficulties, it was not until the year 1840 that he obtained from God indubitable evidence that he was born from above. This event occurred during his residence in Marietta, Pennsylvania. An early life of such sincere seriousness, followed by a new spiritual life of zeal and devotion, combined with his peculiar amiability, commended him to the confidence of the Church, and soon brought him successively into the positions of class-leader, exhorter, and local preacher. In 1843 he was admitted on trial in the Philadelphia Annual Conference as a traveling preacher. He loved the itinerancy, and was never known to crave any particular appointment, or to complain of any direction the Church may have given to his labors. His first circuit was Kent, Maryland; 1844, Nottingham; 1845, Cecil; 1846, Denton; 1847, Stoddartsville; 1848, Tremont; 1849, Lehman's Chapel; 1850–51, Attleborough; 1852–53, Springfield; 1854–55, Pottstown; 1856–57, Annamessex; 1858–59, Church Creek; 1860–61, Lewes; 1862–63, Annamessex again; and in 1864, Seaford, where, owing to exposure to the severity of the weather, he was taken sick, and in a few days, just before the session of the present Conference, breathed his last in great peace. A devoted wife and six children, bereaved of the care and counsel of a pious husband and father, mourn his removal. His fellow-laborers, and the people wherever he was known, feel a sense of keen sorrow as they think of him as no more among the living. As a preacher, Brother Freed was earnest, deep, and powerful. He studied assiduously "to show himself approved before God and man, rightfully dividing the word of truth." He had a systematic mind, well stored with varied information; his congregations were interested and savingly edified by his expositions, and close application of the word to the heart and conscience. He was a faithful pastor, following the directions of the book of discipline, and fulfilling in every point the round of duties it enjoins. In our national troubles he never failed to show his loyalty to the government, and his love for the union. This cost him friends and support, but life itself could not have induced him to compromise with wrong. He was led to hope his illness would be but temporary, that his work would not terminate so soon; but God saw best and took him home. In weariness and pain he talked much of the sufficiency of Christ, and the preciousness of his sustaining grace. Blameless in life and conversation, pure in heart, he had no fear, no doubt. He "walked with God."

F. Dane, L. Harlow, L. Bates—3.

1. Rev. FRANCIS DANE was born in Andover, Massachusetts, May 1, 1782. When he was quite young his father moved to Danville, Vermont. There, under the labors of Brother Lewis Bates, he was powerfully awakened and happily converted to God. He joined the New England Conference in 1810, and was appointed to the Tuftonborough Circuit, New Hampshire, and the year following to Sandwich, New Hampshire. In 1812 he was admitted to full membership in the Conference, ordained deacon, and stationed at Conway

New Hampshire; in 1813, at Mansfield, Massachusetts. At the Conference of 1814 he was ordained elder and appointed to the old New London Circuit; in 1815 his appointment was Providence and Mansfield; in 1816 he located, but was readmitted to the New England Conference in 1819 and appointed to Tolland, Connecticut; in 1820–21–22 he was appointed to Warwick, Rhode Island, holding a supernumerary relation the last year; in 1823 he was appointed to Martha's Vineyard; located again in 1824; was readmitted in 1827, and appointed to Warwick again, where he remained two years. After this he received the following appointments, namely: in 1829, Mansfield; 1830, Mansfield and Taunton; 1831, Somerset and Dighton; 1832, Pawtucket; 1833, Dighton and Taunton; 1834–35–36, Mansfield, again holding a supernumerary relation for one year; in 1837 he was stationed at Walpole; 1838, at Centreville, Rhode Island; 1839, East Greenwich. In 1840 he was placed on the list of superannuated, and sustained this relation until his death. During these twenty-four years he preached frequently, not only for our own but for other denominations. Twice he was honored with being elected as representative to the State Legislature. Father Dane was not a man of brilliant talents, but he was a "good man," a faithful, zealous, earnest preacher of righteousness, and his labors were not in vain; many were brought to Christ through his instrumentality.

On September 25, at a reunion of pastors, held in Walpole, one of his former fields of labor, he preached a part of the day to the great satisfaction of those who heard him. This was his last Sabbath in the sanctuary on earth; the following Sabbath he was attacked with pneumonia. October 9 Brother Townsend visited him, and although he was unable to converse much, he gave the clearest assurance that "all was well." I saw him frequently during his sickness, and found him trusting in Jesus. Friday morning previous to his death Brother F. Upham visited him, to whom he expressed his unshaken confidence in God as his Saviour, and the earnest of his heavenly inheritance. Sabbath morning, October 16, he quietly passed away to the possession of that heavenly inheritance. The following Tuesday his funeral services were attended at the Methodist Episcopal Church in East Mansfield. Dr. Upham preached an able and appropriate sermon from Acts xi, 24: "For he was a good man, and full of the Holy Ghost and of faith." After the sermon appropriate remarks were made by Brothers Townsend and Whitaker. The body was then taken to the cemetery, burial services read, and the dust of "our father in Israel" laid to rest beside his companion. "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord."

2. Rev. Lemuel Harlow was born in Duxbury, Massachusetts, July 9, 1807. He was converted to God at the age of sixteen, through the agency of his sister, during a revival in his native town, under the labors of Rev. Isaac Jennison. Soon afterward he united with the Methodist Episcopal Church, and had the joy of seeing his parents following his example. He received his first license to preach under the presiding eldership of Rev. Edward Hyde. He joined the New England Conference on trial in 1826, and was appointed to Moretown Circuit, Vermont. He filled the following appointments in the New England and Providence Conferences, namely: Salem, N. H.; Sandwich, N. H.; Sandwich, Mass.; Harvard, Mass.; Middleborough, Mass.; Easton, Mass.; Eastham, Mass.; North-west Duxbury, Mass.; Pembroke, Mass.; Falmouth, Mass.; North Fairhaven, Mass.; Little Compton, R. I.; South Dartmouth, Mass.; Phenix, R. I.; North-west Bridgewater, Mass.; Yarmouth Port, Mass.; East Weymouth, Mass.; Quincy, Mass.; North Easton, Mass.; South Yarmouth, Mass.; North Cohasset, Mass.; South Harwich, Mass.; South Scituate, Mass. His last appointment was Hull, Mass., which he never reached. Death laid his hand upon him while on his way thither, and "he ceased at once to work and live." He died in great peace, at the house of his son, in Marshfield, Massachusetts, April 16, 1864, aged fifty-seven years.

Brother Harlow was a man of sterling sense, a sincere and earnest Christian, a devoted husband, an affectionate father, a true and sympathizing friend, and a good minister of Jesus Christ. He was evangelical and instructive in his discourses, dignified and earnest in manner, and sometimes powerful in his ministrations and in leading souls to the Saviour. In social meetings, in pastoral visiting, in the house of affliction, and at the bed of sickness and death, he excelled. He was ever cheerful and genial in spirit, modest and retiring in his habits, preferring others to himself. He was most highly appreciated and loved by those who knew him best. As a Christian and a minister he did his work faithfully, finished his course with joy, and is now resting from his labors. He left a wife and several children to mourn his loss.

3. Rev. Lewis Bates was born in Cohasset, Mass., March 20, 1780, and was a descendant, in the seventh generation, of John Rogers the martyr. He removed from his native town to Springfield, Vermont, with his father when he was twelve years of age. He was early awakened to a sense of his depravity and lost condition as a sinner without holiness and God. In a communication of his, we learn he was converted to God in answer to prayer in an instant; as sudden as the electric shock God spoke peace to his heart, and gave him the assurance of his acceptance through our Lord Jesus Christ when but thirteen years old. In April, 1801, he joined the Methodist Episcopal Church with two others, who began the Methodist Episcopal Church in Springfield, Vermont. He commenced early in his Christian experience to call sinners to repentance, and in 1802 he remarked, "I left all for Christ and his Gospel, and labored for some time on Athens, Weathersfield, and Danville Circuits." In 1804 he was admitted on trial in the New York Conference and was sent to Bridgewater Circuit, New Hampshire; in 1805 he was at Tuftonborough; in 1806 he was admitted into full connection and ordained deacon at Canaan, New Hampshire, by Bishop Asbury, and was stationed at Tuftonborough; in 1807, at Scarborough and Livermore, Maine; in 1808, was ordained elder at New London, Connecticut, and again stationed at Tuftonborough, New Hampshire, and E. Hedding was his presiding elder; in 1809, was at Pembroke, New Hampshire; he was stationed in 1810 at Barnard, Vermont; in 1811–12, at Salisbury; in 1813 he located and removed to Springfield, Vermont, on account of the domestic affairs of his father, but continued to preach, as Providence opened the door, for four years; in 1817 he was readmitted to the New England Conference, and stationed on Vershire Circuit, Vermont. He was appointed in 1818–19 to Landaff, New Hampshire; in 1820, to New London Circuit, Connecticut; in 1821, to Norwich; in 1822, to Warwick, Rhode Island; in 1823–24, to Barnstable, Mass.; in 1825–26, to Wellfleet; in 1827–28, to Salem, New Hampshire; in 1829, to Easton and Stoughton, Mass.; in 1830, to Easton and Bridgewater; in 1831, to Bristol, Rhode Island; in 1832, to Marshfield, Mass.; in 1833–34, to East Weymouth; in 1835, to Saugus; in 1836–37, to Pembroke; in 1838–39, to Scituate Harbor; in 1840, to Northwest Bridgewater, Easton, and Stoughton; in 1841, to Taunton; in 1842, to Nantucket; in 1843, to Falmouth; in 1844, to South Dartmouth; in 1845, to Pembroke; in 1846–47, to West Sandwich; in 1848, to Hull and Cohasset; in 1849, to Chilmark; in 1850 he superannuated and located his family in Taunton, Massachusetts, where they remained until his death, beloved and lamented by all who knew him. Father Bates lived during all the changes of his long itinerant career on the sunny side of life, often singing,

> "On Pisgah's cloudless height I stand,
> And view by faith the promised land,
> On hope's strong pinions soar away,
> In perfect love's unclouded ray."

Many both in the militant and triumphant Church have been converted to God through his labors, and among those converted quite a number have entered the ministry. He entered upon his ministerial labors and privations at a time and under circumstances which show the genuineness of his faith. He has been sixty-one years a minister, forty-six effective, and stationed in New Hampshire, Maine, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Vermont, and Canada; moving most of the time every year, and much of the time with a large family, and without the conveniences for traveling we now have; four years located in Springfield, Vermont, fifteen years superannuated, residing in Taunton, Massachusetts. Father Bates was rich in faith, at peace with God and man; and we remember hearing him say, "I have done singing 'When I can read my title clear,' but I sing 'Now I can read my title clear to mansions in the skies.'" He leaves an affectionate wife, who has shared with him the toils and sufferings of itinerant life for more than fifty-six years. They were blessed with ten children, five of whom are in the kingdom of glory, and five in the kingdom of grace. One of his sons in heaven was an able minister of the New Testament, and another is a member of the Providence Conference. His children now living have watched around his bed both by night and day during his late illness with much sympathy and kindness; we are confident the blessings of Him who has said "honor thy father" will be theirs. Thus having served his generation by the will of God he fell on sleep, and was gathered to his fathers in a good old age, "as a shock of corn is gathered in its season," March 24, 1865, aged eighty-five years.

1. Rev. WESLEY ROBERTSON, the subject of this memoir, was born in New Providence, New Jersey, on the 14th day of May, 1807. He was left an orphan at a very tender age. When about fifteen years of age he came to reside in Newark, for the purpose of learning a trade; and while in this city, in the old Halsey-street Methodist Episcopal Church, he listened with much interest to the first Methodist sermon he ever heard, delivered by Rev. John Creamer. Changing his mind in reference to his occupation, he soon after left Newark and went to reside in Rahway, where he remained until he entered the traveling connection. In 1828 he was converted under the ministry of the Rev. Thomas B. Sargent, and united with the Methodist Episcopal Church. Very soon after his conversion he felt impressed that it was his duty to labor in the cause of Christ, and commenced with a desire to do what he could in his humble sphere. He was soon licensed as an exhorter, in which sphere he labored diligently and successfully, and in 1834 he received license as a local preacher, in which capacity he performed much labor in Rahway and vicinity. In the spring of 1835 he was employed by the presiding elder on the Freehold Circuit, and the following spring he was received on probation in the Philadelphia Conference, and returned to Freehold Circuit as junior preacher; in the spring of 1837 he was appointed as preacher in charge to Caldwell Circuit, where he labored successfully two years, establishing a society and building a church at Little Falls. In 1839 he was appointed to Woodbridge, where he labored successfully two years; in 1841 he went to Woodrow, Staten Island, the ground now occupied by Woodrow, Bethel, and St. Paul charges. The present church edifices at Woodrow and Bethel were built under his supervision, and during the two years of his stay there about four hundred were added to the two churches. In 1843 he was appointed to Clinton Circuit, where during the year over three hundred were added to the Church. The next spring he was appointed to that part of the circuit comprising New Germantown and Parkersville. During this year a society was formed and a church commenced at Mechanicsville. In 1845 he went to Middletown Point, where he labored two years acceptably and successfully; the next two years his labors were performed in Flemington; in 1849 he was sent to Bordentown, where he remained two years, dispensing the word of life and receiving the abundant blessings of the Lord upon his labors. In 1851 he was sent to Woodrow, Staten Island, but in consequence of the health of his family he was removed the next spring to Nyack. There he remained two years, and was useful in his ministerial labors. In 1854 he was stationed at Quarry-street, Newark, where his labors were blessed in the conversion of souls. In 1856 he was sent to Belleville, where his health failed, and although feeble he was permitted to see some fruit of his labors. The following spring he took a supernumerary relation to the Conference, having been in the active work of the ministry for twenty-two years. He never left an appointment without having been the instrument in the hands of the Lord of the salvation of some souls; and during his ministry he received over eighteen hundred persons into the Church on probation. After the failure of his health he returned to Newark, where he remained until last August, when he went to Jacksonville, Florida, to labor under the direction of the Christian Commission, hoping to do some good among the soldiers, as well as, if possible, to regain his health, that he might continue to labor for the salvation of souls, which was the most earnest desire of his heart. Although it seemed to him a mysterious Providence that called him away from earth while so far from his home and friends, he remarked that he did not regret having gone there, as he was going from there to his heavenly home, and added, "Tell my friends not to weep for me; I am going home; sweet home." Just before he died he said to Chaplain Hobbs, who was by his bedside, "I hear music. The room is filled with glory." And when the last hour had come, he looked around the room and pointed upward, a heavenly smile illuminating his countenance, and folded his hands across his breast and quietly passed away as if sinking into a peaceful sleep, in the fifty-eighth year of his age. He died at Jacksonville, Florida, November 2, 1864. Thus he died as he had lived, "a good man and full of the Holy Ghost and of faith," willing to lay down his life in the cause of God and his country, and in triumphant hope of a blissful immortality.

2. Rev. WILLIAM MILLS BURROUGHS was born in Hopewell Township, Mercer County, New Jersey, June 21, 1814, and died at New Prospect, New Jersey, April 17, 1864. We have but few facts connected with his early life. The event which ultimately shaped his life work was his conversion, which took place at Pennington, in his nineteenth year. Soon after, on the 13th of October, 1832, he was baptized and received into the Methodist Episcopal Church on probation, by the Rev. William H. Bull, for whom he cherished a deep affection. Filled with the love of God and of precious souls, as well as diligent in the use of all the means of grace, it was not long before he was deeply impressed with the conviction that it was his duty to preach the Gospel. Yielding to the guidance of the Holy Spirit, and in obedience to the call of the Church, he began to preach on Asbury Circuit in 1837, in connection with Revs. Joseph Chattle and C. S. Vancleve. When the young itinerant left his paternal house to engage in his high vocation, his father gave him a horse, saying, "Go and do all the good you can, for I have never done any." His future career shows that he obeyed both the spirit and the letter of this injunction. In 1838 he labored on Newton Circuit, in connection with Rev. J. S. Swain. In 1839 he was admitted on trial into the New Jersey Conference. His subsequent appointments were as follows: Warren, 1839; Vernon, 1840; Hudson, 1841; Port Jervis, 1842; Milford, Pennsylvania, 1843; Ramapo, 1844–45; Dover, 1846–47; Bergen, 1848; Rome and Wantage, 1849–50; Stillwater, 1851–52; Hope, 1853–54; Newton, 1855–56; Frenchtown and Milford, 1857–58; Kingwood, 1859–60; Wesley Chapel, 1861; Piermont and Tappan, 1862; New Prospect, 1863. He was just begining the second year on the last named charge when he was called from labor to reward. The last seven years of his life were in connection with the Newark Conference, with which he became identified at the division of the New Jersey Conference. On his return to his charge after the last session of our Conference, he entered upon his labors with cheerfulness and hope; but they were soon to close. Suddenly and with great violence he was attacked with congestion of the brain, resulting in apoplexy, which speedily terminated his earthly career. Thus fell Brother Burroughs in the ripeness of his manhood, having served with fidelity the church to whose ministry he had given himself more than a quarter of a century before. From the time that he was attacked by the disease he was unable to speak. He could not give his dying testimony in favor of the religion of Jesus, but he has left to his bereaved family and to our afflicted Church the precious testimony of a Christian life. Our beloved brother needs no eulogy from us; he rests from his labors, and his works do follow him. He was a kind husband, an affectionate father, a true friend. As a pastor, he devoted himself earnestly to the welfare of his people, and secured both their respect and affection. His mental powers were solid rather than brilliant, and his sermons were compact, instructive, and useful. His discourses near the close of his life are said to have been marked with peculiar unction and power. He preached with much tenderness not long before his death, on the seventh chapter of Revelations, from the 13th to the 17th verses, dwelling with rapture on the glories of heaven and the blessedness of those who reach it. Is it wrong to believe that God was leading the mind of his servant to contemplate more and more that blessed home into which he was so soon to enter? Without bigotry, he was at the same time a firm believer in the distinctive doctrines of Methodism, and loved to preach them. He was a man of even temper, a lover of peace, and a promoter of harmony. He was one of those rare men whose modesty and reserve prevent the full appreciation of their merits. Those who knew Brother Burroughs best, esteemed him most. Having faithfully done his duty in every position to which the Church assigned him during a ministry of twenty-five years, Brother Burroughs has been gathered to the companionship of those who have turned many to righteousness, leaving a wife and three children to the care of the Church.

When our work on earth is done, may it be said of each one of us what we can all say of our departed brother, "he was a good minister of Jesus Christ."

3. Rev. George W. White was born of Methodist parents in Sussex County, New Jersey. While yet in his minority he became the subject of renewing grace, and united with the Church at Stanhope, under the ministry of Rev. Walter Chamberlain. At an early period of his Christian life he felt moved to preach the Gospel. He went to the Seminary in Charlotteville, New York, with a view to the attainment of those literary qualifications which he felt to be necessary to the efficient discharge of the high and holy trust committed to his hands. While in the Seminary toiling as a student, he enjoyed seasons of spiritual consolation. For reasons, however, perhaps best known to himself, his plan of life became interrupted, and for several years he held only a private relation to the Church. But still retaining his convictions of duty, he received in the summer of 1857, at the hand of the writer, his first license to exhort. Such was the estimate placed upon his services in this capacity that his brethren subsequently gave him license to preach, and he was recommended by the people among whom he had grown to manhood, as a proper person to be received into the traveling ministry. He was admitted on trial at the session of our Conference held at Hackettstown, in 1860, and appointed to Fairfield and Pine Brook. He went to his field of labor trembling under a sense of the solemn and weighty nature of his mission, and of the difficulties that frowned before him; but he had counted the cost, and with an unfaltering spirit he went forward and addressed himself earnestly to his sacred toils. His ministry on this charge was highly acceptable to the people, and fruitful in results. He was returned to the appointment a second year. In 1862-63 he labored with much acceptance on Chatham and Livingston charge, and at our last session, held at Paterson, he was ordained an elder by Bishop Simpson. On the morning of the day of his ordination he preached in Cross-street from the text, "God forbid that I should glory, save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ." Under this sermon one man was happily converted to God. From this Conference he received his appointment to Verona, where he very soon won the hearts of the people, and where he finished his course on the 9th of September, 1864.

Brother White was a worthy example of a young Christian minister. His spirit was devout, his life uniform, his zeal self-consuming, his labors unremitting, and his success such as to indicate that God was with him and prospered the work of his hands. He gloried in the cross, and from a joyful experience of the power of Christ to save, he proclaimed him boldly and confidently as the Saviour of guilty men. He preached no new Gospel, no novel theories, no improved theology, but he preached the old Gospel that Peter and Paul and our Methodist fathers preached; "Christ, the wisdom of God and the power of God." And this preaching was attractive and powerful. The people loved to hear him, and gathered numerously to listen to the word from his lips.

He was a diligent and earnest student. He sought to know more and more of those great and blessed truths he was sent to proclaim, and he so applied himself to study and to prayer, as that when he came before the people his mind was imbued with the truth, and his soul attuned to sympathy with it by the anointing of the Holy One. He was a faithful pastor. He went as the servant of Christ from house to house; the people felt that he was a man of God, and the impressions made by his intercourse with them were eminently salutary. He was cheerful, affable and kind, but was not given to levity. Holiness to the Lord was the controlling idea of his life. He professed no extraordinary attainments in piety, but wherever he was known, and in whatever circle he was placed, whether among his brethren in the ministry or others, men took knowledge of him that he had been with Jesus. Brother White was one of those men of whom it may be said, "He being dead, yet speaketh." His memory will not die. The people among whom he labored as a pastor will long think of him, and their thoughts of him will be associated with those things which are pure and lovely and of good report. During his short ministry he gathered gems for the Master's crown, and he has left the impress of a saintly life behind him. His death occurred suddenly, and he left no dying words for us to treasure in our hearts, but of him it may be said, "He preached Christ a living testimony." He has left to the care of the Church he so cheerfully and zealously served, a widow and four dependent children.

4. Rev. William Munroe Lippincott, of the Newark Conference, only son of the Rev. C. A. Lippincott of the same Conference, was born in Newton, Sussex County, New Jersey, October 19, 1834, and died in the city of Newark, February 23, 1865. Aided by the pious instructions of his father and the prayers of a devoted mother, he possessed from his childhood a tender conscience, and was very susceptible of religious influences. While yet in his twelfth year he openly confessed his desire and purpose to live for God. When about eighteen he became a student at Pennington Seminary. The writer, who was then principal of the seminary, easily recalls his first impressions of his new pupil, his mental activity, his thirst for improvement, his hopefulness, his love of society, his keen enjoyment of harmless pleasantries, his ardent desire to excel. He felt strongly at that time the incentives of worldly ambition, and I think was looking forward to the profession of law as the surest path to the acquisition of those things at which his ambition prompted him to aim. During the winter he made good progress in his studies, and when the spring came he returned home to Succasunna Plains to assist in operations on the farm. During this summer, though not a member of the Church, he became greatly interested in the welfare of the little society at the Plains, and consented to act as the assistant superintendent of the Sabbath-school, which had just then been established, and no small share of the management of which fell to his lot. The school prospered beyond the expectation of its founders, and their success was a source of great encouragement to the little band of colaborers. The next autumn he returned to the Seminary with the same ambitious hopes and aspirations, which were, however, destined soon to give place to new views and better aims. God was pleased to visit us in mercy. Numbers of the students sought the pardon of their sins and gave their hearts to the Saviour. On Sabbath evening, December 12, 1852, young Lippincott, with a number of his youthful associates, confessed himself a sinner and sought forgiveness in humble prayer. For a time he was well nigh in despair. On Monday evening he prayed till midnight; the clouds were dense about him, and he cried out in anguish, "I shall sink into hell; the Spirit has left me." Then God spoke peace to his wounded spirit and he rejoiced with joy unspeakable. He soon afterward gave his name to the Church of God, and was a faithful, active, and useful member of it to the end of life. In the following spring he returned to Succasunna, and to the labors of the farm, where, with the exception of another winter spent at Pennington, he passed the next seven years. Young as he was, he took a leading place in the little society to which he belonged, being trustee, steward, and superintendent of the Sabbath-school. When about twenty years of age he was licensed as a local preacher, and labored much both in preaching the Gospel and in the cause of temperance. His activity and enterprise contributed largely to the erection of the neat parsonage which belongs to the charge. In May, 1860, the Rev. T. W. Pearson, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church at New Providence, died, and Brother Lippincott was summoned from the farm at Succasunna to supply his place. Receiving it as the call of the great Head of the Church, he went and labored faithfully the remainder of the winter. The congregation improved under his ministry, a considerable church debt was paid off, and the best seal of the divine call to the work, the conversion of souls, was not withheld. The next spring Brother Lippincott was received into the Conference on trial and stationed at Irvington, where he labored acceptably and usefully for two years, and where, among other things, some important improvements in the Church property remain as memorials of his energy and industry. Here, in October, 1862, he was united in marriage with Miss Estelle Mead, only daughter of Staats O. Mead, Esq., a wife worthy of his choice, and who proved herself such by the unwearied tenderness with which she ministered to his comfort in the lark hours which were even then swiftly approaching. In the spring of 1863 he was admitted to full membership in the Conference, ordained to deacon's orders, and stationed at Montclair, where he spent a little more than one year, very useful and happy in his work. Always abundant in labors, he overtasked his slender frame, and soon after his reappointment in March, 1862, his health totally failed. Sorrowfully, yet in reverent submission to the allotments of divine Providence, he resigned his charge. It was only too evident that the slow and treacherous process by which consumption lays its victims in the grave had begun, and in August he lay down to rise no more. Wearisome days and nights were appointed to him. His mind was as busy as ever, and the weary hours were not lost. In calm review of the past, in solemn meditations and searchings of heart, in earnest protracted waiting upon God, his graces deepened, hope grew bright, and faith strong; the divine image in the soul shone with clearer outline and fairer light, and more rapidly than ever before he advanced in the knowledge of Christ. This was first manifested by the cheerful patience with which he bore himself amid the ever-springing, ever-failing hopes which often attend his disease. But as the slow months wore on, he rose in devotion and spirituality till every cloud vanished from his horizon, and, like Bunyan's shepherds in the land of Beulah, he dwelt where the sun always shines and the birds always sing. He marked as narrowly as any about him the gradual failure of his strength, and the steady approach of the last enemy. On one occasion, looking around him at those who stood near, he said, "You, to all appearance, will live many years, but I do not envy you. I shall be the first to handle the harp in heaven." When an attendant asked him, "What can I do for you?" he replied, "I want nothing but heaven." He often repeated the expression, "I am on the sure foundation. Glory to God, I am resting in the arms of Jesus." A few hours before his death, rousing himself from a partial sleep, he said to a brother in the ministry who was sitting by his bed, "Did you hear anything unusual just now?" "No," was the reply, "what did you hear?" "I heard," said he, "something like the sweeping of a wing over me. The angels must be here." His mind was calm to the last. The same deep peace and unclouded joy attended him to the final moment of his departure, and lifting his eyes with an earnest look as if beholding some spiritual presence, and stretching forth his hand as if to greet the new companionship of eternity, he passed away to his rest.

Thus died our beloved Brother Lippincott, in his early youth; yet he lived long enough to develop a beautiful character, generous, truthful, affectionate, devoted to God. He lived long enough to make proof of his ministry and win stars for his crown. He lived long enough to win for himself a place in the hearts of the multitudes. Dying, he leaves a legacy of pleasant memories to those that love him, and of encouragement to any who are tempted to doubt the power of grace to sustain in the last dread conflict. His youthful widow and their infant daughter, his father and his sisters, will cherish his name as a precious thing, and their own piety will kindle to a brighter flame at the recollection of the hallowed scenes with which his life ended. Impressive funeral services were held in the Central Methodist Episcopal Church, the pastor of which, the Rev. L. R. Dunn, preached an able sermon from Revelations xiv, 13, various brethren assisting, and the remains were laid in Greenwood Cemetery to await "the resurrection of the just."

E. Kibby, Charles Baker, Chester Field—3.

1. Rev. Epaphras Kibby was born in Somers, Connecticut, in 1777. Under the instructions of a pious mother, at eight years of age he became religiously awakened, but relapsed into carelessness. But he says of himself subsequently "one sermon from the pious and eloquent George Roberts was sufficient under the divine Spirit to rouse my guilty soul and to extort the cry "What shall I do to be saved." In 1793 he joined the Methodist Episcopal Church in New London, and immediately became active in religious duties. In 1798 he attended the Granville Conference, having been previously exercised most powerfully by the divine Spirit. His own convictions, joined in by all the preachers who knew him, urged him forward into the ministry while yet a youth. But when introduced to Bishop Asbury, he said of him, "That young man is not adequate to the rough work of the itinerancy, he being of a slender and delicate constitution." Yet he was received into the Conference, and, contrary to his expressed wishes, was appointed to a station and put in charge. He had never attempted to preach a sermon. Of his first effort he says, "I said a few words; was confounded; my mouth was shut, and I sat down." And of his second sermon it is said that a liberally educated professional gentleman offered to publish it at his own expense. Soon his usefulness and popularity became evidently extended. Through his labors Methodism was introduced into Bath and Hallowell, Maine; and the two first converts in the latter place were the father and mother of twin boys, who were presented by the parents to him for baptism. One of these boys (Melville B. Cox) became the first foreign missionary of the Methodist Episcopal Church, who said, "Though a thousand fall, yet shall Africa be redeemed;" the other is an esteemed member of this Conference. Great revivals followed his arduous labors and eloquent preaching. He formed the first Methodist society in New Bedford. He continued as a local preacher in the Provincetown appointment eleven years, where by the sea air his feeble constitution was much invigorated. Here he became extensively known and useful. In 1841 he was returned superannuated, in which relation he continued till his death, residing in his neat and happy home in Chelsea, surrounded to the last by his wife and four children, happy in each other's society, and ministering to each other's wants. His days were evidently lengthened by his regular and abundant out of door exercise, taken in his flower garden, where he displayed as well as gratified his exquisite taste till within a few weeks of his death. During his illness, which was severe, his mind as before was peaceful and his faith strong, followed by a holy triumph at last. Suffering much, he said, "This is what I call suffering with Christ." "I thank God I am blessed with patience." "It is the strangest thing to me that there is such a thing as infidelity." "It is good that a man should both hope and quietly wait for the salvation of the Lord." "I am both hoping and waiting." "Glory to God! glory to God!" These were his last words, and he fell asleep in Jesus, September 8, 1864. Though he entered the ministry with few advantages of the schools, yet he early formed careful and close habits of study, shown in his accurately trained reasoning powers, as well as his elegant and forcible diction. He once said to the writer that he entered the ministry with a library consisting of the Bible, Discipline, Hymn Book, and Mason on "Self-knowledge." Few and well read were his books, which with a free use of his pen imparted to him his strength and polish. He was passionately fond of choice literature and poetry, and was himself a poet of taste and considerable ability. His pulpit talents are said to have been of a superior order, and he was regarded in his prime as an eloquent speaker. His judgment was cool and clear, his piety deep and uniform, and great multitudes were gathered into the Church through his labors; and though his active years were passed before most of us entered on ours, the early history of Methodism shows him one of the most prominent actors. He was a minister sixty-seven years; local eleven years, but preaching all the time usefully. Since 1841 he has been on the superannuated list, and has preached only occasionally. His appointments were Sandwich, N. H.; New Rochelle and Croton, N. Y.; Readfield, Maine; Marblehead, Mass.; Boston, Mass.; Providence, R. I.; New Bedford, Portland, Lynn, Salem, Provincetown, Martha's Vineyard, Ipswich, Topsfield, Duxbury, Weston, Weymouth, Dorchester, Charlestown, Newton Upper Falls. In some of these places he was repeatedly appointed, and his memory is as "ointment poured forth."

2. Rev. Charles Baker was born in Scituate, Rhode Island, April 7, 1798, and died in Somerville, Mass., August 16, 1864, aged sixty-six years, four months, and nine days. He was converted to God in Warwick, in his native state, at the early age of sixteen years, under the ministry of the late Rev. Joel Steels. Two years later, at a camp-meeting in Wilbraham, Mass., he experienced a thorough baptism of the Spirit, which at once put an end to his perplexing doubts and settled forever the question of duty in the future. Holding at that time a position somewhat remunerative and promising, it was not without deep and earnest struggles that he could decide to obey at once the great commission to which he felt called; but duty triumphed, and he entered the ministry of the Methodist Episcopal Church under the direction of the presiding elder, the late Erastus Otis, though fully conscious that toils and privations awaited him. In 1821 he was received into the New England Conference on probation, and subsequently received the following appointments: Lancaster, N. H., 1821–22; Sandwich, N. H., 1823; Orford, N. H., 1824–25; Rochester, N. H., 1826; Elliot, Maine, 1827; presiding elder Penobscot District, 1828–29; presiding elder Readfield District, 1829–30; agent Maine Wesleyan Seminary, 1831–32; Portland, Maine, 1833; presiding elder Portland District, 1834–37; presiding elder Gardiner District, 1838–41; presiding elder Portland District, 1842–43; Orrington, Maine, 1844–45; East Thomaston, Maine, 1846; Northampton, Mass., 1847; Wilbraham, 1848; Ispwich, 1849; presiding elder Springfield District, 1850–53; Hubbardston, 1854–55; agent Conference Tract Society, 1856; superannuated, 1857. Thus for thirty-six consecutive years he labored to extend the cause of God, and then from failing health and loss of voice he held a superannuated relation nearly eight years. He participated in the services of the sanctuary on Sabbath morning, August 14, and returning to his home was almost immediately attacked by paralysis, which rapidly benumbed his arms and lower limbs; but his intellect was clear, and his tongue was loosed to sing the praises of God. His death was most triumphant and his end peace. Thank God, it may still in truth be said, "our people die well." Brother Baker possessed many most admirable traits of character. His ardent attachment to the Church of his early choice through his protracted ministry never wavered; always hopeful, he dwelt not in the past, but saw signs of improvement in the present which were full of promise for the future. A piety always cheerful, and a temper always genial and full of sunshine, fitted him at once to be the companion of the young no less than of the aged. Deprived of early advantages for a superior education himself, he became an earnest advocate for a higher standard of culture in the ministry and membership of the Church, as a means of usefulness to others, and he devoted some of the best years of his life to secure such a result. Many a young man was sought out by him, taken by the hand and encouraged to commence a course of preparation for college; in this feature he had few equals. In all these efforts he was seconded by her who has borne most meekly, patiently, and prudently the toils of an itinerant life, and as a reward for this interest they have been greatly blessed in their own family. A numerous circle of sons and daughters live to bless the Church, following the directions of Solomon: "Hear the instructions of thy father, and forsake not the law of thy mother."

3. Rev. CHESTER FIELD, son of Chester and Sophia Field, was born in Deerfield, Mass., September 4, 1816, and lived forty-eight years, two months, and twenty days. He died November 24, 1864, in Newtonville, Newton, Mass. His parents were respectable, pious people, but did not unite with the Church till he was fourteen years of age. They then wished their children to receive the ordinance of baptism, and he being the oldest, with five others, were baptized. This public consecration to Christ cost him a mental trial of which his parents knew nothing at the time, but he yielded to parental request without demur, and subsequently ratified the consecration his parents made, and at the age of nineteen came into the light and liberty of a child of God. He was at this time residing in the town of Buckland, Mass., with his parents. His open profession of faith in Christ and recital of religious experience was soon followed by an interesting revival in connection with the preaching of Rev. William Gordon, under whose pastorate he soon united with the Church. April 10, 1837, the Church having noticed his "gifts, grace, and usefulness," without his suggestion presented him with an exhorter's license, and one year after he was licensed as a local preacher. With the authority which this license gave him he supplied vacant Churches in Cannington and North Dighton. From 1835 to June 1839 he pursued academic studies at the Franklin Academy in Shelburne Falls, as means and opportunities permitted in connection with the pulpit and pastoral supplies above named. At the session of the New England Conference in Lynn, June 5, 1839, he became a probationary member, and was stationed at Topsfield one year. In 1840, North-west Duxbury; 1841, Hyannis, where under his supervision a new church was built. In 1842, Lyme Circuit. He was ordained deacon by Bishop Hedding at Providence, R. I., June 13, 1841. At the Providence Conference in Warren, R. I., June 14, 1843, he located; September 14, 1843, in Lowell he was elected and set apart as an elder in the Wesleyan Methodist Connection in the United States. During his connection with this body he enjoyed a pleasant and successful pastorate in the city of Lowell two years; but here sorrow crossed his path; the wife of his youth died, with whom he had lived little more than six years. March 18, 1846, he was examined and approved at a quarterly Conference in Worcester, Mass., and became a local elder in the Methodist Episcopal Church. At the session of the New England Conference in Boston, April, 1846, he was readmitted and stationed at Southbridge; 1847–48, at Saxonville; 1849–50, at Newton Upper Falls; 1851–52, Lynn, Union-street; 1853–54, Boston, Bennington-street; 1855–56, Wilbraham; 1857–58, Worcester, Park-street; 1859, Boston, Centenary Church; 1860–61, Lowell, Central Church.

For nearly twenty-five years he was a pastor until his last sickness. At the Westfield Conference, April, 1862, he was ill, though present and attending to the duties of the session. He still thought he might take charge of a small parish where the calls would be few and the outside duties light; but before the conference closed he requested his name to be placed on the superannuated list. He removed his residence from Lowell to South Boston, and here a great sorrow awaited him. Charles Sumner, "a dutiful and most promising child," died on the 21st July, 1862, aged six years. This was a great shadow on his home; but our brother bore up with Christian fortitude, seeking health and hoping for strength to preach again. But sympathy, medicine, change of location, journeying, all failed. A fatal cough was fastened upon him, and for two years and seven months he slowly declined. But amid all, our brother was patient and uncomplaining.

He expressed his full and firm reliance in the truths he preached; from them he swerved not, but specially referred to the great foundation truth of the remedial scheme, "We are not redeemed with corruptible things as silver and gold, but with the precious blood of Christ." "All my hope rests here, on Christ's finished work," "the perfect redemption price." "Christ has died, and hence I live." He whispered out these sentiments fully, luminously, as he lay on the sides of eternity; and as the last words of Wesley were repeated, "I the chief of sinners am, but Jesus died for me," he responded the remainder, "the best of all is, God is with us."

> "A life well spent, whose early care it was
> His riper years should not upbraid his green;
> By unperceived degrees he wears away,
> Yet, like the sun, seems larger at his setting."

Brother Field had a fine voice, that favorable introduction to a public speaker; was ready and rich in public prayer, as though the part were practiced other than in the pulpit, in the closet; scriptural and instructive in discourse, simple and engaging in manner. In a number of his pastorates he was favored with extensive revivals of religion. He was a lover of good books, and like Charles Lamb liked old and rare books. He loved to talk of books and editions and authors; could readily speak of literary men in England and America, their history and works. He was strongly and warmly antislavery, and at one time was tried at our slow progress as a Church on this subject. He was a pleasant man to visit. He quickly perceived the chance for a pleasant remark in company, and often enlivened discourse by his well chosen apophthegms, pleasantries, and the sharp and sudden turns of a genial wit that seemed native to him. He was wise in his domestic life, ruling his own house well, never omitting domestic worship, never allowing business, hurry, the early train to displace the morning prayer with his family. His versatility at funerals we have noticed; he could adapt himself to the subjects of sorrow among the people; his prayers on such occasions will be remembered as full of sympathy, touching all the points of the case of sorrow, and bringing in all the circle of afflicted ones. He had a modest estimate of himself: "Let me pass silently away with few words." "Do not say any strong words about me." "I can leave myself in the hands of my brethren." So passed away this dear brother and noble minister of Jesus. He leaves a wife, (sister-in-law of our beloved Bishop Baker,) one daughter, and a son who bears his father's name, and who we hope in a few years will stand in the fallen father's place. Their loss is great, but he has left them the richest of all legacies, a good example and a precious name. His funeral was attended Saturday, November 26, in the Dorchester-street Church, South Boston. Revs. Drs. Barrows and Thayer made addresses, Rev. Dr. Hascall offered prayer, and the burial service was read at the tomb by one of his most intimate friends.

QUEST. 12. Who have Died this year?

C. Starr, Z. Barnes, I. Foster, James B. Weeks—4.

1. Rev. CHARLES STARR.—The Committee on Memoirs after diligent inquiry have been wholly unable to obtain any information respecting the early history of Brother Starr. Where he was born, when or where converted, or when he united with the Church, we have no knowledge. He was recommended and received on trial in the Oneida Annual Conference in September, 1834, and was received into full connection at the Conference held at Binghamton in the autumn of 1836. From this time he remained in the effective ranks until his superannuation, which occurred, we think, some four or five years since. Brother Starr was a sincere and warm friend, an earnest and devoted Christian, a man of extraordinary power in prayer, a preacher of more than ordinary gifts, and very successful in winning souls to Christ. His attachment to the Church of his choice was strong and sincere, without bigotry. He came to his death suddenly, by the cars being thrown from the track on the New York Central Railroad, on the 23d day of March, 1865. His age was sixty-two years. In his sudden call from our midst we are again reminded that "in the midst of life we are in death." The esteem in which Brother Starr was held by his brethren is shown in the fact that he was once chosen to represent them in the General Conference. May his mantle fall upon some of the rising young men in the Conference which he has left and to which he will return no more!

2. Rev. ZETTO BARNES was born in Clay, Onondaga County, New York, October 4, 1807, and passed away in Freetown, New York, September

22, 1864, aged fifty-seven years. From early childhood he had religious convictions. He was converted in Fabius at the age of twenty-two, and united with the Methodist Episcopal Church. He was admitted into the Oneida Conference on trial in 1834. The previous year he was employed by the presiding elder. He continued in the effective ministry till 1863, when he superannuated. Brother Barnes was an evangelical minister, a faithful pastor, an earnest Christian, a true friend, a kind husband, and a tender parent. In labors he was abundant and successful, as the following extract from his diary will show: "During my thirty years in the Oneida Conference I have traveled eighty thousand five hundred and thirty-five miles, preached four thousand five hundred and seventy-four sermons, received into the Church one thousand and fifty-five, held seventy-two protracted meetings, attended thirty-two camp-meetings." The circumstances of his death are painful, but we are confident that the act was the result of insanity, of which he had shown signs something like a year. That Brother Barnes or any other good man should be left to destroy himself involves one of the inscrutable dispensations of Providence of which eternity alone can be expected to furnish the solution. But while an awe-inspiring mystery hangs about the last sad hour of our brother's sojourn here, we can but cherish the hope that he has gone to heaven. We look upon the last twelve or fifteen months of his life as a blank in his moral history, upon whose vacant pages neither virtue nor vice, right nor wrong, praise nor blame, will ever be found written. As to his Christian character there can be no doubt, for no one was ever known to do the amount and kind of work he performed, at least for so many years together, who was not an experimental Christian. But not to rely on inferential proof, he evinced the love of God and of his neighbor, the positive Bible evidence of true piety, by keeping God's commandments and doing as he would be done by. The disciplinary evidence of his piety was equally clear, for he studiously avoided evil of every kind, according to our rules, and was uniformly engaged in doing good.

3. Rev. Isaac Foster is no more among the living on the earth. After a protracted and painful illness he entered into his rest on the 28th of August, 1864. Brother Foster was emphatically a good man. His amiability and deep and sincere affection always won for him a large circle of deeply attached friends both within and without the Church. He was a faithful and earnest laborer in the Master's vineyard, often allowing his zeal for the Lord and his love of souls to carry him beyond what his strength and health would justify. He served the following charges with great acceptability, and his name there is as precious ointment poured forth. Lenox, Onondaga, Cardiff, Vernon, Warren, Verona, New Hartford, Hampton, State-street, Utica, Oneida, Sauquoit, at New Hartford a second time, Skaneateles, and Moravia, where he thoroughly broke down. From Moravia he removed to a home provided for him by his brethren, where he closed his useful but painful life. Brother Foster united with the Conference in 1839, and remained effective, with the exception of one year, for twenty-one years, or until 1860, when his health utterly failed. He was mild and amiable in his disposition, a most genial companion, a fast and devoted friend. He delighted to dwell upon the higher attainments of the religious life, and we believe exemplified them in his own. His sickness was of the most trying and painful character, being paralysis of the limbs and nerves; but he bore all with great fortitude and resignation. A few days previous to his death a number of his ministerial brethren met and partook with him the Lord's Supper, which he enjoyed exceedingly; the glory of which he had so long preached and sweetly sung, and for which he had prayed, opened to his view, and he longed to be at rest. At the age of forty-seven this good man laid down his pilgrim staff on earth and took his crown in heaven.

The place of Brother Foster's nativity was Stafford, Broome County, New York. In him another star has faded from the horizon of the militant Church to rise in glory.

4. Rev. James B. Weeks, son of David and Cornelia Weeks, was born in Columbia County, New York, November 25, 1811, and died in Hartwick, Otsego County, November 10, 1864, aged fifty-three. He was converted to God in the village of Kingston, Ulster County, in the year 1832, under the labors of Rev. Cyrus Foss, and was licensed to preach the Gospel by Rev. W. Jewett in 1839. He continued to officiate in the capacity of a local preacher until 1846, when he was ordained a deacon by Bishop Waugh, and was received on trial in the Providence Conference. He continued a worthy member of that body, laboring faithfully and with great acceptability for the prosperity of the Church and the salvation of sinners until about two years since, when he was transferred to the Oneida Conference, and stationed at Springfield, Otsego District. Though feeble in health when he came to us he went to his charge and entered upon his work with true courage and devotion, and labored through the year as a faithful minister of Jesus Christ. At the last session of this body he was reappointed to Springfield, but the first Sabbath after Conference found him so feeble, so utterly broken in health, as to render it necessary to release him from the responsibilities of the charge, yet hoping that a season of rest might result in the recuperation of his exhausted physical energies. Vain hope! His work was done, his end was near. He found a temporary home in Hartwick, where, surrounded by his dear relatives and those most dear to him, he closed his eyes in death at twenty minutes past one o'clock on the afternoon of November 10th, and passed peacefully away to the land where "there shall be no more death, neither sorrow nor crying, nor any more pain." During the four weeks last preceding his death he was abundantly sustained by the grace of God that he had so earnestly recommended to others. The day before he died he said to his mother, "I want to tell mother how this sweet religion comforts me, and how the grace of God sustains me through my present sufferings, but I cannot talk." He could not speak above a whisper during his last illness. When asked several times by his deeply afflicted wife if he was happy, he answered promptly, "Yes, yes!" and in this frame of mind this faithful servant of our Lord Jesus Christ left the shores of time for the unsullied pleasures of "the house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens." "Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints." "Let me die the death of the righteous, and let my last end be like his."

"Servant of God, well done;
Thy glorious warfare's past;
The battle's fought, the race is run,
And thou art crowned at last."

Brother Weeks enjoyed, preached, and exemplified holiness. It was his theme. It is said by one who knew him intimately that "he lived for three grand objects, namely, to be ready to preach, to pray, and to die." He was a modest, unassuming, and faithful minister and Christian gentleman. Of his peculiarities as a preacher we cannot speak definitely, never having enjoyed the pleasure of hearing him; but our brief acquaintance taught us to love and respect him as a man, a Christian, and a minister of Christ.

Orrin Pier, Sylvester W. Cooper—2.

1. Rev. ORRIN PIER was born in Tinmouth, Rutland County, Vermont, March 7, 1797. He was converted May 12, 1816, and received into the New York Conference May 12, 1819, and died October 16, 1864.

Brother Pier possessed a mind of no ordinary cast. With an honest integrity of purpose, and a zeal calculated to carry out that purpose, he was active and efficient in his Master's cause. He was a member of the traveling connection forty-five years; twenty-three of which were spent in the active duties of an itinerant, and twenty-two, as far as health and circumstances would admit, he labored to do his Master's will as a superannuate. Nor were his labors in vain. Wherever he went he was successful, and souls were converted to God. He was consistent in sustaining his much-loved family altar, in doing which he was often made triumphantly happy, and with his latest breath shouted "Salvation," "Glory Halleluiah;" thus catching the notes of the distant shore ere he left us forever. Thus has passed away our beloved brother. To know him was but to love him. May we all cherish the memory of his cordial and cheerful friendship, imitate his virtues, and meet him at last in glory.

2. Rev. SYLVESTER W. COOPER was born in Troy, New York, October 31, 1839. He was the child of pious parents. As in multitudes of instances, the good seed which brought forth abundant fruit in his short life was sown by the fidelity of a devoted Christian mother. He was converted and received into the Church under the labors of Rev. Homer Eaton, at North Troy, in 1857. Brother Cooper very soon felt that it was his duty to preach the Gospel, and in 1861 he was admitted on trial into the Troy Conference, and appointed to Grafton, where he remained one year. The next year he served the Master faithfully on the New Ashford Charge, and the following year at Clarkesville and New Salem. At the last session of the Conference he was appointed to West Bush and Pleasant Square, where he labored with more than usual earnestness and devotion for about four months, when he was compelled by disease to surrender a work he loved. In August last he returned to the home of his childhood to die; and during the three months that he slowly wasted away he gave abundant evidence, by his patience and resignation, that he could suffer as well as do the will of his heavenly Master. It was not until within five weeks of his death that he gave up all hope of returning to his work; and during those weeks his faith in Christ continued constant and unwavering, and his hope of immortality bright and steady. When asked on one occasion what the state of his mind was, he answered: "My experience may be found in the first chapter of the Epistle to the Philippians," a chapter expressive of the strongest Christian confidence. As he approached the closing scene he was triumphant in the prospect of departure, and he repeated frequently the expression of the Apostle, "To die is gain," "To die is gain." November 23, 1864, Brother Cooper "entered into rest." Though young, he was a good preacher, a devoted Christian, and a practical man, successful as well as laborious. He has gone to his reward bearing his sheaves with him. A young man of fine promise has fallen at his post of duty. His bright career should stimulate his fellow-laborers to equal fidelity in the Master's cause; his early fall should enforce the solemn injunction, "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might."

C. R. Adams, W. H. Gilder, R. Roberts, G. Pierce—4.

1. Rev. Charles R. Adams was born May 20, 1816. Having been converted, he felt that his calling was more specific than merely to general usefulness, and that it was to preach the Gospel of the Son of God.

Brother Adams was appointed to the Essex Charge, Conn., by the presiding elder in 1841, received into the New York Conference in 1842, and returned to the same charge. His ministry there was greatly blessed, and his memory to this day is warmly cherished. In every place where Brother Adams lived and labored he was more than esteemed: beloved with an exceeding tender friendship. His ministry was often crowned with revival and regenerating power. Brother Adams was embarrassed in his ministry by a persistent bronchial irritation, which finally terminated his public labors and retired him to the superannuated ranks. Yet, as a superannuated man, he continued to labor locally as his strength permitted to the last. When the field was divided he fell into the New York East Conference, and at its session of 1852 was granted a supernumerary relation in consequence of feeble health. Disappointed in his hope of restored strength, he asked for and received a superannuated relation, in which he remained until his death. The last ten years of his life were spent in Chicago. A few months he supplied the Church in Lockport, Illinois. He had a clear scriptural experience, and his testimony in social meetings was always profitable. In prayer he was unusually gifted, especially in prayer for seekers of religion. At such times the windows of heaven seemed to open, and he bore the penitent directly to the mercy-seat. Ordinarily the sunshine of sweet contentment, of quietness and assurance overspread his features, and showed his interior life was a happy one. In his active ministry he was useful, having the wisdom that winneth souls.

He died of an affection of the brain, Tuesday, February 28, 1865. Such was his disease that it precluded rational conversation. His letters to his absent family until the very last were full of faith and comfort, radiant with hope, strong in confidence. Occasionally there were gleams of momentary sunshine in his last hours, showing that light was on his pathway. We know his manner of life and conversation, and knowing, have strong confidence that he rests in peace.

2. Rev. William H. Gilder, one of the members of the New York East Conference, and chaplain of the Fortieth (Mozart) Regiment of New York Volunteers, died at Culpepper, Va., Wednesday, April 13, 1864, of small-pox, after an illness of fifteen days. His health had been greatly impaired by an attack of typhoid fever, from which he suffered in 1863. During his last visit to New York he remarked to a friend that he was not in a fit condition to return to the army, but that nevertheless he would go. His sense of duty to his regiment was so strong that he would not, unless absolutely disabled, absent himself from his post.

At the time of his death Brother Gilder was about fifty-two years of age. He was the son of Mr. John Gilder, for many years a well-known and leading Methodist layman of Philadelphia. He entered the Philadelphia Conference in 1833, and was stationed first at Crosswicks, New Jersey. The following year he was stationed at Elizabethtown. In 1835 he was stationed at Germantown, Penn. His labors having impaired his health, he was for several years returned in the Conference Minutes as supernumerary, and resided in the city of Philadelphia, where he was engaged in mercantile business. About 1840 he established at Philadelphia the Pearl and Repository, an independent Methodist paper, to which several of the Methodist ministers of the city were contributors. Rev. Dr. Ryerson, of Canada, once pronounced this paper one of the best that came from the States. For some years our deceased brother filled with great ability the position of Principal of the Female Institute at Bordentown, N. J. He afterward became President of Flushing Female College, at St. Thomas's Hall, Flushing, L. I. Under his management this school attained an extensive reputation as a first-class seminary. While at Bordentown he established the Literary Register, which attained a large circulation, and was only discontinued when the cares of the school at Flushing, absorbing all his time, prevented his attending to editorial duties. In all, he was for about seventeen years identified with the cause of education as a practical teacher, holding during this time an effective relation to his conference, and sharing in a high degree the esteem of his fellow-preachers.

Our brother had been identified with the Fortieth New York Regiment from the time of its original organization. He has shared in all its campaigns, except when actually compelled by ill health to spend a few weeks at home. He performed the duties of his responsible position with exemplary zeal, and received therefor most gratifying evidence of esteem from the officers and soldiers with whom he was called to associate.

On his sick-bed, and before his disease had developed alarming symptoms, he partly wrote and partly dictated a letter to his brethren of the New York East Conference. We were then in session, and it was his hope that his fraternal greeting would reach the seat of the conference to be read to us; but before its arrival the conference had adjourned, and he himself had taken his departure to the better world.

From the Rev. R. A. Chase, of the East Maine Conference, and Chaplain of the Fourth Regiment Maine Volunteers, we have some interesting particulars of Brother Gilder's last illness. He contracted the disease of which he doubtless died in the regimental hospital. On the 8th of April, in reply to a note from Chaplain Chase, he dictated a few sentences expressive of the state of his mind: "With the uncertainty of life and death before me, I desire to express my unshaken confidence in the merits of the atonement of Christ as the only ground of my hope of salvation. I am not afraid to die; neither, except on account of my family, have I any strong desire to live. I feel perfectly resigned to the Divine will. I have been endeavoring to trust in Christ and serve him ever since thirteen years of age. Nor do I ever regret having entered the United States service. I have no depression of feeling, nor any buoyancy. I feel resigned and hopeful. My sky is clear." Not long before he expired he said to his son, "I am in the hands of one whom I can trust; I feel that I am perfectly safe," and when he could no longer speak he intimated by signs that all was well. In his regiment his death occasioned the deepest regret, and at a meeting of the officers it was resolved that his remains should be escorted to the depot at Brandy Station with every solemnity by the whole regiment. This was accordingly done on the afternoon of the 15th of April, 1864.

Thus has passed away a Christian, a patriot, and a true hero. Armed only with the might of meekness and love, ambitious only to fulfill the duties of a Christian minister, he has laid down his life as a willing sacrifice for his country and his God. His pure example remains as a precious legacy to us who survive him.

3. Rev. Robert Roberts, the subject of this memoir, was born in a small village in Lincolnshire, England, in the year 1832, and died in the city of Brooklyn, January, 1865. At the early age of fifteen years he experienced religion, and at once became a zealous and faithful follower of the Saviour. He very soon began to feel serious impressions of a call to preach the Gospel. Following these leadings, at the age of eighteen he became a local preacher, and four months after this was received as a traveling preacher among the Primitive Methodists. For four years he traveled until he was received into full connection, and the same year, 1855, he came to this country. He brought with him excellent letters of recommendation from the Primitive Methodists. Providence directed his steps to a small village upon Long Island. Here the people were edified and profited. Those who had a right to judge saw that God was with him, and that he had a gift, and deemed it proper that he should go forth upon this holy calling, where he was received as a member of society, and by his certificates recognized as a local preacher. A vacancy at this time occurring at Sag Harbor, thither he was sent by the presiding elder, where during the balance of the year he labored most acceptably. Here he was recommended to the New York East Conference where in the spring of 1856 he was received as a probationer and appointed to Greenport, L. I.; in 1857–58 at Good Ground; in 1859–60 at Newtown and Middle Village Circuit; in 1861–62 at New Utrecht, where, at the desire of the charge, he obtained a superannuated relation, that he might serve them the third year. In each of those places named God blessed his labors and gave him souls for his hire. His last appointment in 1864 was at Cook-street, where he labored until his death. His last sermon was preached on Sunday evening, just two weeks before he died. An unusual solemnity of feeling seemed to rest upon him, a premonition that his work was done. His text was, "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might; for there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in the grave whither thou goest." At the close of the sermon he gave utterance to the following language: "I call heaven and earth to witness that I have set life and death before you." "I this night declare my skirts clear of the blood of you all." "I feel to-night as though I were delivering to you my last message." And with a heart melted, and eyes suffused, he bade them meet him in heaven. Prophetic words! From that church he went home, sick, and faint, to die. For two weeks he lingered upon the shore in mortal sickness. "I have a great desire," he often would say, "to get well on account of my dear wife and children." "I feel fully resigned to the will of heaven. I have no fears for the future. My way is all clear." But O, how did his heart yearn for his dear companion and four little ones! He may be pardoned for such solicitude for that now widowed wife and those fatherless children. Yet even this was but temporary. The victory was to be complete. Grace enabled him to yield up his dearest earthly loves, and to turn them over to the hands of Him who hath said, "I will be a father to the fatherless, and a husband to the widow." For the first night during his illness, his wife had left him to take a little rest. About five o'clock in the morning he was taken worse and asked to see her quickly. She hastened to his bed side. "My dear," said he, "I am worse; I think I am dying." "Well, Robert, how do you feel; is it all well with you?" He answered, "Yes, it is all well; my way is clear." "O," said the wife to the dying man, "how can I give you up? What will become of the poor children?" "My dear, I believe God will take care of you and them, and that you will be able to keep them with you and bring them up." A few questions and answers more, and they could be but few, for life was fast ebbing out. "Where, dear Robert, do you wish to be buried?" "Lay me in the graveyard at Bay Ridge, by the side of my dear little boy." "And now, my dear, I am going; let me kiss you once more." She leaned down and the last kiss was given. Ah, that last token of undying love; how sacred! He was now entering the cold waters, and they were wonderfully smooth about that time. He praised God until his speech began to falter, when, summoning his remaining strength, he exclaimed, "Victory! Victory! Vic-tory through the blood of Jesus!" And then sinking into the arms of death, sweetly slept in Jesus without a struggle or a groan, aged thirty-three years and two months.

4. Rev. Gershom Pierce was admitted on trial in the New York Conference in the spring of 1803 and stationed at Plattsburgh. His appointments thereafter were as follows: In 1804, at Fletcher; 1805, Niagara; 1806, Oswegatchie; 1807, Dunham; 1808, Saratoga; 1809–10, Granville; 1811, Thurman; 1812, Grand Isle; 1813–14, Cambridge; 1815–16, Montgomery; 1817–18, Sharon; 1819, Albany; 1820, Coeymans; 1821–22, Chatham; 1823–24, Granville; 1825–26, Pittsfield; 1827, Burlington; 1828–29, Redding; 1830–31, Hempstead and Huntington. At the Conference of 1832 he became superannuated, and continued in that relation to the period of his death. Brother Pierce is remembered by the older members of the Conference as manifesting much more than ordinary ability. His intellect in force and habit is best described by the expression "long-headed." He was a devout man, at times a most powerful preacher. His sermons, weighty with thought, fervid with feeling, and in power of the Holy Spirit, made a deep and abiding impression. He died in much peace at Milan, Ohio, on the 23d of March, 1865.

S. Hover, W. R. Edmonson—2.

1. Rev. SYLVANUS HOVER experienced religion and joined the Church in 1852. He finished his course of study at the Ohio Wesleyan University in 1858, was admitted on trial in the North Indiana Conference in 1861, was received into the Conference in 1863, and died in great peace on the 15th of July, 1864. In the death of Brother Hover the Church has lost a young man of fine literary attainments, and of much promise as a preacher.

2. Rev. W. R. EDMONSON was converted and joined the Church in 1849, was received into the North Indiana Conference in 1853, and was appointed to Greenfield Circuit as junior preacher, and successively to Kokomo, Cicero, Somerset, Columbia City, Tipton, Peru, and Huntington. Here he finished his work with joy. He was a dignified Christian gentleman, a successful laborer, and a good preacher. His death, which occurred on the 17th of November, 1864, was triumphant; he exclaimed in the last hour, "How wonderful the victory this faith achieves."

In the death of Brother Edmonson the Church has lost an able minister, and our Conference a worthy member. But our loss is his eternal gain.

QUEST. 12. Who have Died this year?

R. Seaman.

Rev. RICHARD SEAMAN was born April 28, 1785, and died November 6, 1864, aged eighty. When a little over fourteen he left the home of his childhood, Herricks, L. I., and came to New York, where he became a clerk in a drug-store. He immediately commenced the study of medicine, and when about nineteen was a licensed practicing physician. At the age of twenty-one he was appointed resident physician of the alms-house. This early entrance upon duties so responsible was fully warranted by his mature judgment and conscientious devotion to his profession. In the fall of 1812, with the deliberation and firmness which strongly marked his character, he resolved to devote his life to God's service. From this time his professional services were rendered doubly valuable by the solicitude he continually manifested for the spiritual welfare of those to whose bodily maladies he administered relief. As he loved his profession and pursued it diligently, his practice became large and remunerative; but from the pressure of convictions he could not allay he was impelled to abandon it to engage in the duties of the Christian ministry. In 1823 he was received on trial in the New York Conference, and was regularly appointed to different fields of labor for twenty-two years, when, in 1845, through failure of health, he was obliged to take a superannuated relation. He, however, continued to labor faithfully according to his ability and opportunities until entirely disabled by disease. Several of the Churches in the upper part of this city are largely indebted for their establishment to his self-sacrificing labor and contributions. Though not wealthy, his superior judgment, stern integrity, untiring energy, and exact business habits, made his name a guarantee for the faithful performance of any obligation he was willing to indorse. Modest, generous, transparently true, he filled every sphere in which he moved with such dignity and propriety as to win the respect and confidence of all who knew him. His preaching was eminently evangelical and practical, and was thoroughly imbued with his deep personal religious experience. During the last thirteen years he was a great sufferer. His frame was tortured with rheumatism, and he was obliged to use crutches in walking; but during all this time, as he frequently and joyfully testified, his communion with God was never once disturbed. The death of his wife in 1861, who had been his faithful companion for nearly fifty years, severed the last tie which attached him to this world. Being asked soon after that event where he lived, he replied, "I board with my nephew, but I live with the Lord." This was emphatically true, and he only awaited patiently his translation. In October last his disease increased in violence, and as he saw his end approaching he requested to be removed to the room of his only brother, Mr. S. Seaman, of this city, where, in the midst of his kindred, who loved him tenderly, he gradually grew weaker in body, but more and more joyous, until he passed away to his reward exclaiming, "O my Saviour, how I love thee!"

C. R. Martin.

REV. CARLOS ROSCOE MARTIN died in Fuhchau, China, September 6, 1864. He was born in Vermont, June 29, 1835, and converted at the age of fourteen. Ever after his conversion he was a conscientious and earnest Christian, exhibiting a remarkable anxiety to do good to others, and lead them to Christ. He was early impressed with the idea that it was his duty to preach the Gospel; and others were impressed with the same idea concerning him. At the age of nineteen he commenced making special preparation for the great work to which he felt himself called, applying himself to diligent and close study, which he never remitted till he fell in death. He was licensed to preach at the age of twenty, and soon gave promise and evidence of efficiency and usefulness in his cherished work of calling sinners to repentance. From August, 1856, to the early part of 1857, he labored as a supply at Alburgh, where his labors were signally blessed in the conversion of souls. His inclination led him in the spring of 1857 to enter the Biblical Institute at Concord, N. H., that he might more fully prepare for the work of the ministry, where he graduated honorably in 1859. He offered himself for the missionary work, was accepted, and sailed for China with his young wife in October, 1859, having entered the ministry the spring previous. He reached his destined field of labor on the 1st day of April, 1860, and engaged at once in the studies and labors which were his loved employ till the close of his life. Of his faithfulness as a missionary in China, his friends and brethren at home had frequent testimony. In his work there, as here, he gave full proof of his indomitable energy of character and his ardent love for the souls of men. He fell suddenly at his post by an attack of cholera, passing triumphantly from his earthly labor to his heavenly reward. Though the time allotted him in which to live and labor for God was but brief, yet he testified emphatically on his death-bed that it was profitable to be a Christian, and that he did not regret coming to China, and wished his testimony on both these points to be communicated to his friends in America. Brother Martin was but little known in this Conference, yet his name will be ever remembered among us, and it is hoped that his noble example of self-denial and sacrifice in the cause of his Divine Master will lead other young men to do likewise.

F. Hawkins, Justin T. Alden, George W. Calkins*—3.

1. Rev. Franklin Hawkins was born in Poultney, Vermont, May 4, 1810. Here he resided with his parents until the year 1816, when they removed to East Schuyler, Herkimer County, New York. Here he was converted and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church at the age of eighteen years. In 1836 Brother Hawkins joined the Black River Conference on trial, and was appointed to Lowville Charge, which he served one year. He was then appointed to Herkimer, and subsequently being received into full connection in the Conference, he served efficiently the following charges, namely: In 1838, Canisteo; 1839–40, Herkimer; 1841, Brunswick; 1842–43, Chateaugay; 1844–45, Buck's Bridge; 1846–47, South Canton; 1848–49, Marcy; 1850, Newport. In 1851 he received a superannuated relation, which he sustained until his death, which occurred in Herkimer, New York, July 2, 1864. Brother Hawkins was an earnest Christian, a man of faith, and eminently useful. He was an able minister of the New Testament, and when compelled by reason of infirmities to retire from the regular work, retained the spirit of the minister of the Gospel, and maintained his Christian and ministerial character to the last.

2. Rev. Justin T. Alden was born on the 21st day of January, 1821, in Hinesburgh, Vermont. Under the salutary influence of devout praying parents the sentiments of religion and godliness were early imbibed, and at the tender age of thirteen he found the way of peace and connected himself with the Methodist Episcopal Church. While a student in Gouverneur Wesleyan Seminary, and when only eighteen years old, he received license to exhort, and two years later was licensed to preach. He entered the itinerancy on probation in 1842, and was admitted to membership in Black River Conference in 1844. On the 26th of July, 1864, moved by the overflowing sympathy of his warm, genial, patriotic heart, he went to Washington as a delegate of the Christian Commission, to minister for a time to the sick and wounded sufferers of our army. We find at this time some very interesting entries in his journal, showing a state of special nearness to God, and a soul reclining trustingly on a Saviour's breast. He seemed to have some premonition that this was to be his last mission on earth, and so it proved. On Monday, August 22, he was seriously ill, and on Friday of the same week, accompanied by his wife and physician, he undertook the perilous journey homeward, reaching Camden on the following Monday just in time to spend a few brief hours with his household, pronounce a father's blessing upon his dear children, and expire in the midst of his friends. His last words were "Peaceful! peaceful! O how peaceful!"

In his character he reminded one of the quiet dews gently falling, or the early mellow beams which chase the night away. His was a nature at once mild and decided, so genial as to make everything around him feel the sunlight, and yet so positive in virtue, grace, and dignity as to utterly banish every vicious thing. His pulpit ministrations were richly set with sacred intellectual gems, and enforced by quiet, grave sincerity. His departure is our great loss, but "to him to die was gain."

QUEST. 12. Who have Died this year?

D. Perry, Henry M. Blake, Sargent S. Gray—3.

1. Rev. DAN PERRY died in Oxford, December 16, 1864, aged eighty-five years. He was born in Rehoboth, Mass., August 5, 1779, and was born again in November, 1799, and immediately joined the Methodist Episcopal Church. The next year he was licensed to exhort, and he was received into the New England Conference in July, 1802. His appointments were to Needham, as a colleague with Joshua Soule, Falmouth, Norridgewock, Readfield, Hallowell, Penobscot, Bethel, Barnard, Vt., New London, Conn., Weathersfield, Vt. In 1809, through his excessive labors his health had become impaired so that he was obliged to locate. His travels during these eight years were very extensive, his circuits including one hundred and thirty-seven towns. In 1834 he was readmitted to the Maine Conference, and labored on the following circuits: Bethel, Rumford, North Paris, Buxton, Otisfield, Norway, Livermore, Lisbon, Lovel, and North Paris. In 1847 he received a superannuated relation and removed to Oxford, where he remained till his death. He was a man of remarkable industry. In his ministry or on his farm, he was never idle. He was a man of great firmness and decision, of deep thought and study. As a citizen he was respected and honored with responsible trusts. He was twice elected to represent his district in the state Legislature, though his own political opinions were not in harmony with those of a majority of his constituents. His last years were spent in suffering and weakness; but through all he was permitted to enjoy sweet communion with God. When he was dying he was asked by his son "Is Jesus with you?" "Yes, yes, yes!" were the last words of the aged veteran as he passed away to the bosom of him who promised, "Lo I am with you alway, even unto the end."

2. Rev. HENRY MARTYN BLAKE died suddenly of heart disease on his way to church, Sunday morning, January 15, 1865, aged fifty-seven years. The congregation at Pine-street, Portland, had assembled and were waiting for services to commence, when the startling intelligence was announced that their pastor was dead. Brother Blake was converted while he was a student, at a camp-meeting held on the Seminary grounds at Kent's Hill, in 1829. Nine years after he was admitted as a probationer in the Maine Couference, and in due season he was ordained to the offices of deacon and elder. His appointments were to Bartlett, N. H., York, Kittery, Alfred, Pine-street, Portland, Hallowell, Bangor, Searsport, Biddeford, Augusta, Beacon-street, Bath, Lewiston, Biddeford, Woodford's Corner, Kent's Hill, Beacon-street, Bath, and Pine-street, Portland. Few ministers can exhibit a more glorious record, or can point to such a cloud of witnesses for their pastoral fidelity. He was steadfast, unmovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord. An earnest desire for the salvation of souls, and a constant sense of responsibility, repressed his natural mirthfulness, and made him appear grave, and at times even stern to those but little acquainted with him; yet to his intimate friends he was always pleasant and genial. Great confidence was reposed in him by his brethren. For many years he served as Missionary Treasurer and as a Trustee of Conference. Twice he was sent as a delegate to the General Conference. Dying, he remembered Zion. In his will, written a few days before his death, he gave a thousand dollars to the Maine Wesleyan Seminary, and made liberal bequests to other charitable institutions of the Church.

3. Rev. SARGEANT S. GRAY, another faithful watchman and a member of the Maine Conference, was suddenly removed by death on the 6th day of December, 1864, aged thirty-eight years. From the walls of Zion and the midst of his brethren, he has gone to the ranks of the blessed in heaven. Brother Gray joined Conference in 1855, and was appointed to West Newfield. He afterward received the following appointments: Naples, Hartford, Livermore, Gray, Elliot, and Baldwin. In this last charge he was unexpectedly stricken down with diphtheria while in the midst of a glorious revival of religion. He fell in the prime of life and the meridian of his usefulness, with his armor on. Brother Gray was a successful minister of the New Testament, and a faithful pastor in the Church. Few men were more devoted and earnest in their efforts to secure souls than this dear brother. Many will doubtless be found in glory who have been saved through his instrumentality.

Quest. 12. Who have Died this year?

G. S. Phillips.

Rev. George S. Phillips was transferred at the solicitation of and by Bishop Ames from the North Ohio to the Colorado Conference. As to his birth, or any facts in relation to his early history, we are entirely ignorant. Prior to his transfer he had been in the effective work on the Pacific coast. He held for a season the position of editor of the California Christian Advocate, but for the most part acted in the capacity of president of the young ladies' department of the University of the Pacific. It was while on a visit to his friends in Ohio that the tocsin of war was sounded. He was subsequently appointed chaplain in an Ohio regiment, and was with General Sherman in his rapid and bloody march toward Atlanta, sharing the hardships and privations of a soldier in the ranks. At Chattanooga, where they were forced to the extremity of subsisting upon the flesh of their horses and mules, he contracted the army dysentery, and as they neared Atlanta became so debilitated that he was forced to resign and return to his home in Ohio. Improving somewhat, he accepted an agency in the Christian Commission, in which capacity he did good service up to the time of his transfer to the Colorado Conference. He was disappointed in the hope that the trip over the plains and the change of climate would check his disease and restore him again to health. Arriving at Denver, he was placed in charge of the Colorado Seminary, but continued in this position only three months, when his disease increased in violence to such an extent as rendered his return a strict necessity. A passage was secured for his return trip, and no attention was neglected on the part of his friends to render it as comfortable as the circumstances would permit. He succeeded in reaching his home in safety, but much debilitated, and died in a few weeks in perfect peace, surrounded by his sorrowing family.

During our acquaintance with him he gave evidence that he was a man of God. As a minister he manifested marked ability and fervency of spirit; and though his nervous system was utterly prostrated by his disease, one could not fail to mark him as a man of great energy of character. At least a profound sorrow was experienced by his friends here when they received the news of his death, realizing that the cause of education and of Zion in this community had lost a much-needed and able worker. His Christian philanthropy and zeal led him to devise comprehensive plans of usefulness; and while musing upon these things the future was so irradiated with glory as to "fire his heart and nerve his arm." Death, however, thwarted his designs. But we have reason to believe that he has entered upon a brighter, happier future than he could positively have imagined. "Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him."

To his stricken family we tender our heartfelt sympathy, and devoutly pray that God may lead them to a blissful reunion with the loved husband and father in his better world. And let us be reminded, brethren, that we, like him, may fall in the very vigor of manhood, and "be also ready."

Rev. Lorenzo Rogers was born in Orange County, Vermont, March 12, 1804; converted 1828; entered the ministry 1832, and the traveling connection 1834; superannuated 1854, and died at his residence in Cleveland, February 17, 1865. Brother Rogers was a zealous patriot, a warm and enduring friend, an earnest Christian, and an eloquent and powerful preacher. His pathetic appeals were often overwhelming, the hardest hearts melting like wax before the flame. Hundreds were converted through his instrumentality, and thousands will rise up in the day of eternity and call him blessed.

Quest. 12. Who have Died this year?

A. B. Poe, A. J. Stubbs—2.

1. Rev. A. B. Poe was born near Massillon, Stark County, Ohio, July 20, 1832, and died of consumption in Fostoria, Ohio, May 11, 1865.

He was converted under the labors of Rev. R. Hager in 1850, admitted on trial in the North Ohio Conference in 1854, ordained deacon at Lima, by Bishop Waugh, in 1856, and elder by Bishop Baker, at West Liberty, in 1858. He was appointed to the following charges, which he filled acceptably and usefully: Sylvania in 1854, and at the expiration of six months was removed to fill a vacancy at Toledo, where he remained until the close of the year. Reappointed to Sylvania in 1855, West Unity in 1856, Defiance in 1857 and 1858. The following year to Delta; and to Fostoria in 1860, where he was reappointed in 1861. In the beginning of this year his spirit was aroused to follow the soldiers and preach Christ to them in the field. He received his commission as Chaplain of the Seventy-second Ohio Volunteer Infantry in 1861, to which he was reappointed by Bishop Morris in 1862.

His efforts to relieve the wounded and dying on the bloody field of Shiloh, almost without food or rest for three days and nights, gave his vigorous constitution a shock from which it never recovered, and after eighteen months of service he returned home debilitated and diseased. But determined not to yield, he accepted the appointment to Fostoria in 1863, where he labored with great zeal and marked ability. But at last his voice wholly gave way, and he was forced to abandon a work which he loved more than life.

Superannuated in 1864, he hoped that rest and medical aid would restore his exhausted energies, but in vain. Hopeful and uncomplaining, he suffered beyond description, until his Master called him home. He ardently loved the Church and her ministry, and often, when in health, prayed that his sons (one is now in heaven) might be called to catch and blow the gospel trumpet as it fell from his hands. His Christian experience was uniformly marked by great self-abasement, and a steady trust in the atonement made by the Lord Jesus. Christ and Christ only was the central and glorious idea of his hope for eternal life.

His sermons, full of the great truths of the Bible, were often terrible to sinners, but affording hope and comfort to the penitent and the believing. Plain, practical, and zealous as a speaker, dignified and courteous as a pastor, he was respected and honored in all the positions which he occupied in the Church.

During the last years of his ministry he was especially earnest and persevering in his efforts to bring sinners to Christ. By the way side, in shops and business offices, he pursued the erring with the voice of warning and entreaty until the falling tear and quivering voice told how deeply they were moved. God honored him in the closing scene. The clouds that obscured the future were lifted, and light shone brightly on his dying pillow. He knew his end was near, and consciousness departed only with his spirit.

To a friend, in whose eye he saw a tear, he whispered, "This is no time to weep—rejoice." At his own request we sang,

> "O sing to me of heaven
> When I am called to die."

After which he partook of the Lord's supper, and in a few minutes he calmly fell asleep.

2. Rev. Aaron J. Stubbs was born in Butler County, Ohio, March 13, 1830. He was converted to God and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church in the winter of 1849. He was united in marriage to Miss Elizabeth S. Huffman, November 30, 1852.

Brother Stubbs was admitted on trial in the Central Ohio Conference, held in Toledo, September, 1857, and appointed to Port Jefferson Circuit, which he traveled one year, and afterward the following circuits: Arcanum, two years; De Graff, two years; Huntsville, twenty months.

In April, 1864, when the National Guards were called into service, he was elected Chaplain of the Thirty-second Regiment. He entered upon his duties with zeal, hoping to do efficient service in his country's cause. Soon after his regiment reached the Potomac he was taken sick; for a time his life was despaired of; and although he partially recovered, and returned with his regiment, yet he was never well afterward.

As a preacher, Brother Stubbs labored on the several circuits he traveled with great acceptability and usefulness. He was a young man of much promise to the Church.

At the session of the conference held in Marion, September, 1864, he was superannuated, and the same fall, with his family, settled in Patterson, Hardin County, Ohio, where he entered into business. He preached more than he was able during the winter and spring. At times he was flattered with the hope that he would regain his health again, fully intending to devote his life to the work of the ministry; but in this he and his friends were disappointed. In company with Brother J. Holmes, I visited him about the first of June. We found him on the verge of eternity, but happy and resigned to the will of God, willing to live or die. He died in peace on the 14th of June, leaving a wife and three children, with the Church, to mourn his loss.

Benjamin Winans.

Rev. Benjamin Winans was born in Urbana, Champaign County, Ohio, April 3, 1820. He was converted to God and received into the Methodist Episcopal Church at South Bend, Indiana, in the eighteenth year of his age. He was admitted into the traveling connection by the Indiana Conference in the fall of 1843, and continued uninterruptedly a member of conference until the day of his death. The following is the record of his appointments: 1843, Union; 1844, St. Joseph; 1845, Decatur; 1846–47, Lima; 1848, Pittsburgh; 1849, Delphi and Pittsburgh; 1850, Greencastle; 1851–52, Attica; 1853, Michigan City; 1854–57, Lafayette District; 1858–61, La Porte District; 1862, South Bend District; 1863, owing to a partial failure of his health, he was placed on the superannuated list; 1864, Indianapolis District, where, after attending five of his quarterly meetings, while returning home from the last, he was instantly hurried into eternity by an accident on the Lafayette and Indianapolis Railroad, October 31, 1864. Thus suddenly was he cut down in the prime of his manhood and the midst of his usefulness, ceasing at once to work and live. His last sermon was preached only the evening before he was killed from the text, "O Lord, I will praise thee!"

Brother Winans possessed preaching abilities of a superior order; he was a strong logical thinker, an earnest, effective declaimer, chaste in style, natural in manner, and evangelical in spirit. He was not a profuse reader, but a profound thinker; modest in his pretensions, and unassuming in his claims; retired in his disposition, given to solitary walks and silent meditation. As an officer in the Church he was faithful, law-abiding, and prompt; and by his wakeful energy he was instrumental in originating and sustaining several of our literary institutions, as well as in other respects serving the permanent institutions of the Church. He loved the Church of his choice, was ever jealous of her honor, and desirous for her success. As a citizen he was peaceable and loyal, serving his country in every way that a faithful minister, not entering the army, could in the time of its peril. His hospitality was proverbial. Not only was the weary itinerant always welcomed to his home, but his beds and the floors of his house were often appropriated as lodgings for soldiers whom he gathered in from the streets. As a companion he was cordial, facetious, and entertaining. As a husband and father he was affectionate, considerate, and cheerful; happy in his domestic relations, and hopeful of the future. His piety was unpretending but evangelical; he bore his afflictions with patience, and under the chastening hand of God he was subdued but confiding, never doubting the wisdom and goodness of God in the allotments of Divine Providence.

D. Sharp, E. G. West—2.

1. Rev. David Sharp was a native of New Jersey, born September 5, 1787. His parents soon moved to Virginia, and in 1800 emigrated to the West, and settled in Logan County, Ohio. Here in 1807 he experienced pardon and regeneration under the ministry of the Methodists, and, as it was natural for him, he identified himself with the people who had been the means, under God, of bringing so much joy to his heart. This choice gave great offense, and deprived him of the pleasures of home for a time and the society of his otherwise excellent Quaker parents. This opposition he bore meekly and soon overcame, and through a long life was a great favorite in his large family circle. His venerable father often sat with tearful interest under his ministry, and many of his family became private and some official members of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

In 1810 he was licensed to preach, and soon after was employed by the presiding elder to supply a circuit. At the session of the Ohio Conference, held in Steubenville September 1, 1813, he was admitted on trial, and appointed to White Water Circuit. He traveled five years in the conference he entered, having been ordained in course deacon and elder. In 1819 he was appointed to Silver Creek Circuit, in the Missouri Conference, and in that frontier region he served the Church five years longer as presiding elder. His district included all the then settled parts of Illinois. Rev. John Stewart, now of the Ohio Conference, informs us that he traveled Mount Carmel Circuit in his district in 1821, when it embraced four county seats. If this was the extent of one circuit, what must have been the labor necessary to serve a district composed of many such circuits? The roads were bad, the streams unbridged, but few ferryboats, and the accommodations for the most part very poor. The deprivations and hardships he endured may be imagined, but not described. He, however, prosecuted his work with great moral courage and indomitable perseverance, as well as with great decision and energy of character. The body containing a soul of such excellent qualities, capable of such effort and endurance, must have had a sound constitution and much strength.

In 1825 he was transferred to the Pittsburgh Conference, then recently organized. Here he labored consecutively twenty-four years, four years as presiding elder of the Pittsburgh District, and twenty years on circuits and in stations. In 1849 he was transferred to the Ohio Conference, where he commenced his itinerant career. When the conference was divided in 1852 he fell into the Cincinnati Conference, where he completed his forty-seventh year as an effective laborer in the itinerancy. In the fall of 1860, his health having failed, he consented to receive a superannuated relation, in which he continued to preach on funeral and some other occasions as he was able. Occasionally he met classes, and encouraged by his presence and help the Sunday-schools of his vicinity. We have before us the testimony of brethren long associated with him in labor, and from what we have received and know ourselves, we can say that in all the places of labor assigned him he was esteemed acceptable, efficient, and successful in his work. As a Christian, we believe no complaints were ever made against him; as a minister in the pulpit, his discourses were respectable, but not extraordinary. It may be said, however, in favor of his performances and of himself, that he never made great pretensions, and never wearied his hearers with long discourses. It has often been said that his sermons were like trees with more fruit than blossoms or foliage. He was punctual. It was a rare occurrence for him to be absent from or too late at an appointment. It is said that his judgment of law and the order of business in quarterly conferences commanded universal respect. He was an unassuming, modest man, clothed with humility, uniformly pious. Indeed, we think what was said of Barnabas might in truth be applied to him: "He was a good man, full of the Holy Ghost, and of faith." Brother Sharp was twice married. His first wife, a Miss Moore of Illinois, lived only a few months. His second wife, who survives him, was the daughter of the late venerable Thornton Fleming, long an efficient minister of the Baltimore and then of the Pittsburgh Conferences. We close with a brief record of Brother Sharp's last testimony. The religion he had so long and faithfully preached to others was his theme and solace in the chamber of his sickness and on his dying bed. While his vigorous constitution and retentive memory were yielding to the weight of years and the power of disease, his inner man, unimpaired, not only retained but magnified the grace of God in Christ. The same cheerfulness of mind which had alleviated the burdens and sweetened the sorrows of life now imparted its hallowing influences to the closing scene. He was enabled to leave the richest expressions of triumph to his surviving friends. Soon after his severe attack on April 11, while being moved from the lounge to the bed, he asked, "Why? It is as near heaven here as anywhere. I never shall forget the night William Walker's wife died; it seemed like both worlds were near together." The next day he said, "My suffering time will soon be over. I want to leave as clear a sheet behind me as I can. I think I shall get home. Yes, going home, bless the Lord!" The next day he left his bed to join his family and friends in prayer and thanksgiving. He remarked, "If I have a correct view of things, as far as I know all is well." He appeared to think his end was near, called his wife, and inquired for his only son, saying, "The end will come. I see the shadow of death passing over me; it will be right; all is well; not my will but thine be done." He then exclaimed, "Trying hour! trying moment! what have I to fear or dread! My heavenly Father will do all things well." On the 18th, lifting up his hands, he said, "I commit my soul and body and family and Church into the hands of my heavenly Father." In the evening he called for the Bible, that he might lead in family prayer. An attempt was made to dissuade him, but he was intent. He kneeled down and prayed audibly for his family, Church, and country. This was the last prayer with which he blessed his household. His disease progressed, his mind wandered occasionally as to the things of earth, but was clear and fixed upon things above, until half past five o'clock A. M. on April 21 the weary wheels of life stood still, and he passed away to his rest in heaven. Our Brother Wesley Webster was with him much of the time during his severe illness of ten days, and preached a sermon on the occasion of his death from the appropriate text Psa. xxxvii, 37, "Mark the perfect man, and behold the upright, for the end of that man is peace."

2. Rev. Enoch G. West was born in Clermont County, Ohio, November 25, 1825. His parents, George and Nancy West, were identified with the pioneer Methodists of Ohio. They labored faithfully for the early conversion of their children. Enoch from his infancy was the special object of their prayers, and from his childhood the subject of deep religious impressions. At the age of fourteen he was fully convinced of his lost condition as a sinner, and through the special instrumentality of his pious mother was powerfully converted to God. The evidence of his acceptance was clear and indubitable. He immediately united with the Methodist Episcopal Church under the ministry of Rev. John Miley. Such was his devotion to God and consistency of character that he was appointed to lead a class at the age of eighteen years. About this time he was impressed by the Holy Spirit that it was his duty to preach the Gospel of Christ. Conscious of his unfitness for the work, and the fearful responsibilities of the sacred office, he resisted the heavenly call. This brought upon him the most fearful mental suffering. He at length disclosed to the writer his state of mind, and was immediately licensed to exhort. He at once commenced his career of usefulness. He was licensed to preach in 1847 by Rev. Dr. Marley, and in 1848 was recommended to the Ohio Annual Conference, and was cordially received on trial, and appointed to Milford Circuit, with Rev. Asa B. Stroud as his colleague. He entered upon his labors with a burning zeal for the salvation of souls. A gracious revival of religion soon followed, and hundreds of souls were converted and added to the Church. During this year he received a clear witness of the blessing of "perfect love," which he ever after denominated his "pentecost." After receiving this baptism of the spirit a peculiar unction attended his ministrations. Those who heard him felt that he was a man of God. He was next appointed to Goshen Circuit, with Rev. J. B. Ellsworth as his colleague. Here the same success attended his labors. At the close of this year he was received into full connection and ordained deacon by Bishop Janes. In 1852 he was ordained elder by Bishop Simpson. This year he was happily united in marriage with Miss Angeline Rice, whose congenial spirit and earnest piety enhanced his usefulness and encouraged him in his arduous labors. He was successively appointed to the following charges: New Richmond, East Cincinnati Mission, South Charleston, Yellow Springs, Lebanon, Wayne-street, Piqua, Finley Chapel, Cincinnati, and Middletown. In all these fields of labor he made full proof of his ministry, and hundreds through his instrumentality were brought to Christ. A present and a full salvation was the burden of his sermons. His untiring zeal and energy in the work assigned him soon impaired his constitution, and for years before he retired from the effective ranks he suffered much, but suffered in silence. About the middle of his second year in Middletown his health entirely failed. He left his charge and removed to Urbana, Ohio, to suffer and to die; pulmonary consumption, that insidious and fatal disease, was rapidly doing its work. To leave forever the work he loved so well was the greatest trial of his life, but faith triumphed in this dark hour, and he cheerfully committed all to God. Though disabled he was not idle, but went about "doing good." His wasted form could always be seen wherever there was work for him to do. In the room of affliction and death, the class-room and love-feast, on the street, and in the social circle, he preached "Jesus and the cross." He was a true patriot, ever ready to stand up for his country in the hour of her peril. He prayed fervently that he might live to see the slave power annihilated and the rebellion crushed. His prayers were granted. He lived till peace was restored to our stricken land. He earnestly desired to see his two eldest children brought into the fold of Christ before he passed away; this prayer was also granted. The only remaining solicitude was for a little afflicted daughter, who had long been his companion in suffering, but God took her to himself. He was now ready to depart and be with Christ. He made all needful preparations for his departure with as much cheerfulness as he would prepare for a journey to the home of his childhood. He now talked with rapture of his home in heaven. He said a few days before his death to one of his brethren, "My next conference will be in heaven with Mitchell and Walker, and others of my brethren who have gone before me." On May 6 he suddenly became worse. He said to his friends, "My time has come." As death approached his mind was peaceful and serene. In the death struggle he said, "It is very stormy on this side of the river, but all is calm and bright beyond." When asked by Rev. W. L. Hypes, "Do you still lean on Jesus?" he answered, "Yes, strongly." His last words were, "This is death. I can scarcely realize that I am so near heaven. Glory to God! Come, Lord Jesus, come quickly." On May 8, 1865, this sainted man of God passed away so gently that his friends scarcely realized that he was gone. Brother West possessed a good mind of more than ordinary vigor. He was an educated man, though not a classical scholar. His mind was well stored with knowledge. He was a close student, the Bible was his text-book, and the standard works of Methodism the objects of his most careful study. His sermons were doctrinal, practical, and experimental, appealing both to the understanding and the heart. A present free and full salvation were his favorite topics in the pulpit. He was a man of deep and uniform piety. A holy influence always attended him. In person he was noble and dignified; but his sweet spirit and loving heart made him the charm of every circle in which he moved. In his principles he was bold, firm, and uncompromising, but at the same time he was mild and forbearing. He was, in a word, "a good man, full of faith and the Holy Ghost," and through his instrumentality hundreds were added to the Lord. Such was the influence which he exerted during his two years of suffering in Urbana that we may safely affirm that they were the most successful of his ministerial life. Here his memory will long be cherished by this community, and indeed by all who knew him, as a most sacred legacy. "He being dead, yet speaketh."

QUEST. 12. Who have Died this year?

Francis L. West.

Rev. FRANCIS L. WEST died on the morning of January 5, 1865, in hospital No. 1 at Chattanooga, Tenn. He was born March 7, 1840, in the village of Rush, Monroe County, N. Y. Subsequently his parents removed to Michigan, and settled at Mount Clemens. Here in his youth he experienced religion and united with the Methodist Episcopal Church, of which his parents were also members. In the fall of 1859 he was licensed to exhort, and soon after was employed by the presiding elder of Romeo District as a supply on the Lathropville Circuit. This circuit was most of it new, and covering a large extent of territory; yet Brother West traveled it on foot, as he also did subsequent ones, faithfully filling his appointments, preaching with acceptability and success. In the fall of 1860 he was employed as supply and junior preacher on the Almont Circuit, from which he was recommended to the Detroit Annual Conference and received on trial in the fall of 1861. He was appointed at this session of the conference as junior preacher on the Forest Circuit. In the fall of 1862 he was appointed to the Sand Beach Circuit, and in 1863 he was received into full connection in the Conference, ordained deacon, and reappointed to the same work. In the fall of 1864 he was appointed to the Davisville Circuit, where, after one Sabbath's labor, he was notified that he was drafted into the United States' service, and required to report at Flint on October 12. He reported, was accepted, and forwarded to the Twenty-third Michigan Infantry in Tennessee. He was shot by guerrillas while in the discharge of his duty as a soldier, robbed, and left to die. He was removed to the hospital, where he died the next morning. Brother West was a young man of great promise from the qualities of mind and heart which he possessed. He had such mental culture, habits of study, social qualities, firmness of purpose, promptness of action, with deep and earnest piety, as would have secured him success and made him eminently useful in the work of the ministry. As a preacher he was not impulsive, but intensely in earnest. He impressed the hearer that what he said was from the firm convictions of the intellect and soul. Upon the charge where he traveled he secured to himself the friendship and esteem of the best and most cultivated minds. The death of such a young man is a loss to the Church and the world; but Brother West, young as he was, lived long enough to leave an example of Christian integrity, of conscientiousness, adherence to a sense of duty, and of true patriotism. He regarded the call of his country for his services in its defense as a call to duty, and with Christian cheerfulness he obeyed the call, refusing to allow others to voluntarily take his place. Early and violently taken from us, he has entered into rest.

W. Engel.

WILLIAM ENGEL was born August 17, 1819, in Ebingen, Kingdom of Wurtemberg. He was educated for mercantile life, and was married February 2, 1843. In the year 1847 he immigrated with his family and settled at Cincinnati. Two years later a beloved child died, and this dispensation, improved by Rev. John Hoppen of the Everett-street German Church, who visited the parents, was sanctified to the conversion of the parents. Soon after they moved to Chillicothe, and Brother Engel was licensed to preach. In the year 1851 he was received on trial in the Ohio Conference. His first field of labor was Ann Arbor, in Michigan, but after a few months of successful labor he was sent by the bishop to Alleghany City to found a new mission. The reason of his change of appointment was his extraordinary missionary zeal and gifts. In 1853 he was appointed to Buckeye-street Church, Cincinnati; in 1854-55 to Chillicothe; in 1856-57 to Covington. In 1858 he ceased to be an effective traveling preacher on account of bronchitis, but served as a colporteur of the Cincinnati Bible Society until 1861, when he was appointed to assist Dr. Nast in his editorial labors. His beloved wife, after a long and painful disease, died in December, 1861, and left him to take care of four children. January 1, 1863, he was married to his second wife, Sarah Bohl.

Brother Engel had the decisive mark of the true Christian, a complete and uninterrupted victory over sin. His progress in the divine life was steady and uninterrupted. With rare conscientiousness he cultivated every talent God had given him, took advantage of every opportunity to do good, practiced daily self-denial, and attended to every duty at the right time with the utmost carefulness. His diligence was indefatigable. He was also characterized by an immovable patience and resignation in severe trials. Always ready to assist any one, his sound judgment was highly esteemed by all who needed advice. He was a good theologian and superior preacher. He was for years in the habit of writing his sermons in full, but never used notes in the pulpit.

After a painful typhoid fever of several days, he breathed his last March 21, 1865. During his sufferings he was a pattern of patience, and every expression of his countenance showed most impressively that with him all was well. Five of his children live to deplore his loss. Three went before him.

QUEST. 12. Who have Died this year?

J. E. M'Reynolds, A. Fellows—2.

1. Rev. JAMES E. M'REYNOLDS was born in Posey County, Indiana, May 24, 1837. He was converted January 1, 1855, and united with the Church, November, 1857. He was licensed to exhort September, 1858. He was employed by the presiding elder to fill a vacancy on the Taylorsville Circuit, February, 1859, and licensed to preach in May following. He was admitted on trial in the Indiana Conference, and appointed to West Franklin Circuit in the fall, where his labors were much blessed. He was appointed in 1860 to Memphis Circuit. In the fall of 1861 he was admitted into full connection, and ordained Deacon by Bishop Simpson, and returned to Memphis Circuit, where he labored until August, 1862, when he resigned his charge and enlisted in the service of his country, and was commissioned as Lieutenant in the Seventeenth Regiment Indiana Volunteers. He was taken prisoner at Mumfordsville, and from exposure and hardship his health gave way rapidly, producing pulmonary consumption, and finding himself no longer able for military duty, he offered his resignation December 31, 1862, which was accepted, and he returned home hoping to regain his health, but it was too far gone. It continued slowly but surely to decline until March 30, when his companion was removed by death, and he was left alone until May 3, when he was released from suffering, in the twenty-seventh year of his age and sixth of his ministry, near Shoals, Indiana.

May it not be said of him that he was "a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief?" For, besides much bodily affliction during the six years of his ministry, he was three times bereft of his companion, and called to follow five of his children to the grave. Brother M'Reynolds was truly a Christian gentleman, possessing manly virtues and amiable traits of character. He was kind and candid, modest and dignified, reserved and companionable. He possessed a well balanced mind, and had acquired by his own industry a fair English education for one of his age. He was much beloved as a pastor. His presiding elder visited him a few days before his death, and although he found him very weak and suffering much, yet he was calm, and wholly resigned to the will of God. He conversed freely of his trials, sufferings, bereavements, and of his future prospects. He furnished a sketch of his life and labors, and gave full instructions with regard to his funeral services. He said that he felt that his work was done and approved of God. He then expressed in the strongest terms his love for the members of this Conference, and requested his presiding elder to bear his last greetings to his brethren in the ministry. He then spoke of the joyful meeting of all the ministers in heaven; his presiding elder then sung and prayed with him, during which time he was wonderfully blessed. It appeared as though we were near the very gate of the "city" of rest. He shouted and praised God with all his strength and voice, and continued in this happy frame of mind until May 3, at 10 o'clock A. M., when the wheels of life suddenly stood still, and his happy spirit entered the itinerants' home in heaven. He leaves one child, aged about seven months.

2. Rev. Albion Fellows, A. M., of the Indiana Conference, and late pastor of the Locust-street Methodist Episcopal Church, Evansville, Indiana, was born in Sandwich, Carroll County, N. H., September 16, 1827. When seven years old his father removed to Dixon, Illinois. In February, 1846, he was converted, and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church. In 1847 he entered Rock River Seminary, and continuing to prosecute his studies, he was graduated at the Asbury University in 1854. He was tutor in the University in his junior and senior years. He was united in marriage to Miss Mary Erskine, of Evansville, in July, 1854, and in the fall of the same year was admitted into the Northwest Indiana Conference, and was stationed at Valparaiso. In 1855–6 he was at Westville. In 1857–8 he was Professor of Greek in Fort Wayne College, part of the time acting as pastor of the Berry-street Methodist Episcopal Church in that city, during which time there was a gracious revival of religion. In 1858–59 he was in charge of Sumption Prairie. In 1859–60 he was at Boonville, (Indiana Conference.) In 1860–62 at Mount Vernon. In 1862–63 he was presiding elder of the Evansville district; and from 1863 to March 2, 1865, was pastor of the Locust-street Methodist Episcopal Church, Evansville, Indiana. Here his labors were terminated. He was in his thirty-eighth year. He died March 2, at noon—at noon of day, at noon of life. He died at his post on the field of battle, in the midst of a great and pressing work, which it was his hope and ambition to complete—a new church edifice—perhaps the finest structure in the West. He knew his life was precarious, and yet after all the messenger did not come just when and as he was expecting it. He was not perhaps aware that death was so near, when he awoke to the fact that his feet were already in the waters of the Jordan. He was then almost beyond the point of utterance, but finding his departure at hand, gathered up his remaining strength, embraced his companion, uttered as significantly as possible his farewell benediction, "God bless you all," and reclined upon his pillow, asleep in Christ. It is said that the dying swan sings its own funeral requiem. And is this not the case sometimes with the human spirit? On the evening that he lay down upon his couch of sickness, which was soon to be the couch of death, he sung with much feeling a part of "Mozart's Christian Requiem," as if his spirit was presaging its nearness and speedy entrance into the spirit-world.

QUEST. 12. Who have Died this year?

James Havens, W. G. Ramsdell, Ephraim Wright—3.

1. Rev. JAMES HAVENS was born in Mason County, Ky., December 25, 1793. The recollection that his birthday was the same as the world's Redeemer was to him in childhood a source of pride and pleasure, and in boyhood awakened in his mind serious trains of thought. He united with the Church under the ministry of the Rev. James B. Finley, and was converted to God at a camp-meeting on Eagle Creek, in the state of Ohio, when in his sixteenth year. As soon as he had found the Saviour he began to labor immediately with mourners, and was successful in pointing them to the Saviour. His mental struggles on the subject of his call to the ministry were severe, but yielding to his convictions of duty, he received license to preach in his eighteenth year at the hands of the Rev. John Sale, in the state of Kentucky. Although several years elapsed before he joined the traveling connection, yet he was during the most of that time actively engaged in preaching the gospel, and traveled two or three years under the direction of a presiding elder. With a young and growing family dependent upon him for support, without wealth, and with the merest rudiments of an English education, it required the clearest convictions of duty and the earnest solicitations of his older brethren in the ministry to induce him to offer himself to the Church as a traveling preacher. But with a strength of will and an energy amounting to moral heroism, he did so devote himself to the work of the ministry as to become in a few years a workman that needed not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth. Father Havens entered the traveling connection in the Ohio Conference at its session in the Chillicothe, August 8, 1820. He traveled successively Salt Creek, Straight Creek, Brush Creek, and Sciota Circuits in the Ohio Conference. In 1824 he removed his family to Indiana, and settled them in the woods on a tract of land that has since proved to be an excellent farm near the present town of Rushville, the seat of justice for Rush County, near which his family has resided for the most of the time ever since; for while Father Havens was truly itinerant his family remained local with the exception of a few years. In 1824 he traveled Connersville Circuit; 1825 and 1826, Whitewater; 1827 and 1828, Rushville; 1829, Whitewater; 1830 and 1831, sustained a superannuated relation. In 1823 he was appointed presiding elder of Madison District, and as presiding elder he traveled Madison, Indianapolis, Centerville, Connersville, and Greensburgh Districts, serving two terms with an interval of a few years between them on Indianapolis District. And although he labored a few years as a stationed preacher, and one year as agent for the Preachers' Aid Society of his conference, and in all of these relations displayed the same energy of character, yet it was as presiding elder that he exerted the most influence and perhaps appeared to the best advantage. And his efficiency in that office is attested by the length of time the bishop continued him in that relation. It is not to be inferred from Father Havens's success in the work of the ministry, and in the acquisition of admitted ministerial qualifications, that most men, or indeed that many men would have succeeded under similar difficulties, or that the Church would be justified in lowering the standard of literary qualification as a prerequisite to entering upon the work of the Christian ministry. Possessing a robust constitution and a vigorous intellect, he taxed them both to their utmost. He directed his studies first to such subjects as related more directly to his work as a minister, and in a few years he became familiar with most of the standard works on theology, and was recognized by the ministry of his own and sister Churches as an able expounder of the doctrines of the Bible. After having spent twelve years in traveling large circuits he was appointed to the office of presiding elder. Then more than now was the office of presiding elder one of popular influence. Circuits were large, quarterly meetings were comparatively few and far between, and their sessions the rallying points for the forces of Methodism far and near. The Saturday morning's services were expected to put the Church in good working order. The business of the quarterly conference dispatched in the afternoon, Saturday night was regarded as the crisis in the meeting. An awakening sermon, followed by an earnest exhortation and a prayer meeting for mourners, in which it was expected that souls would be converted, closed the labors of the first day. A love-feast on Sabbath morning with closed doors served as a thermometer to determine the spiritual temperature of the Church, and presented an opportunity to gather up the fruits of the first day's labors. At 11 o'clock the crowd assembled to hear the presiding elder, who was expected to preach an elaborate sermon from one to two hours in length. On such occasions Father Havens was not unfrequently a real son of thunder. Sinners would fall like men slain in battle, and the cry of mercy mingle with the shouts of the pious, until the stentorian voice of the preacher would be nearly drowned. None knew better than he how to guide the storm of excitement which his own impassioned eloquence had produced, accompanied by the influence of the Holy Spirit. During the period of Father Havens's presiding eldership, camp-meetings were at the height of their popularity in the West. And not unfrequently during the latter part of summer would the presiding elder spend from six to eight weeks in holding his round of camp-meetings. Laws for the protection of religious assemblies were less stringent then than now, and their authority much less respected. The good order of the meeting, and in some instances the safety of the tent-holders, depended on the courage and skill of the presiding elder. Father Havens was not long in making his power felt and his authority respected by the turbulent masses which thronged the camp-grounds from Saturday night until Monday morning. Few men ever possessed a quicker insight into human character, or a greater ability to read men at first sight. He judged almost unerringly of the materials he had to control. And sometimes by appeals to their sense of honor, their patriotism or their parentage, would he place men of desperate character upon their good behavior, and secure their efficient co-operation in the maintenance of good order. But if severe measures had to be resorted to, his physical strength and personal courage were always adequate to the emergency. And many a thrilling scene of cool daring and personal prowess marked his management of rowdies at camp-meeting. His presence on the camp-ground was a terror to evil doers. They felt that his sagacity was more than a match for their cunning, and his courage was unquestioned by the boldest. Stern and inflexible in the execution of his purpose and in the administration of discipline, superficial observers regarded him as a harsh man. Yet beneath that rough exterior was concealed a nature as gentle as a woman's, and a heart as tender and susceptible as childhood. Although the want of early and systematic education occasionally revealed itself in his public ministrations in the violation of the rules of syntax, yet was his style always vigorous and his words well chosen. And if an acquaintance with the general and current literature of the times, an earnest and protracted study of theology, and a general knowledge of the sciences of law and medicine, give a man a claim to consideration for learning and general intelligence, then was Father Havens entitled to such consideration. His bold and vigorous style of preaching was always appreciated by the leading members of the bar in Indiana. And few men were held in higher esteem by the lawyers within the circle of his acquaintance. Father Havens was a delegate to several General Conferences, and always made himself felt as an earnest, true friend of the Church. For several years preceding his death Father Havens sustained a superannuated relation; but he continued to spend the full measure of his strength in ministerial labors. He was with us in our last conference, but in feeble health. He went home to rest a day and hoped to return, but that hope was disappointed. His voice is no longer heard in our councils. His manly form is no longer seen in our assemblies. He went home from our last conference to die. His last public act was to be taken to the polls and vote the Union ticket. After he had deposited his vote he said to the neighbors that gathered round his carriage, "Gentlemen, I have often risked my life in the service of my Master, to-day I risk it in the service of my country. God first, and my country next." He closed his earthly career in November, 1864, having been engaged in the work of the ministry over fifty years. He closed his long and eventful life in Christian peace and holy triumph.

2. Rev. William G. Ramsdell was born in Marion County, Indiana, June 16, 1837. He made a profession of religion, and united with the Methodist Episcopal Church, within the bounds of Greenwood Circuit, in 1854. He was licensed to preach July 21, 1855, and recommended for admission into the traveling connection. He was admitted on trial in the Southeastern Indiana Conference and appointed to Burlington Circuit, in Rush County.

Although he entered the ministry at the age of eighteen, and a married man, he was not long in taking rank among the best preachers in the conference.

Brother Ramsdell possessed a sound understanding, a clear analytical mind, and a remarkably matured judgment for one of his years. He was diligent in the improvement of his time, an earnest worker, and a close student. He read the best authors on science, in general literature, and in theology, and he mastered the subjects upon which he read. Thoroughness was a leading trait in his character. His piety was thorough. He was not boisterous, but earnest. His convictions were deep, and he always respected them, and hence his faith was not easily shaken. His father died when he was but four years old, and his religious training devolved upon his mother, who was a worthy member of the Baptist Church. As soon as young Ramsdell had made a profession of religion, he erected the family altar in his mother's house, and maintained family worship while he remained at home.

As a preacher his sermons were expository and practical. He aimed to be useful rather than showy. There was a freshness about his sermons, which showed that he lit the sanctuary with beaten oil, and did not offer to God that which cost him nothing. He grew steadily in the regards of his brethren in the ministry, and in the esteem of the general public. Possessing a dignified, manly presence, a cultivated Christian deportment, and an earnest religious spirit, he found ready access to the hearts of the people, and was greatly beloved by the people of his respective charges.

The ways of God are mysterious. Brother Ramsdell lost his wife, a most estimable Christian lady, the spring preceding his own death, leaving four little children, who by the death of their father are rendered truly orphans. But "he who tempers the winds to the shorn lambs" has provided shelter for the desolate little ones: three of them in families of members of his late charge, where they will be properly cared for and carefully raised, and the youngest is in the care of its aunt, who had charge of it since the death of its mother. Brother Ramsdell was stationed two years in Aurora immediately preceding his appointment to Lawrenceburgh. During his second year at Aurora he was attacked with hemorrhage of the lungs, and was unable to preach for some time. His official board kindly released him from the pulpit, but continued him in charge of the Church until his health seemed restored.

At the ensuing Conference he was stationed at Lawrenceburgh, and though his health was evidently seriously impaired, he entered hopefully and earnestly upon his work, and was soon fully installed, not only in the affections of his Church, but of the community in general. He preached his last sermon in August, 1864, on the Sabbath which the President had designated as a day of thanksgiving and prayer on behalf of the nation. He preached a very impressive sermon to his own Church in the morning, and again in the afternoon in the grove to a union meeting of all the Churches in the place. The effort was too much for his enfeebled lungs. A slight hemorrhage ensued. His strength would rally and then decline. He was cheerful and hopeful, but his friends feared that his work was done. He was unable to attend the last session of his conference; but his official board, with a delicacy of feeling and a magnanimity worthy of all praise, asked his reappointment, although they had no hope of his being able to work. They had his pulpit supplied and continued his salary up to his death.

A day or two before his death he sent for two of his stewards, told them he was liable to die at any moment, explained to them his pecuniary circumstances, what disposition he wished to make of his property, and made his will. He then alluded to his motherless children, and stated that their condition had rested with great weight on his mind. He had been anxious that they should be kept together, but that seemed impossible. His wife's sister would take the babe and raise it; that met his wishes. But what was to become of the others? If Mrs. Omer Tousey would take one of them, Mrs. L. B. Lewis another, and Mrs. Edward Moore the other, it would be what he desired. God had already put it into the hearts of these Christian women to do just what he desired. As soon as he learned that he said "now a great weight is off my mind." He then gave directions about his funeral, how he should be buried, and who should preach his funeral sermon; wishing to be buried by the Church, and not by any of the benevolent orders. The afternoon before his death he said to one of his brethren, quoting the language of Payson, "Is this death? If this be death it is sweet to die." "I have not come to that experience yet, but I have much confidence in the fidelity of God, and in the constancy of my Saviour, that I have faith I shall." He added, "I was thinking yesterday, if I get safely over, there will be a pleasant little company of us, Father Havens, Brother Long, and Brother Collins;" all of whom had but recently died. A little later he added, "I shall want to see my Saviour first, my wife next." Thus he continued to converse with his brethren until within a few moments of his death, when he adjusted his head upon his pillow, as if to rest, and without a struggle or a groan his happy spirit took its flight to the paradise of God December 30, 1864, where he has beheld his Saviour and his companion who had preceded him but a few months; and he has greeted his fellow-laborers from his own conference who had recently preceded him, (Becker, Long, Collins, Lockwood, Havens, Ramsdell.) A pleasant little company truly. Noble men! They have fought the fight, won the race, and are crowned at last.

3. Rev. Ephraim Wright was born in Greene County, Pennsylvania, February 26, 1818. Five years later his parents removed to Indiana. He was converted in 1835 in his seventeenth year, married in 1840, licensed to preach in 1843, and entered the Southeast Indiana Conference on trial in 1853. His fields of labor were successively St. Louis Circuit, Palestine, Seymour, Paris, and Palestine again. His failing health requiring rest, he was superannuated for one year; after which he was appointed to Milroy, Boston, Burlington, and Columbia Circuits. On the last named work his health entirely failed, and after a lingering and painful illness he died June 26, 1865. His departure was triumphant and glorious. He was a good man, faithful in the discharge of all his duties, and now doubtless rests with the blessed in heaven.

Rev. A. D. M'COOL was born January 13, 1827, in the state of Ohio. He was married to Miss Jane T. Allen, in Warren County, Ill., in October, 1847. In 1851 he was converted and united with the Methodist Episcopal Church. He was admitted to the Rock River Conference in 1853, and at the division of said conference, in 1856, he remained in the bounds of what was then called the Peoria, now the Central Illinois Conference, and was appointed to the following charges, namely: to Geneseo in 1856, Monmouth in 1857-58, Galva in 1859, Geneseo in 1860, Macomb in 1861, Lewiston in 1862, Prairie City in 1863. In this last charge he continued to labor until in the month of May, 1864, when he was attacked with hemorrhage of the lungs, and in a short time he was compelled to give up his charge. He continued to fail until April 14, 1865, when he closed his eyes on earth to open them in heaven.

Brother M'Cool was an able and faithful minister of the Gospel. He was capable of filling any charge in our conference with honor to himself and profit to the Church of God. His sufferings during his affliction were intense, but Christ was with him. On one occasion we stood by his side as he passed down to the river of death, and its dark, turbid waters laved his feet; and, after its maddening, surging waves had receded, he exclaimed, in holy triumph,

"There we shall see his face,
And never, never sin;
There, from the rivers of his grace,
Drink endless pleasures in."

His end was peace. His remains were interred in the cemetery at Galesburgh, Ill. He left a beloved wife and two little boys, but God will take care of them.

QUEST. 13. What is the Number of Church Members, etc.?

QUEST. 12. Who have Died this year?

N. S. Ohlstrom.

REV. NICHOLAS S. OHLSTROM. Owing to some unfortunate mistake, the obituary of Brother Ohlstrom was not presented at the conference session, and the present writer, who was instructed to furnish one for publication, has been unable to learn the material facts of his life. He labored extensively in connection with the Scandinavian mission work of the Minnesota Conference, enduring severe privations, and much hardship and toil, that he might preach the Gospel to his countrymen. Early in the war he enlisted a company of Swedish soldiers, and was chosen their captain, but was rejected by the mustering officer on account of defective sight. But he had an irrepressible desire for service in the Union army, and he finally entered it as a private. He died in hospital, but the writer is unable to state particulars. He was a man of decided ability, untiring energy, zealous, and faithful. His generous traits of character endeared him to all.

REV. HENRY WHARTON, in rank of service, if not age, was among our senior brethren. He joined the Ohio Conference in 1835, and with those who now form the class that is bearing our burdens of counsel and labor, at midday of life. The names of Alexander, and Carroll, and White, yet remain among those that were enrolled with his upon our list. His term of service was thus long enough to test his ability as a workman, and the spirit and worth of his labors, both to the Church and the world. Tried by these tests, we are not able, as we review his personal and official history, to see any other than cause of approval and satisfaction to those who labored with him, or shall live after him. His religious experience, before he entered the ministry, was such as to prepare him for permanent comfort in his own soul, and for greatest usefulness to others. His conversion was so clear as to permit him to challenge the world to his own interior life, and to thence declare, "I know whom I have believed." His joy was full, and of steady flow; and if it rose but seldom to a sudden and swelling river, it never lost either its ever-flowing current or grassy margin. It shared as little intermission as I have ever seen, so that he brought to every duty a spirit of joy that made it a delight. His prayers, and other religious service, evinced, too, the well-spring from which they flowed. In public prayer he seemed sometimes, in his holy transport, to be borne out into a "joy that was unspeakable, and full of glory." He was happily adapted, as this type of spiritual character would imply, to the labor of revival. Then his soul, amid long-continued and excessive labor, knew no languor, and enkindled the Church with its own fervent zeal. He was least successful, as he said to the writer, in the last circuits he filled; and yet even here he was not without these, and not a few, as the hire of his earnest ministry. He not only brought others to the fold, too, but he also cared tenderly for those already within it. As an under-shepherd his spirit was winning and gentle, and as a nurse cherisheth her children, so did he those over whom the Holy Ghost had made him overseer. Their salvation so demanded the labor of his heart and hands, that he would not be drawn aside from it toward any less or incidental object. He soon diffused this devoted and pacific spirit abroad; and even amid such variance as might have grown to strife, he bound both himself and them "in the unity of the Spirit and bonds of peace." His personal presence was manly and attractive. He was of medium stature, pleasant voice, and mild manners. He was beginning to show traces of age at the time of his death, in thinned hair, and in a less active bodily footstep and carriage. He had always been healthy, though not of a hardy habit of constitution; and had not his labors been excessive, he might have borne them without intermission. But he was superannuated one year in 1849, and three years between 1852 and 1855. He had served fourteen circuits and stations. He preferred our circuit work, as favoring both his health and success in winning souls. His record is on high, and among the ascended and shining ones his crown will not be starless. His last illness was brief, and soon foreshadowed its fatal end. His condition was that of total wreck and thorough prostration. The earthly house was not stricken in the successive strokes that broke its foundation and loosened its structure, but fell at once to the dust. His pulse was so weak, and all his vital energies so decayed, that he seemed a ready prey to death.

* Obituaries not received.

The manner of his death brought stupor upon his brain, and sealed his lips to those that longed to hear his last words. Though they bore up his departing spirit with their own prayer, there was no response of the dying father and husband. It was a silent shore from which the immortal voyager launched, but they were only ready to hear with a more eager ear the voice from the other shore, "saying, Write, Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord! Even so, saith the Spirit, for they rest from their labors, and their works do follow them."

W. C. Huggins.

REV. W. C. HUGGINS was admitted on trial in the Southern Illinois Conference at its session in 1854, since which time he has traveled regularly, except awhile that he was superannuated. He was a feeble man, and has thus early worn himself out in the work of the itinerancy. He was a faithful man, deeply pious, conscientious in all things, and would incur ill-will rather than do wrong or permit it to be done. Having, after strong convictions of duty, overcome his timidity and entered upon the work of a Methodist preacher, he ever devotedly labored to act in character as such, and "clothed with salvation as a garment," and with all his armor on, in the midst of a powerful revival he sickened and died; died happy in God his Saviour, saying when near death, "Tell my brethren 'I fell at my post.'" And we who knew him intimately would expect him to fall nowhere else but at his post. He died February 6, 1865, at Cottage Grove, Equality Circuit.

QUEST. 12. Who have Died this year?

A. Bussey.

Rev. AMOS BUSSEY was born in Trumbull County, Ohio, November 20, 1806. Under the labors of Rev. B. O. Plympton he embraced religion, and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church. In 1833 he was licensed as a local preacher and admitted on trial in the Erie Conference, and four years after he was transferred to the Indiana Conference. He occupied successively the following fields of labor: 1837–8, Greensburgh Circuit; 1839–40, Paris; 1841, Rising Sun; 1842–43, Madison; 1844–45, Vevay; 1846, Columbus; 1847–48, Paris; 1849, Lexington; 1850, Brownstown; 1851, Chariton; 1852, by division of conference, he was thrown into Southeastern Indiana Conference, and appointed to New Washington; 1853, Laurel Station; 1854–55, Millen Circuit. In 1856 he located from Southeastern Indiana, and was readmitted into the Iowa Conference and appointed to Bloomfield; in 1857, Monroe Circuit; 1858, Chariton Station; 1859, Knoxville. This was his last appointment. The next year he superannuated and removed to Oskaloosa, where he ended his days.

Brother Bussey was more than an average preacher, and universally loved where he labored. He was faithful to the discipline and doctrine of the Methodist Episcopal Church, never trying to mend our rules or lower the standard of Methodism. The Church was always safe in his hands. For twenty-two years of active itinerant service he was an earnest and zealous laborer in the field of his Master. In the language of one waiting on him, "he was a tried friend, prudent counselor, earnest Christian, and staunch Methodist." His disease was of such a character as to cause most extreme suffering. Sometimes during his extreme prostration it would seem impossible for him to live another minute, but his faith ever remained unwavering and his hope fixed within the vail. "Tell them," said he on one of these occasions, "tell them if I die I die in hope of heaven like any other poor sinner saved by grace." "O," said he just before his death, "I wish I could preach. I have such views of the plan of salvation, such visions of heaven, such peace and joy." "How grace triumphs! No mortal can know my suffering; but O grace, grace supports." "What a palace," said he at another time, "have I to live in!" His death was calm and serene, bidding each one of his family farewell, and breathed a prayer that they might meet him in heaven. He breathed his last January 18, 1865, aged fifty-eight years, one month, and twenty-eight days.

* Obituary not received.

1. Rev. Franklin D. Corwin was born in Jefferson, Chemung County, New York, October 9, 1838, and died at Richmond, M'Henry County, Illinois, June 24, 1865. His parents moved West when he was five years old, and he became a resident of Kane County, Illinois.

Brother Corwin was given a religious home training, which, together with a naturally amiable disposition, rendered him kind and affectionate to all. He was passionately fond of books from his earliest childhood, and always selected the most cultivated and valuable. He entered Rock River Seminary in 1857, with a view to the profession of law, but during the winter term of that year he found Christ Jesus in the pardon of his sins, and at once felt that he must study to declare not the human but the divine laws, and the love of Jesus to perishing sinners. After consulting with his parents, he determined at once to prepare for the ministry. He accordingly entered the Garrett Biblical Institute in 1859, and remained there about two years, when he was recommended to the Rock River Conference and received on trial. He was appointed first to Genoa Circuit; the following year to Malta; the next year to Lodi and Cortland; and the last to Richmond, where he labored for nearly six months with his usual energy and acceptability, when he was called from earthly labor to his eternal rest in Christ.

As a pastor, Brother Corwin was mild, social, and winning. As a preacher, he was careful in preparation, earnest in delivery, attractive in his illustrations, and convincing with his logic. His last public effort was the funeral sermon of the sainted Lincoln. He was an earnest worker. His whole soul was in his calling, and he often applied himself to it when he should have rested. Till within a few hours of his death, when he had become unconscious, it was not thought that the disease would prove fatal, therefore probably he did not say as much upon the subject of dying as he otherwise would have done; but he was ready when the messenger came, as his everyday life will testify. He was wont to say, "I am endeavoring to live so well that when I die they shall not ask, 'Did he die in peace,' but that my life shall answer all questions."

2. Rev. Milton Bourne was converted in early life, and united with the Methodist Episcopal Church, in the state of Vermont, within the bounds of the Troy Conference. His zeal and piety soon brought him to the notice of the Rev. John Clark, who was then engaged as superintendent of the Northwestern Indian Missions, and he was selected as a teacher. These missions were subsequently connected with the Illinois Conference, and he was admitted on trial, and leaving the missionary field among the Indians, he was appointed to a large circuit lying along the valley of the Kankakee. In due time he was elected and ordained deacon in the Rock River Conference, which was organized in 1840, being a division of the Illinois Conference. He continued a good and faithful minister, doing his work usefully, spending eight years of his ministry as presiding elder. In 1863 he was granted a superannuated relation, and moved with his family to Macomb, to make for himself and his dependent family as comfortable a home as possible on a few acres of wild land he owned near that locality. Being in feeble health, with little or no means at his control, and a family of several small children to provide for, no house to live in until it was built, no land to cultivate until it was subdued and inclosed, he was induced to work more than his feeble constitution would allow. An old chronic affliction, that he had endured for years, became greatly aggravated and confined him closely to his bed. After a few weeks of struggle with disease he sweetly fell asleep in Jesus, leaving for the comfort of his bereaved family and numerous friends the evidence of a faithful life, and a triumphant faith in death, to assure them that he is "forever with the Lord."

R. M. Evarts, E. J. Jeffers, De Bias Worthington—3.

1. Rev. Rinaldo M. Evarts was born in Salisbury, Conn., October 15, 1788, and departed this life July 20, 1865, in the seventy-seventh year of his age. His dust reposes in the cemetery in Leon, Cattaraugus County, N. Y., near where he had resided for several years past. He was powerfully awakened at a camp-meeting held at Rhinebeck, N. Y., in September, 1807, and soon after put himself under the watchcare of the Methodist Episcopal Church as a seeker. On the 20th of April ensuing he obtained the witness of his adoption, and on the 14th of November following received the great blessing of perfect love. He was licensed to preach May 31, 1812, having exercised his gifts as an exhorter for some time previous, and in July of the same year was admitted on trial in the Genesee Conference. He rendered effective service for about twenty-two years, occupying extensive and important fields of toil in Western and Northern New York, as well as in Canada and Central Pennsylvania, where herculean labor was required. Being gifted with a pleasant voice and easy elocution, and having carefully cultivated his intellectual powers, he became an able expositor of the sacred word, a workman that "needed not to be ashamed." He was of a meek and quiet spirit, modest and unassuming, evidently esteeming others better than himself. For many years our brother suffered great physical disability, yet he labored in various ways to promote the interests of the cause he so much loved. The sickness which terminated in the death of our brother was of only a few days' continuance, but very severe, yet patiently and cheerfully borne. He expressed himself as enjoying great peace and consolation, and would clap his hands in token of holy triumph, and at times a halo, an unearthly luster would lighten up his countenance. The day before his exit, while at family worship, he was so powerfully blessed that he rejoiced aloud. He continued in this happy frame of mind until the messenger came, and the last word he uttered was, "Glory!"

2. Rev. Elam J. Jeffers was born in Perry, Wyoming County, N. Y., in 1830, and died of typhoid fever, at Clarence, Erie County, N. Y., January 5, 1865, and was buried at Pike, Wyoming County, N. Y. His parents were Methodists, and were descended from a Methodist ancestry. He was converted in early life, but afterward became backslidden, though during that state of coldness his moral conduct was above reproach. He spent some years in teaching, married, was reclaimed, felt himself called of God to preach the Gospel, left all his business engagements, and went to the Biblical Institute at Evanston to prepare for the work to which he had resolved to devote his life. After spending some time in this institution he returned, and in the fall of 1860 was received on trial in the Genesee Annual Conference. He was stationed successively at Wethersfield, Marilla, and Clarence, in all of which places his faithful and laborious ministry commended him to the confidence and affection of the people. As a man, he was noble and generous; as a friend, devoted and true; as a husband and father, tenderly loving and tenderly loved; as a minister, zealous and successful. His last sickness probably resulted from exposure to disease while faithfully attending upon a friend who was ill. During his sickness his mind was generally clear, and he was much blessed of God. He lived well, labored faithfully, and died safely, much lamented by all who knew him.

3. Rev. D. B. Worthington died of typhoid fever at Olean, N. Y., September 25, 1865, aged thirty-five years, and was buried at Rushford, N. Y., near the home of his youth. He was converted when only twelve years old; but as little religious encouragement was given to children at that time, he made no public profession of religion until about seventeen years of age. From that time he availed himself of the benefits of several institutions of learning, supporting himself by teaching a part of the time, until twenty-five years of age, when he was received on trial in the Genesee Conference. His first appointment was Centerville, where he spent two pleasant and successful years teaching school a part of the time in connection with his ministerial duties. From Centerville he was sent to Attica, and from there, at the end of two years, to "North-street and Fillmore," in the city of Buffalo, where he formed the acquaintance of Miss Ruth A. Mattice, who afterward became his wife, and who now survives him, to mourn the untimely death of her companion, and to train their little girl for usefulness and heaven. His next appointment was Alexander, where he labored earnestly and successfully for two years. From Alexander he went to Olean, where, at the end of the third year, death closed his brief but laborious and efficient ministry.

As a preacher he possessed more than ordinary ability. His thoughts, though not profound, were always good and interesting, and presented in an attractive and impressive manner. As a pastor, he was faithful and greatly beloved. As a Christian, his experience was remarkably even, hopeful, and happy; never ecstatic, and never despondent. He never allowed himself to be disturbed by the annoyances, great or small, which have so much power over almost every variety of human character. As a consequence of this he was always happy, the rational periods of his last severe illness furnishing no exception, and from the exhaustless fund of his own cheerfulness constantly ministered to the happiness of others. The distribution of his geniality was so lavish, and so without respect of persons, that all who met him at once recognized him as a friend. Nor did this equanimity of character result from any want of appreciation. He scanned human character and conduct with the eye of a critic.

As a husband and father he was marked by the tenderest affection and the most self-denying solicitude for the happiness of those dependent upon him. In his death the world has lost an ornament and blessing, the Church a faithful, successful, and promising minister, and his family its most dearly loved earthly object.

QUEST. 12. Who have Died this year?

Henry Requa, George Chester, Romulus O. Kellogg—3.

1. Rev. HENRY REQUA was born in Croton, Westchester County, N. Y., January 6, 1820, and exchanged mortality for life at Little Rock, Ark., May 19, 1865. At the age of sixteen he was converted, and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church in the city of New York. Soon after this he felt a strong impulse to preach the gospel of the grace of God. His young heart, all aglow with love to God and zeal to do good, began to bemoan the sad state of the Pagan world, and as the missionary treasury was nearly depleted he determined to rush to their rescue at his own charges, and even went so far as to engage passage for this purpose for the Sandwich Islands, but was thwarted by the interference of friends.

In June, 1845, he removed to Wisconsin in a somewhat backslidden state, because, as he believed, he had, like Jonah, fled from the "presence of the Lord." He was soon reclaimed, licensed to preach in due time, and employed on Waupon Circuit by Rev. W. H. Sampson, then presiding elder of Fond du Lac District. At the session of the Rock River Conference held in Chicago in the year 1847 he was admitted on trial, and appointed to Brothertown Indian Mission. This lying within the bounds of the projected Wisconsin Conference, he became a member thereof at its formation in the following May. His subsequent appointments were as follows, namely: 1848, Lowell; 1849, Fond du Lac; 1850 to 1852 inclusive, Oneida Indian Mission; 1853, Agent of Indian Scholarship Fund; 1854-55, Janesville; 1856-57, Fond du Lac District; 1858, supernumerary; 1859, Oshkosh, two conference years in one and a half calendar years; 1860-61, Sheboygan Falls; 1862-63, Brandon; 1864, Ripon. At this place, as in others, he entered upon his work with an earnestness and devotion which betokened great success. But his labors were much interrupted by feeble health and family illness.

Brother Requa was a man of mark. Earnest, generous, somewhat impulsive, but firm, he took his positions readily, and adhered to them with commendable tenacity till convinced that he was wrong.

In March last he went as a delegate of the Christian Commission to Little Rock. Here that terrible disease by which so many strong men have fallen, the chronic diarrhea, seized him as its victim.

Chaplain Randall, an old friend and fellow-laborer, was with him in his last moments, following to the very brink of the river, and when its turbid waters began to lave his feet he said: "Brother Randall, tell the preachers of the Wisconsin Conference that Henry Requa died at his post. Take my ashes back to be interred among my brethren. I have labored with them for twenty years past, trying to preach Jesus. My present acceptance with God is a great comfort to me now. I am very unworthy, but I believe there are some in glory that call me father. In looking over my whole life I cannot see one act upon which I would risk the salvation of my soul; the best of them need washing in the blood of Jesus. I know I have a home in glory. How precious Jesus is. Jesus, I love thee for what thou hast done for me. I will praise thee forever." Here his thoughts seemed to revert to his home, and after offering a most fervent prayer for his dear family, with a tremulous voice he commenced to sing:

"O sing to me of heaven
When I'm about to die,
Sing songs of holy ecstacy,
To waft my soul on high."

His voice faltering, the chaplain took up the chorus:

"There'll be no sorrow there."

After this he exclaimed, "O Jesus, I can give up all but thee! All but Jesus—all but Jesus."

Thus, brethren, lived, labored, and died our fellow-laborer Henry Requa.

"O may we triumph so
When all our warfare's past,
And dying, find our latest foe
Under our feet at last."

2. Rev. George Chester was born May 2, 1829, in Grinshill, Shropshire, England. He was converted, when about sixteen years old, under the labors of Rev. James Caughey. He came to this country in 1849, and joined the Wisconsin Conference in 1851. His appointments were: Prairie La Crosse, one year; Willow River Mission, one year; Madison Circuit, two years; Waterloo, one year; Columbus, two years; Burnett, two years; Fox Lake, two years; Footville and Magnolia, one year; Evansville and Footville, two years; and Shopiere, one year. He died at Shopiere on Sabbath evening, September 24, 1865, after a sickness with typhoid fever of three weeks' duration. Brother Chester was a man of quiet, earnest temperament, true to his Master, to his brethren, and the Church. His sympathies were always with the suffering and oppressed. He was not a brilliant, but clear, faithful preacher. As a minister he was beloved by his people and respected by the community. As a husband he was tender and faithful, and as a father he was affectionate, governing his children well. He fell at his post with the armor on. The summons came suddenly, but found him ready. As the cold waters dashed upon him he clasped his hands, nearly palsied in death, and whispered, "Glory! glory! glory!" These were the last words uttered on earth, though by signs in his lucid moments he indicated his triumph. He left a feeble, excellent wife and two precious children to mourn his early exit. We commend them to the sympathies and prayers of the Church.

3. Rev. Romulus O. Kellogg was born in Goshen, Conn., January 6, 1827. His parents removed to Milwaukee, Wis., in 1836. He was two years and a half a student at Rock River Seminary, Mount Morris, Ill., where he was converted, and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church in 1843. He graduated at the Wesleyan University, Connecticut, in August, 1849, and for the next five years was Professor of Languages in Lawrence Institute at Appleton, when he was licensed to preach. He was married in December, 1855, and was teacher in the Evansville Seminary one year. During the five following years he was employed in secular business. In October, 1862, he was received into the Wisconsin Annual Conference, and was stationed at Fort Atkinson, to which place he was reappointed the second and third successive years. His death occurred January 27, 1865.

Brother Kellogg was a gentleman in manners, a Christian of the purest type, a faithful and affectionate friend, teacher, and pastor. By natural constitution and culture he was pre-eminently fitted to show advantageously the graces with which religion adorned him. Christian duty was the supreme law of his life, and diligence and fidelity the rule of its observance. His life was comparatively brief, and his death sudden and afflicting. His physical organization was fine, delicate, and active, and under the pressure of a most conscientious devotion to his profession it gave way, inducing nervous disease, mental aberration, and the sudden closing up of life. But the combinations of natural and Christian goodness, which made his stay with us so desirable, and his death and its mode so regretful, give absolute assurance that our loss is his eternal gain.

C. Story, H. Sanford, C. Wheeler, D. Ferris, E. H. Brown—5.

1. Rev. CYRUS STORY was born in Ipswich, Essex County, Mass., November 4, 1773. He subsequently removed to New Hampshire, and thence to Middlebury, Wyoming County, N. Y. For many years he labored as a local preacher in the Methodist Episcopal Church. In 1818 he was received into the old Genesee Conference as a probationer. He was stationed on the Sweden, Rushford, Victor, Clarence, Naples, Cohocton, Bloomfield, Pultneyville, Mendon, and Bath charges. About the year 1835 he located at Liberty, Steuben County, N. Y., where he resided seventeen years, then moved to Thurston in the same county, where he resided until his death. He was one of the pioneers of Methodism in Western New York, laboring with unwearied energy, and often with marked success, until a late period of his life. As he neared the close of his earthly career the infirmities of age gradually crept upon him. But although in a great degree unmindful of the world around him, he still dwelt upon the name of Him who had called him in early life from darkness to light. He died December 15, 1864, at the house of David Dickinson, his son-in-law, in Thurston. His disease was typhoid fever, accompanied by inflammation of the bowels.

Cyrus Story was a man of other days, and almost unknown to all except a few of the senior members of this conference. But though his great age and long-continued superannuation made him a stranger to his brethren, he was at all times a man eminently worthy of their regard. He was characterized by a primitive simplicity and zeal. His preaching was in demonstration of the Spirit and of power. We have had few abler men in the pulpit, and none perhaps of more incorruptible integrity and uniform devotion. The writer of this testifies to what he knows, for he was received into the Church by this venerable man, and was intimately acquainted with him while he was in the midst of those arduous labors which laid the foundation of Methodism in Western New York.

2. Rev. HIRAM SANFORD, of the East Genesee Conference, was born in Cheshire, Conn., February 27, 1805, and died in Phelps, May 16, 1865.

His parents moved to Homer, N. Y., when he was but a child. While quite young he was converted, and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, and at an early age, it appears, began to make preparation for the work of the ministry. He spent about eight years teaching and studying in Buffalo previous to entering upon his work. He joined the Genesee Conference at its session in Lockport, October 14, 1835. He belonged to the class of which Revs. J. G. Gulick, Wm. H. Goodwin, J. Dennis, R. Harrington, W. Cochran, and others, numbering in all seventeen, were members. His appointments were successively, Wellborough and Lawrenceville, Pa., Parma, Ridgway, Ellicottville, Olean, Victor and Perrington, Pittsford, Bloomfield, Bristol, Richmond, Jerusalem, Urbana, Avoca, Cohocton, Conesus, Castleton and Manchester, and in 1851 at Castleton and Orleans as supernumerary. He remained in this relation until 1854, when he was superannuated, and remained so until his death. I found him in Phelps in 1856, when I was appointed here the first time, a superannuated man, but making the best use of what little physical strength he had to support himself and family.

Brother Sandford was a very industrious man and a very modest man, faithful in every place he occupied, always using all his strength in his appropriate work. As a pastor he was diligent, and many in the day of reckoning will be found, no doubt, who have been won to Christ through his instrumentality. In his death there was a perfect triumph of grace. When I came to Phelps in the fall of 1863 I found him quite feeble; he returned from the session of Conference at Penn Yan sick, and went out but little afterward. For nearly eighteen months he was confined to his bed, and his sufferings during the greater portion of that time were very severe, and yet in the midst of them all there was never a murmur escaped his lips. I was with him often, and always found him trusting entirely in the blood of atonement to save to the uttermost. Brother Sanford's work is done, and he has entered upon his eternal rest.

3. Rev. CHANDLER WHEELER was born in Wardsborough, Windham County, Vt., August 25, 1807. At what time his parents came to Bath, Steuben County, N. Y., to reside, we are not informed, but it must have been while he was very young, for the years of his childhood were mostly spent there. He was converted at the age of twenty-one at a camp-meeting held near Avoca. He was received into the Church by the venerable Cyrus Story, and appointed class-leader, which office he held until June, 1831, when he was licensed to preach, and in the following July was admitted on trial in the then Genesee Conference. His first appointment was to Plattsburgh Circuit, in connection with the Rev. Asa Orcutt as preacher in charge. The following year he was placed on what was then known as the Jersey Circuit, where he was both popular and useful. At the close of this year he was married to Miss Catharine M'Clure, of whom, as she is still living, we will only say that she has nobly sustained the character of a Methodist preacher's wife. His next appointments were Lawrenceville, Newark, Clyde, Bath, Painted Post, etc., in all of which, to the end of his effective service, he was successful, and gave good satisfaction with a single exception. During twenty-seven years of effective service he had seventeen appointments. His last appointment was at Jasper, and during a revival there he labored somewhat beyond his strength, and his throat became so affected that he considered himself unfit for the full duties of another charge. He took a superannuated relation, and removed to Elgin, Ill., in the summer of 1858, and soon after engaged in the Bible cause, as agent of the Illinois Bible Society, for the city of Chicago. Here the last years of his useful and laborious life were spent.

He came home (to Elgin) during the first week in January, having just closed up the business of his agency for the last year. He was very much exhausted when he reached home, and upon the second Sabbath of the new year a disease made its appearance which proved to be typhoid pneumonia. To a brother minister who visited and prayed beside his dying bed, he expressed his firm trust in Christ, saying, "I always trust in my Saviour." Disease did its work soon, and after an illness of less than two weeks he died, sinking away quietly at last, without sufficient strength during the last few days to converse at all. His remains were taken for interment to Bath, N. Y., his early home, where his aged parents still reside. The funeral services were attended by many friends both in the ministry and laity.

Thus has passed away another of earth's nobility, a stainless man and an able minister. He did his work when it came to hand, and took his position on all great questions promptly, without waiting to see which side was to be in the majority. Right was with him supreme: duty before all things.

In most respects he was indeed a model minister, and his character deserves to be studied. For kindness of manner, for propriety of conduct, for the faculty of government, for true self-sacrifice, for diligence, for efficiency, and for an unswerving faith, he was an example which may safely be commended to all.

4. Rev. David Ferris, after a long and painful illness, died at Clifton Springs on the morning of May 27, aged a little more than sixty years. He was born in Decatur, Otsego County, February 6, 1805, and was converted in his native town when about twenty two years of age. He immediately united with the Methodist Episcopal Church, in the communion of which he remained until removed to the Church triumphant. At an early period of his Christian experience he was appointed a class-leader, and in that relation contributed largely to the instruction and edification of the Church. He officiated as local preacher for eight years, during which time his labors were abundant, and eminently blessed of God.

He joined the Genesee Conference in 1839, at the session of that body held in Lyons. He was recommended from Clarence and Williamsville, and upon the unanimous request of the quarterly conference of that charge was returned as their pastor, where his ministerial labors, under God, were eminently blessed to the edification of the Church. His next appointment was Dansville, with S. C. Church as his colleague. The next year he was at Groveland and Geneseo, and was favored with a most precious revival of religion, in which one hundred and sixty persons united with the Churches under his pastoral care. His fourth appointment was Groveland, where he was favored with some prosperity. The following year he served the Church at Livonia. Between thirty and forty were converted under his ministry on that charge. His next appointment was Bath, where he remained one year. The Church enjoyed prosperity, and thirty were converted. He served the Church at Bellona two years, and was favored with some revival. His next appointment was Clyde, where he remained two years. The year following he was at Rogersville, and enjoyed some prosperity. His next appointment was Dansville, where he returned a second time after an absence of ten years. At the following conference he was appointed to East Rush, where he remained one year. The next two years he was stationed at Waterloo, where he enjoyed considerable prosperity. The two years following he served the Church at Seneca Falls with acceptability and profit. His next appointment was Troy, Pennsylvania; here he was favored with a precious revival; nearly one hundred were converted and united with the Church. On this charge he also passed through a severe sickness of some five months' continuance, from the effects of which he never fully recovered. The following year he was stationed in Dresden; then one year in Clifton Springs; one year at Emory Chapel and Reed's Corners; one year in Junius; two years at the Ridge, and he had entered on the third year on that charge, and was prosecuting his work with fidelity, when his health failed, and he came home to the bosom of his family to die. He was connected with the conference nearly twenty-six years, during twenty-five of which he did effective service.

During his last sickness his sufferings were very extreme, but he endured them with Christian fortitude. Several times during his sickness he came near the land of rest, seemed just on the borders of the land, when his joy was unspeakable and full of glory.

Thus has passed away another minister of Christ. He has fallen in the strength of his days, in the maturity of his intellectual powers; he rests from his labors, and his works do follow him.

5. Rev. Eli H. Brown was born in Troupsburg, Steuben County, N. Y., in the year 1837, and died of pulmonary consumption, at Hammondsport, Steuben County, N. Y., March 21, 1865.

Brother Brown was blessed above many in the prayers and counsels of excellent Christian parents, through whose godly influence he was brought in his childhood to the Saviour's fold. In the year 1859 he was received on trial in the East Genesee Conference, and stationed at Big Flats. In 1860-61 he was stationed at Hammondsport. During his second year at this place his disease appeared in frequent attacks of hemorrhage from the lungs, followed by great physical prostration. At the Conference of 1862 he reluctantly consented to take a superanuated relation, and remained in that relation till his death. While thus laid aside from the work he loved so well he was elected to the office of School Commissioner in his Assembly District, and performed the duties of that position with great acceptability. It was while actively engaged in this honorable and useful labor that he was finally summoned to his rest and reward.

Brother Brown was an earnest man, full of the Holy Ghost and of faith; and though he went early to heaven, yet he left many witnesses to testify of his success in winning souls to Christ. "By these, he being dead, yet speaketh." In his last days the gospel he had preached to others was his own abounding support and comfort. Seldom has a Christian's death been more triumphant than his. His wife and mother stood by his bed in the last moments, and while conversing with them his eyes, already dimmed in death, suddenly shone with unearthly light, and in a voice full and strong he exclaimed,

"Bright angels are from glory come;
They're round my bed, they're in my room;
They wait, they wait, they wait,
To waft my spirit home."

And while these precious words were still sounding in their ears he went up with his escort to the skies.

"Servant of God, well done;
Thy glorious warfare's past;
The battle's fought, the victory won,
And thou art crowned at last."

Elijah Grissem.

Rev. Elijah Grissem was born in Centreville, Queen Anne County, Md., in the year 1802. Born a slave, he was deprived of the advantages of an early education or religious culture; but being blessed with a pious mother, he was, by her instrumentality and her godly example, at the age of eleven years, brought to the saving knowledge of Christ, and attached himself to the Methodist Episcopal Church in his native town. About the year 1827 he removed to Baltimore, and joined Sharp-street Church, where a short time after he was licensed to preach. In the year 1829 he was joined in marriage to Mrs. Mary Armstrong, an excellent Christian lady, who survives him.

In the year 1846 Brother Grissem removed to Boston, Mass., where he commenced his active ministerial labor as preacher in charge of Revere-street Methodist Episcopal Church, within the bounds of the New England Conference, where he remained (with the exception of about two years spent in Canada) actively engaged in preaching the unsearchable riches of the Gospel of Christ until March, 1864, when he was transferred to Baltimore, and entrusted with the charge of Dallas-street Church, then connected with the East Baltimore Conference. He remained in this charge until October of the same year, when the Washington Annual Conference was organized, he being one of the four who constituted this body. He was returned to Dallas-street station, where he died August 13, 1865. He has fallen from our midst in the strength of his days, but his unsullied Christian character still remains an imperishable monument to inspire us who survive him with increased diligence in the salvation of souls.

Brother Grissem, in all the relations of life, gave evidence of a Christian perfection that enabled him to say of a truth, "For me to live is Christ, but to die is gain." He has been transferred from the Church militant to the Church triumphant; and while we offer this small memento of love to his memory, let us pray that the God of love and mercy may sustain the bereaved widow in her affliction and bring her and us at last to that pleasant land where sickness and sorrow, pain and death, are felt and feared no more.

The following obituary came too late to be inserted in its proper place:

3. Rev. Robert Daniel Chambers, A. M., was born in Martinsburgh, Berkeley County, Va., January 4, 1823, and died in Carlisle, Cumberland County, Pa., September 8, 1864.

He began his studies under the care of Rev. Mr. Love, the Presbyterian clergyman of the town; and it was intended that he should enter the Sophomore class of Dickinson College, but his father's means were too limited, and an appointment to the military academy at West Point was secured for him. He made ready for starting, but a friend of the family, Colonel E. P. Hunter, then editor of a paper in Martinsburgh, advised against West Point and in favor of a printer's trade in his own office, a home in his family, and the editorial profession afterward. In his new position he exhibited his wonted faithfulness and energy, and in less than three years had charge of the principal business of the office.

Fidelity to business, however, did not preclude devotion to study. He would faithfully, but rapidly crowd the work of the office, and so gain, at times, a half or whole day for solid study, continued until twelve or two o'clock at night, and even then often be at his post in the office before the appointed time next day.

Before the term of his apprenticeship had expired he was converted, and felt it to be his duty to preach the Gospel. He stated his conviction to Colonel Hunter, who released him from his engagement with him, and bade him God speed in his new work. Robert resumed his studies at home, intending to enter the Junior class of Dickinson College; but a hemorrhage of the lungs compelled the relinquishment of this purpose. In after years he often expressed regret at the failure of the plan to complete a course of educational training before entering the ministry.

In spite of his continued ill-health, an appointment on a circuit was given him, and then, contrary to the opinions and predictions of his friends, the exercise of itinerant travel restored him to a good degree of health.

Brother Chambers was clearly a member of the Church militant; of an intense zeal, sometimes amounting almost to rashness, he always stood up for the honor of the Gospel he preached. An incident on Woodstock circuit shows the preacher in a clear and characteristic light: An irreligious young man of respectable family, seeking to provoke merriment, disturbed a lovefeast. Brother Chambers took it as an insult to his Master, and a violation of the laws of the Virginia commonwealth. The result of his action in the case was that the next morning the disturber of the feast marched by his house, in the custody of the sheriff, to the place of trial. The court-house was filled. The novelty of the trial of a wealthy scoffer for disturbing a Methodist lovefeast drew the neighborhood. The counsel for the defendant thought he could gain an easy release for his client by treating the case with levity and sneers, and accordingly demanded: "Mr. Chambers, will you tell us what you mean by a Methodist lovefeast?" It was just the occasion to spring all the passionate energy of his nature, and he promptly replied: "Yes, sir. The mission of the Methodist Episcopal Church is to spread scriptural holiness over these lands," and then proceeded to expound the doctrines and usages of the Church in a torrent of vehement eloquence. Many heard, for the first time, perhaps, what they never would forget. The triumph was complete. His meetings henceforth were not only orderly, but crowded.

His impetuous zeal, love of justice, strict, almost Puritanic adherence to the rules of duty, combined with a daring that knew no fear of man, often provoked opposition, and sometimes, also, gave offense. To those, however, who knew him intimately, there appeared inside of the stronger, tougher dignity of his nature, and underlying his iron will, a great delicacy of feeling and social refinement, and a depth of sentimental tenderness that equaled the pure heart of woman. He was pre-eminently among those of whom the Saviour said, "Blessed are the pure in heart." And, moreover, if worldly prudence was not his gift, yet no soul can say that he ever proposed other than the exactest justice in all things.

He was a loyal man in these rebellious times. The strongest denunciations of the rebel chiefs and the rebellion came from his lips. He did not indorse all the administration's measures, but he nevertheless stood bravely and firmly by the flag of his country. Some misunderstood him, and so misrepresented him; but that was as much their fault as his.

He was conscientious, and much given to prayer; no one more faithful to religious duty than he. He did not fear death; but he fought against him with a strength of will and a purpose to live rarely equaled. He fought off the great enemy bravely, defiantly, but was conquered. Last summer, while ill, his friend, Rev. Dr. Gere, visited him, and asked him, "Do you feel afraid to die?" He replied, "No. I have been preaching the Gospel of Jesus Christ for twenty years, and now afraid to die?" Then, with his right hand raised defiantly, and in the emphatic tones so peculiar to him, he added, "Afraid to die! Let death come just when he pleases, by the grace of God I am ready for him." At another time, "I think the Lord will raise me up; but if not, then his will be done." Nine days before he died he wrote to the same friend, saying, "Since I saw you, I have been wandering up and down the banks of Jordan; but the Master has not called me across. O, Brother Gere, I cannot express the pure joy of the religion I have enjoyed. My soul is happy as I write you." The day before his death, with animated looks, he exclaimed, "Halleluiah, the future is so bright." Only three hours before his death, he called his principal teacher, distributed certain books for the classes, and gave some directions about the school; and then, feeling wearied with that effort, he said he must get a little sleep. He turned on his pillow and fell gently into that sleep that knows no waking until the resurrection.

His presidency of Emory Female College, of which he was the founder, was only for the brief period of one year; but during that time he won the repute of being an able executive officer, and a superior teacher; and he inspired his students with his own zeal. He often said he wished to live, and, by the grace of God, would live, for two objects: "To found Emory Female College on an enduring basis, and also, higher far than that, to preach the unsearchable riches of Christ."

We subjoin a list of his appointments:

1845, South Branch; 1846, Front Royal; 1847, Stafford; 1848, Caroline-street, Baltimore; 1849–50, Liberty; 1851–52, Woodstock; 1853, Rockingham; 1854–55, Annapolis; 1856, North Baltimore; 1857–58, Carlisle, First Charge; 1859–63, Professor in Irving Female College; 1864, President of Emory Female College.
